Killing Frost Is Forecast For Much of Corn Belt

Congressmen And Business Vie In Hunt for High Prices 'Scapegoat'

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Killing frost through much of the corn belt, adding nature's latest severe wallop to an already badly damaged corn crop was predicted by the Weather Bureau last night.

The final night forecast from corn-belt States received here indicated widespread killing frost. The night forecast was:

Iowa: Frost in all except extreme southeast, temperature ranging from 28 to 32 degrees.

Illinois: Frost in northwest and extreme north portion.

Upper Michigan: Killing frost; lower Michigan, frost Thursday night.

Minnesota: Frost and freezing temperatures.

Missouri: Near freezing temperatures in north tonight and Thursday.

Kansas: Frost in west and extreme north.

Nebraska: Killing frost.

Meanwhile, business and congressional groups vied with each other yesterday in trying to put the finger on the scapegoat responsible for the present high cost of living.

Retailers' Head Leans To Food Price Curbs

Jerome M. Ney, board chairman of the American Retail Federation, said yesterday he would favor some sort of Government food price control if costs continue to climb. Story on Page 2.

Preston Delano, Comptroller of the Currency, called upon the Nation's banks to halt a "severe and dangerous" postwar inflation, now in full swing." Story on Page 2.

A congressional committee in New York blamed high food prices on speculation and small cash margins in the Nation's commodity exchanges.

In Washington the United States Chamber of Commerce told the world that "the only way we can bring prices down is either to produce more or to consume less."

Meanwhile bad weather was again threatening the Corn Belt last night. Weather Bureau reports predicted "killing frosts" in northern Missouri and parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas. If such frosts are widespread, vast new damage to corn may result.

"Demand," the Chamber of Commerce added, "backed by unprecedented wage and salary incomes plus the foreign requirements, is bidding prices higher and higher."

The congressional committee investigating high prices telegraphed President Truman that "grain and commodity speculation is supporting prices at unjustifiable levels."

At Chicago, B. B. Brumley, president of the National Livestock Producers Association, warned the Government that meat supplies will be greatly reduced in the next 12 months "if the threat of new ration and price controls" continues.

Meat animal producers also will become discouraged and will cut production if meatless days and consumer price resistance should become general, he declared.

Grain prices continued a slow downward movement on the Nation's exchanges. Wheat was off 2¼ to 4 cents; corn was steady, probably due to cold weather, and oats fell off slightly.

Cattle, hogs and sheep were all off fractionally, while butter in

Welles Says Mrs. Roosevelt Helped Hanns Eisler Get Visa

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles testified yesterday that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt personally interceded in 1939 on behalf of a United States visa for Hanns Eisler, Hollywood composer, who now admits he was once a member of the Communist Party.

Welles was subpenaed by a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee, which is inquiring into how Eisler came to be admitted to the United States.

The composer is a brother of Gerhart Eisler, who has been termed a Communist boss by the FBI and who was recently convicted of passport fraud and contempt of Congress.

At Lake Success yesterday, Mrs. Roosevelt said her note to Welles on behalf of Eisler was "strictly routine." She said she did not know Eisler and did not remember the note.

Welles identified for the record a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt to him when he was Undersecretary of State, dated January 11, 1939, asking to have the Eisler case reopened so that the Eislers could "defend themselves."

Mrs. Roosevelt's letter referred to an investigation made by the Labor Department in 1938, a copy of which had gone to the visa division of the State Department.

The Labor Department said in its summary:

"The evidence establishes preponderantly that Eisler is a Communist, although it does not show that he is an enrolled member of the Communist Party." It said that Eisler had given Communists in the United States and other countries "aid, comfort and active association in the promotion of

Barrett Denies D.C. Is Leading Crime Center

Police Chief Holds FBI Report Needs Thorough Study

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Maj. Robert J. Barrett promised yesterday to make a thorough study of the FBI report which pictures Washington as a leading crime center of the Nation.

The police superintendent said he is as yet unconvinced that Washington is more crime infested than other representative cities. He added that he has been unable to read the FBI analysis of the crime situation and police problems.

"But the report doesn't surprise me," said Major Barrett. "I expected it."

Major Barrett in Duluth

The major is in Duluth, attending a convention of police chiefs.

Contacted by long-distance telephone, Major Barrett said that upon his return to Washington, he and his aides will analyze the FBI report and institute any changes in his staff which will increase general efficiency.

He surmised that the comparatime crime picture may be distorted because methods of crime reporting differ in various cities.

"I don't know whether the other cities cited reported crime as extensively as we do in Washington. I don't know, of course, but I wonder whether they do, on the basis of crime figures I have been cited," he said.

But FBI spokesmen said there is no merit to Barrett's contention, at least with regard to New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Baltimore. These cities use the same statistical system used in Washington, the FBI said.

Has Fewer Murders

The crime index of the FBI showed that:

Washington has fewer murders and car thefts than any of the five cities. It has more robberies than St. Louis, less than the others. In frequency of aggravated assaults, Washington is led only by New York. Only Chicago leads Washington in the number of larcenies.

The uniform crime reporting system used in all these cases was adopted here after The Washing-

Florida Storm, Canada's Cold To Merge Here

High Winds Forecast; Warnings Posted All Along Coast

A weakening Caribbean-born storm and a wind-filled cold air mass from Canada are going to have a gusty convention in the Washington area today.

Both disturbances are wind and water-filled and the Weather Bureau predicted wind velocities in excess of 30 miles an hour for today with clearing and cooler weather. Wind velocity of 40 miles an hour constitutes a gale.

Storm warnings were up on Chesapeake and Delaware bays and along the coast from Hatteras to Eastport, Me.

Moves Through Carolinas

The tropical storm moved up through the Carolinas yesterday, but it was no longer considered "severe" although it carried winds up to 45 miles an hour off Charleston at 10 a. m.

At Raleigh, N. C., authorities ordered two troops of the State Highway Patrol to stand ready to give needed assistance and Coast Guardsmen of the Morehead City area were alerted. Tides were reported abnormally high.

Agricultural officials saw possibility of heavy damage to cotton crops in lower South Carolina. The storm whipped past Charleston without causing inconvenience, but the city had 35-mile winds and

...artha Taft Steals Show With Her Wit

Likens Government To Termite-Ridden 'Highboy,' Chaffs Green and Murray

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 24.—Martha Taft, as witty as Robert Taft is serious, today stole the show from her campaigning husband with a speech that set Seattle laughing.

Martha tossed quips, barbs and jingles at the Truman administration and spoke up for "Bob" with housewifely fervor.

She talked at a GOP women's rally in another part of town while Taft, one hand in a bandage from a "non-political" accident, gave Seattle Rotarians his "cut taxes" speech.

"We've got a highboy government in Washington—one bureau on top of another" Martha told Seattle's pro-Dewey Republican women. "There are termites in the drawers."

Saying Washington is run by "Pendergast politicians and parlor pinks," she described President Truman as "just one of the boys, and that's a fact." Then she added:

"You've got to take him or leave him as he is—and that's a suggestion."

Union Chiefs "No-Men"

Like her husband, he struck out at labor "bosses", but she did it in rhyme like this:

"Phillip Murray and William Green
"Walked upon the Senate scene,
"They used 5000 words or so,
"And every one of them was 'No.'"

She said her husband could have had "a nice, peaceful place" like the Finance Committee, but deliberately chose the controversial labor chairmanship.

When he advised the American people to "eat less," she said everyoen told him he was through.

"We weren't disturbed," she said. "His political career has ended so many times."

The difference between Taft's "eat less" and Truman's "voluntary rationing," she said, was that "Bob said it in terms you can understand."

Referring to the anti-Taft picket demonstration last night, in which a small group booed and heckled, and later walked out of a Taft meeting in a body, she said:

"This isn't Russia, but it looked like it last night. They weren't allowed to listen and make up their own minds."

Un-Communist Grins

She said she didn't think the demonstrators were all Communists, however, because "no Communist could grin like some of those men grinned at me."

Predicting "fellow travelers will be traveling out of Washington" in 1948, she said she would leave further talk about that "to the gurug and Mr. Wallace."

Taft, before moving on to Tacoma tomorrow for his major foreign policy speech, had a busy day of his own:

1. He told newsmen he won't cut his trip short to attend a White House leadership conference Monday on the foreign and domestic food situation. He said he gave

Bi-Partisan Parley Called By Truman on Crisis Abroad; Looted Gold to Aid Recovery

Allies Set Oct. 15 As Deadline to Give Back 165 Millions Stolen by Germany

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Early distribution of part of 330 million dollars in gold looted by the Germans and recaptured has been agreed upon as one means of helping stricken European countries toward recovery.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett said yesterday a three-nation commission would endeavor to meet a distribution deadline of October 15 for half of the fund. He told a news conference the deadline was urged by United States representatives on the commission, composed of this country, France and Britain, and now meeting at Brussels.

"Gold Pot" Too Small

Lovett said in reply to a question that funds in the "gold pot" would not be sufficient to eliminate the need for stopgap aid before the end of this year to nations participating in the Marshall Plan. But, he added, it would help substantially, particularly in the case of France.

The total amount, Lovett said, consists of 260 million dollars seized by United States forces in Germany and 70 million located in countries other than Germany. This latter sum, he explained, might present difficult questions of ownership, since much of it passed through several hands.

Not more than half the total of 330 million, the Acting Secretary said, can be distributed immediately on a pro rata basis among claimants. The balance, he said, must be held as a reserve against future claims.

Countries which have entered claims to the gold are Albania, Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Poland and Yugoslavia. Lovett said he could not reveal the amount of each claim or what proportion each country would receive. He said, however, that all claims total nearly 800 million dollars.

Has Copy of Report

Lovett displayed to the conference a bulky copy of the full report of the 16-nation study of the Marshall Plan, which he estimated at 10 to 15 pounds in weight and a newsman estimated might contain 20,000 words. He said it would be transmitted to the President during the day. Mr. Truman, he said, would comment on the report in the near future.

The report placed Europe's needs over the next four years at $22,500,000,000, of which about 19 billion would have to come from the United States together with considerable stop-gap aid until the plan could be put into effect. Lovett said in connection with full study of the report that:

Leftist Threat Spreads

Trieste General Strike Ends; Italian Mills Face Shutdown

Textile Workers Quit; 550,000 May Be Forced Out

Rome, Sept. 24 (AP).—A strike wave apparently coordinated with a leftist drive to topple Italy's Christian Democrat government spread today to 40,000 technical workers in textile plants and threatened to paralyze the industry within 48 hours.

Spokesmen said if the walkout of the technicians continued for two days all the industry's 550,000 workers would have to quit because they would lack direction.

The strike has the support of the Communist - dominated General Confederation of Labor. It was called to protest failure of management to classify administrative workers as "employes" rather than "laborers."

Other developments posing a grave threat for Italy's limping economy included a strike of 80,000 farmhands in the Roman Campagna, which went into its third day.

In Florence, bank employes struck and 4000 hospital workers in Rome were still out.

Sharp exchanges between Giuseppe Di Vittorio, Communist Party secretary, and Giulio Pastore, Christian Democrat secretary of the Labor Confederation, underlined the political situation. Di Vittorio accused Pastore of siding with capital, and Pastore retorted the Communists were conducting political strikes.

'Conference Halts Tie-Up After Police, Communists Clash

Trieste, Free Territory (Thurs.), Sept. 25 (AP).—The Allied Military Government of the Trieste Free Territory announced early today that the general strike which paralyzed the port area yesterday and resulted in 12,000 workers leaving their jobs, ended at midnight.

The announcement said the agreement to call off the strike, which began at midnight Tuesday, was reached at a conference between military government officials and leaders of the Sindacati Unici, which called the work stoppage, and the moderate, non-Communist Camera del Lavoro, which refused to participate.

Late yesterday, civil police clashed with Communist demonstrators in Trieste while the strike was in effect.

Both unions claimed a "moral victory" in announcements released simultaneously with the military government statement.

The agreement provided, the military government said, that AMG "provisionally" would release nine Sindacati Unici members arrested early Wednesday and accused of molesting workers who refused to participate in the strike. They will be brought to trial within 48 hours.

The military government further agreed to reinstate all suspended

Curt Warning Given to Tito In U. S. Note

'Irresponsible Ultimatums' Held Dangerous

The United States has protested to Yugoslavia against "irresponsible" actions in presenting "ultimatums" to British and American troops in the Trieste area.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett, who announced the note to a news conference, said it warned that such acts by Marshal Tito's commanders were "exceedingly dangerous and likely to precipitate incidents leading to most serious consequences."

Yugoslavia was urged to resolve matters in dispute between local military posts "through normal civilized procedures."

The note warned Yugoslavia that Allied troops had been ordered to hold the "established provisional line" until a definite boundary has been fixed by the Italian peace treaty. During Yugoslav occupation of ceded territory in the Trieste area, precipitate advances were made by units of Tito's army and demands that Allied detachments give way were frequently made.

Lovett said U. S. Ambassador Cavendish Cannon presented the note to the Yougoslav Foreign Office Monday.

The State Department later revealed it had rejected a Yugoslav note of September 22 in which it was charged that United States troops "committed serious attacks" in the ceded territory. The note went on to detail these alleged "attacks" and claims that American troops had incited or abetted "Fascists" in the territory.

To these charges the State Department returned a categorical

Committee to Take Up U. S. Denunciation Of 3 Satellites Today

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The Assembly's 55-nation political committee swept through its preliminaries quickly today.

It voted unanimously to admit the new British Dominion of Pakistan and the Arab kingdom of Yemen to membership in the United Nations.

The committee moved so fast at its first meeting that it was ready to take up the border warfare in Greece as the next item of business tomorrow afternoon. The United States will submit a stiff resolution condemning Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for the help to the Greek guerillas, calling upon them to "cease and desist" and setting up an Assembly commission to watch the situation.

This will bring the Assembly to grips with the first of a long list of controversies between the United States and the Soviet Union. Secretary of State George C. Marshall expects to be present for the debate, although the American case probably will be stated by Herschel V. Johnson, our spokesman in the Security Council's recent debates on Greece.

Tomorrow, also the Security Council will act again on admitting Italy, Finland and perhaps the Balkan satellites to United Nations membership. The United States is ready to support Italy and Finland but it has strenuously

Talks Set Monday; President Expected To Ask Today for Food Sacrifices

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman has asked congressional leaders, Republican and Democratic, to meet with him Monday morning to consider the crisis growing out of Europe's shortage of food and dollars.

It was considered inevitable that the question of a special session of Congress and stopgap aid to Europe would be discussed at the extraordinary White House meeting.

Mr. Truman will hold a news conference at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and is expected to issue a statement calling on Americans to make real sacrifices in their eating habits so that food can be exported to combat hunger and communism in Europe.

Other Problems Remain

That will still leave unsolved the problem of how European nations like France and Italy are to get the dollars to pay for American food, and also fuel, in the coming winter.

The Marshall four-year plan, designed to put non-Russian Europe on its feet economically, is not expected to get through Congress until spring, if then.

Secrtary Marshall has been told by his top advisers that Europe must have help in the meantime to avoid bankruptcy and the collapse of friendly governments. These advisers say that such help can only be authorized by Congress and they just can't see how a special session can be avoided if America's own national interests are the be safeguarded.

Martin Wants Facts

President Truman doubtless will lay all these facts before congressional leaders when he meets with them on Monday. Some of these leaders—Speaker Joe Martin, for example—have complained that Mr. Truman has failed to keep them informed about the European crisis.

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, the President's most trusted adviser on economic matters, is expected to return from Europe next week to make his report. William L. Clayton, Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, and Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador to Britain, also are expected here next week; and likewise Myron C. Taylor, the President's special envoy to Pope Pius XII.

The news that President Truman had asked congressional leaders to meet with him Monday came, not from the White House, but from far-away Seattle, Wash. It was given to reporters by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who is out there campaigning for the Presidency.

Confirmed at White House

Eben Ayers, assistant press secretary at the White House, later confirmed the story after talking to President Truman. However, Ayers merely stated that Mr. Truman had called the congressional leaders. He was unable to give any details, as, for example, the purpose of the meeting.

On Capitol Hill, reporters learned that the White House told congressional leaders that Mr. Truman wanted to talk about "food and European matters."

Senator Taft said in Seattle that he would not be able to attend the White House meeting. There was some doubt, too, as to whether Speaker Martin would interrupt his peaking tour in the Midwest to answer Mr. Truman's call.

Senator Taft, who heads the Senate's Republican Policy Committee, told reporters that, although he would be unable to attend the White House meeting, he had discussed the President's call with Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), President Pro Tempore of the Senate.

Taft said that it was his understanding that Mr. Truman desires to discuss the world food situation

'Treated Like Prisoner'

Woman Sent to Jail Instead of Hospital

Husband Alleged To Have Beaten Her With Whiskey Bottle

A 32-year-old woman, who was so severely beaten by her husband that a Municipal Court judge ordered her hospitalized, landed instead in the District Jail, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

She is Mrs. Mary E. Murrill of 412 6th st. nw., who declared yesterday that she was given no medical treatment at the jail and was treated "like a prisoner," although the only charge against her was "hold as a Government witness."

Mrs. Murrill was struck with a whisky bottle by her husband, Guy Murrill, the evening of September 6. The blows cut a three-inch gash in her left cheek, an inch gash above her left eye, and closed and blackened both of her eyes.

She was admitted to Casualty Hospital that night, where 10 stitches were required to close the gashes. She left the hospital four days later over the protest of doctors.

The hospital notified police of her injuries, and police arrested her husband on a charge of assault. She was named as complainant.

When Mrs. Murrill appeared in Municipal Court September 13 to press charges against her husband, Judge George D. Neilson was so wrought up at her condition he continued the case. Then he ordered her held as a Government witness and recommended hospitalization. Bond was set at $100.

Mrs. Murrill said he remarked at that time that she should be sent to Gallinger Hospital. She said she was placed in an ambulance and believed she was en route to the hospital. The next

Castigated by Judge

Sailor Jailed for 12 Years In Murder of Mrs. Katona

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 24 (Spl.) Joseph Daniel Brouillette, 22-year-old seaman, was sentenced to 12 years imprisonment today in the beer-drinking, poker party slaying of a Navy officer's wife two months ago.

Brouillette, a Navy cook, was found guilty of second degree murder by a St. Mary's County jury yesterday after deliberation of 1 hour and 55 minutes.

The tall, dark-haired sailor, convicted of the death of 35-year-old Mrs. Julia Katona, mother of twins and wife of Lieut. Frank Katona of the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., contended "she led me on" and then repulsed him.

Her nude body was found in a fishing shack near the Katonas' cabin at Tall Timbers (Md.) the day after she had been on a prolonged drinking and gambling party.

Chief Judge William M. Loker called Brouillette's attack "beastly," and blamed drinking for "this terrible thing."

"It is no pleasure to impose this sentence on a man who has served your country as you have. But you have disgraced the uniform you wear and brought shame to your wife and mother and father. You were defended in a way which brought you every possible sympathy," the judge declared.

"Her weakness and your weakness was whisky. It can carry anyone down to degradation and shame."

Brouillette stood calmly through the sentencing, his mother and father at his side. His wife, an expectant mother, collapsed when the verdict came in last night, and is under a physician's care.

After sentence was read, Brouillette told reporters: "My wife's name has been smeared in this thing. We were deeply in love and always had been. We were very happy."

Fighting Chance of Survival

Kamikaze-style A-bomb Attack Under Study by U. S. Air Force

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Air Force has before it a proposal to establish an American version of the Japanese Kamikaze Corps.

"One-way combat" is the name given proposed tactics which would send A-bomb laden planes on missions from which the bomber could not return but with crewmen given a fighting chance of survival.

Widespread discussion of the revolutionary tactics has gone on in Air Force circles since the idea was advanced recently in an official publication.

Author of the proposal is Col. Dale O Smith, USAF, an officer assigned to the staff of the Air University at Maxwell Field, Ala., topflight Air Force school on aerial strategy and tactics. His views are set forth in the lead article of the institution's Quarterly Review, an official publication which aims at presenting "the best professional thought" on air power concepts and doctrines.

Briefly, Colonel Smith's thesis is this:

If we should go to war in the near future, we would not have enough long-range B-36 bombers to make normal-type round-trip attacks across the ocean or North Pole against an enemy in the Eurasion continent.

Our present B-29 and B-50 could launch such two-way missions only from advance bases which might take months or years to take and build.

But there will be no time to wait for 10,000-mile range bombers or to seize advance bases.

"We must strike in force as quickly as we can," says Smith, "else our enemy will beat us to the punch. And an atom bomb

U. S. Bankers Told To Curb Inflation

In Benton's Place

WILLIAM BENTON

The name of Adlai Stevenson, a United States delegate to the United Nations, led speculation on Capitol Hill yesterday as a successor to William Benton as Assistant Secretary of State, after President Truman announced he had accepted Benton's resignation.

Benton had been in charge of informatio nand cultural affairs, including the controversial "Voice of America" broadcasts. Appropriations for his division were sharply cut by the last Congress after bitter criticism of some of its activities.

Stevenson, who represents the United States on the important Political committee of the U. N. Assembly, is a native of Chicago, and has held various posts in the Government for the last six years. His grandfather, Adlai Stevenson, was vice president with Grover Cleveland.

Able Man Needed

Capital Hill sources were uncertain whether Stevenson, one of the key men on the U. S. delegation, would be willing to accept the assignment to handle America's foreign information service. It was recognized, however, that a strong, tested and able man would have to be named.

In accepting Benton's resignation, President Truman declared that this Government has a "continuing obligation" to tell the world about the United States and its policies.

Another name which entered speculation here was that of Representative A. S. Mike Monreney (D., Okla.), former newspaperman.

Publishes Newspaper

Stevenson is the publisher of a newspaper, The Pantagraph in Bloomington, Ill., which has been in his family for 115 years.

A lawyer, he started his government service as special assistant and legal adviser to the late Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox.

Later, Stevenson became a special assistant in the State Department. He served as deputy U. A. delegate to Edward R. Stettinius, jr., on the United Nations preparatory commission in 1945.

'Severe, Dangerous; In Full Swing Now,' Comptroller Says

Preston Delano, the Comptroller of the Currency, yesterday called upon the Nation's banks to help halt a "severe and dangerous" postwar inflation, now "in full swing."

Delano, as supervisor of the national banking system, urged State banking commissioners to discourage "dangerous credit practices" in the 9500 institutions they oversee.

As he spoke, the Commerce Department announced that personal incomes will reach a new record high this month as the result of the cashing of GI Terminal Leave bonds.

Rapidly rising wages and spiraling farm incomes raised the national income in July to an annual rate of 197 billion dollars.

Dividends Show Gain

The Commerce Department also stated that corporation dividends during the three months ending August 31 were 14 per cent above a year ago. A total of $1,233,700,000 was paid out to stockholders as dividends during that period.

The Department then added that the dividends it reported are probably only 60 per cent of those actually paid.

The biggest melons were cut by financial institutions, with payments of 171 million dollars. Oil refineries were next, dishing out 130 million, or 30 per cent more than last year. The biggest percentage gain was by textile and leather firms, whose dividends went up 51 per cent in the year, from 26 million to 38 million.

Transportation companies cut their dividends—the railroads by 6 per cent, and automobile companies by 36 per cent.

Delano to Bankers

Delano's warning to the bankers said they could fight inflation by "indirection, discussion." However, he added that to put a "rigid straitjacket" on lending policies would be "unworkable and un-American."

Bank supervisors, he said, should use their power to "check spending in those avenues which contribute to inflation." At the same time they should encourage increased production where demand exceeds supply.

President Thomas W. Leggett of the National Association of State Bank Supervisors, said banks had regained public confidence since the 1933 bank crisis.

But, he reminded the supervisors, during the 15-year period after World War I "banking had a severe test and in a large measure failed to meet the challenge."

Independent banking, he declared, could not endure "another period of wholesale bank closings."

The warnings to the bankers were echoed before the American Retail Federation by Jerome M. Ney, chairman of ARF. Unchecked inflation will inevitably peril free enterprise, he said, and crush the hopes of Europeans looking to us for leadership and aid.

Frost Forecast For Corn Belt

Chicago wholesale trade dropped 1½ to 2 cents to 76½ to 77 cents a pound. Eggs were unchanged.

A Bureau of Agricultural Economics official predicted that total spending will continue at a high level, and that any economic recession that may occur will be short-lived.

The forecast was based, BAE said, on the fact that the savings and borrowing power of individuals, corporations and local governing bodies are too great to permit a prolonged depression.

Head of Retailers May Back Some Food Price Controls

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Jerome M. Ney, board chariman of the American Retail Federation, said in an interview today that he would be in favor of some sort of Government food price control if the price of essential foods continued to climb.

"If food prices continue to rise—and it seems clear that there will be further substantial increases—the Government might well examine the possibility of imposing some form of price control on staple, basic foods."

The federation is a national association of retailers, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Ney returned from Europe on the Queen Mary with Walter Morrow, president of ARF, after addressing the congress of Swedish Retail Federation at Stockholm, and visiting leading statesmen and private businessmen in London and Paris.

"The democracies are doing everything in their power to create a favorable trade balance, but with dollars so short they are imposing bans on American products. In the end this might influence domestic U. S. prices downward, but it will do little to pull Europe out of its present low circumstances," Ney said.

He asserted that it would be at least six months before American buyers could find worthwhile products in Europe for American stores. Ney added:

"In France the stores are crowded and have goods to display but prices are so fantastic that a chicken costs a week's wages, and a worker could work a year and not save enough to buy a suit of clothes."

He said devaluation of the franc could be expected before the end of the year, and until this was done it would be impossible for Americans to purchase French goods.

Nothing to Buy

Just the opposite was true in Britain, Ney said, where everyone had plenty of money but no goods to buy.

"Actually," he went on, "the democracies of Europe are beat up and tired. Businessmen accept regulation and control of the most drastic sort without protest. Consumers are docile and submissive . . . they accept the dictates of government without a qualm and then turn to black market operations."

171 Under Arrest In Venezuelan Plot

Caracas, Venezuela, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A federal government report to the constituent assembly today disclosed that 171 persons are under arrest in connection with the abortive revolutionary plot put down by the government September 12.

Lieut. Col. Julio Cesar Vargas, former inspector general of the army and believed to be one of the leaders of the plot, took asylum in the Peruvian Embassy, three others are in the Panamanian Embassy and one each in the Argentine and Mexican embassies. All of them will be given safe conduct to go abroad, the report said.

2. Agreed to accept a challenge by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) to debate the cause of high prices on the radio but said he couldn't keep the date before October 6.

3. Told a Young Republican delegation he stood "about in the middle" between the isolationists "and those who want to give all we have to Europe."

4. Placed Government spending and high taxes high up on his list of charges that the Administration is to blame for high prices. He told a Rotary luncheon: "Inflation is the outlet for too much Government expense, whether it results in too much taxation or too many deficits."

Taft's Republican welcome here, the most enthusiastic he has received on this trip, was attributed by local observers to the leftwing activity against him.

King County is regarded as Dewey territory, and a cool reception was indicated. A few days ago the "New Yorld," published by Hugh DeLacy, former member of the extreme left wing in Congress, came out with this headline: "Frigid welcome awaits Taft," a first-page story outlining plans for picket lines and anti-Taft demonstrations.

The northwest district Communist Party distributed circulars saying William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party, would address a rally here tonight. The circular read: "Taft is here to drag America down the path of reaction. Foster is here to chart the course for a people's victory in 1948."

Aroused by the left-wing activity, pro-Dewey Republicans joined with the official Taft welcoming committee to give the Senator a big hand. As a result Taft received what he described as "the most vociferous" welcome yet. Every time he was heckled at last night's meeting, loud, sympathetic applause drowned out the boos. After 10 minutes of this, the demonstrators, scattered through the audience, walked out in a body.

denial, buttressed by statements from British Maj. Gen. T. S. Airey, commander of Allied forces in the Trieste zone. Airey said the Yugoslav charges were "preposterous," "false" and "untrue," or were distorted statements of actions taken in strict conformity with the agreement for turning over the ceded territory.

The United States note said "these charges have been determined upon investigation to be wholly without foundation in fact and are rejected by the Government of the United States as unworthy of comment."

Among Yugoslav charges were allegations that American troops had fired artillery and infantry weapons into the Yugoslav zone, had demolished barracks and a hospital, set numerous fires and prevented Yugoslav authorities from entering territory to which they were entitled.

Food Prices Hit District Institutions

Residents of the District's jails and correctional institutions are feeling the effect of high prices.

Donald A. Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, admitted yesterday that food costs are so high "it looks like there may be a deficit in the provisions account."

Clemmer said District prisoners —some 2400 strong—are now doing without meat two to three days a week. Moreover, they're being served money-saving potato bread made from the "bumper crop" of potatoes at the Lorton Reformatory farm.

"The inmates accept the meatless days program reasonably well," Director Clemmer said, "and they seem to like the potato bread, which has a sweetish taste."

Slemmer said a saving of about $8 a day is made by using potatoes as a substitute for flour

Martin Says GOP Stopped 'March Toward Bankruptcy'

Milwaukee, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) said tonight that the Eightieth Congress would take its place in history as one which stopped "the steady march toward bankruptcy" and kept faith with the American people.

Addressing a gathering of Wisconsin Republicans, Martin lauded the achievements of the GOP-controlled Congress, which, he said, had carried out the voters' mandate to cut Federal spending, weed Communists out of the Government and enact balanced labor legislation.

The Massachusetts Congressman, who is touring seven Western and Midwestern States, touched only briefly on high prices and foreign policy which some Administration spokesmen have claimed merit the attention of a special session of Congress.

Regarding prices, the House Speaker said:

"We are all concerned over high prices. The cause of the high prices is three-fold: First, inflationary forces which arose before and during the war in this country. Secondly, the law of supply and demand, operating on shortages, aggravated by exports. Thirdly, for 14 years the policies of the Administration have been inflationary."

The question of foreign policy, Martin said, must be determined in the next session of Congress. But he raised the possibility of Republican objections to economic aid to Europe unless it is "predicated upon the showing of a sincere intent of those nations receiving the aid to help themselves."

Martin pledged to continue the fight for tax reduction in the second session of Congress.

He said that the two tax bills which President Truman vetoed would have provided the incentive for small business expansion, given additional buying power to the average man and woman, stimulated business, and lessened the shock of a possible decline.

"Let me make the record clear. In this fight for tax reduction we had the support of more than half the Democratic members of Congress. We lost only because, for the second time in history, a President decided he wanted to usurp the constitutional duty of Congress to levy the taxes."

Canfield Plea For Captives Is Snubbed

Trieste, Free Territory, Sept. 24 (AP).—A New Jersey member of Congress argued futilely for two hours today with a Yugoslav outpost commander for the release of an American officer and two enlisted men seized by Yugoslavs Monday.

Representative Gordon Canfield (R., N. J.) said he asked to see Lieut. W. T. Van Atten, East Orange, N. J., the captive officer, and was told "you might see him tonight or you might not." He said he could get no definite information.

Canfield is a member of the House Armed Services Subcommittee now visiting Trieste. He said he explained to the Yugoslav officer in the border conversation that Van Atten was to have been a guest of honor at a dinner Canfield arranged for New Jersey men in the free territory.

"I've come 5000 miles to see Van Atten," Canfield said he told the Yugoslav.

"Isn't it too bad, then, that Van Atten happened to step across the border line at this time?" He said the Yugoslav replied.

The Allied Military Government said it had received no answer to its request for the men's release.

Van Atten and two members of his mounted patrol, Pfc. Glen C. Meyer of Edgeley, N. J., and Pfc. Earl O. Hendrick, jr., Arlington, Va., were "forced across the frontier at gunpoint," the army reported, when they approached the border to talk with members of a Yugoslav patrol.

Sindacati Unici members and allow them to return to work.

Sindacati Unici agreed that its members would return to work immediately.

Police scattered a group of 400 Communists in Garibaldi Square last night who were marching from a Slovene section of Trieste to the heart of the city to stage a demonstration.

Thirty-one union members and other persons were arrested by the British-American military government police Tuesday and yesterday however, as the result of a bomb throwing and activities growing out of the strike.

The military government had reported that the strike was 100 per cent effective in the ports with "no ships being loaded or unloaded."

Sindicati Uniti failed, however, in bringing the entire life of the city to a standstill with its general strike call.

Renato Rizzotti, president of the union, conceded the call for a work stoppage was a "political strike," but defended the action as a protest "against the attitude of partiality shown by the AMG in favor of fascist elements as well as a protest against living conditions in Trieste."

The AMG said the strike call was "the first Communist attempt to hamper the essential life of Trieste and bring discredit" upon the week-old free territory.

Dewey Aide Asks Cautious Foreign Help

By The Associated Press

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's chief financial adviser said yesterday the United States "must help to bring about an orderly recovery in western Europe," but declared that American help should be neither "unlimited nor unconditional."

Elliott V. Bell, New York State superintendent of banks and a long-time associate of Dewey, said western Europe faces "the immediate prospect of economic collapse unless the United States once again comes to the rescue."

"But in giving this help, our country might well take the attitude of a prudent banker who is consciously making a rescue loan.

"It should not be necessary to tell our late Allies how they must run their internal affairs, but we should certainly ask in broad terms that they show satisfactory plans and progress in bringing about expanded production and is restoring financial stability."

Bell decried talk of a British "dollar shortage," declaring:

"Actually there is no shortage of dollars. There is a great plethora of dollars in the world. What is short is goods and production of goods. What is needed is more work, increased efficiency, a greater willingness to face facts no matter how disagreeable."

Kostas Classed With 18-Carat Communists

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Salonika, Macedonia, Greece (By Airmail).—The Greek Communists in Macedonia probably could be divided in three categories: first, those somewhat suspicious and unhappy about the possibility of the Slavs aiming to detach Macedonia from Greece; secondly, the Slavophones, that is, of Slav origin and speaking a Slav idiom in their homes, and who would naturally like to be incorporated into Tito's Macedonia; and, thirdly, the "indoctrinated" ones, who have become 18 carat Communists. No power on earth can shake them in their belief.

Kostas in Third Class

Old Kostas, the Communist, belongs to this third class. I met him in a tavern in Salonika.

"Well, Kostas, what's next?"

He shrugged.

"The American capitalists are trying to ruin our country. But you will not succeed. Russia knows exactly what she is doing. We have time. You're blundering all the way through, and your blunders will play things into our hands."

I asked him whether the guerillas will follow the call of the Athens government and will accept the amnesty.

"Out of the question," he answered energetically. "They will not come down (from the hills), because they cannot come down. The discipline amongst our men is perfect; nobody dares or wants to break it!"

I smiled gently. Probably he thought he had given away too much about "the perfect discipline," imposed on the Andartes by zealous commissars, in which torture, terror and a revolver pushed into the back play an important part, so he interjected:

"Of course, it is a moral discipline, they are all zealous believers in the cause."

I asked him about the government-in-the-mountains. Why was it not yet formed, though Zachariades and Porfyroyennis had announced its coming establishment in July at the Strassbourg Communist conference? He said that Strassbourg was a trial balloon; they wanted to see how the world would react to it, and also to test out the Greek Communists. The Marcos constitution is already working, and that is enough. His words suggested by implication that, for the time being, the idea of a "government-in-the-mountains" had been given up.

Theirs by December

On the other hand, he was certain that the Slavs will attain their chief aim: Salonika will be theirs by December.

"We do not need aggression from without. Less and less are we in need of outside help. But the refugee situation is going to play Salonika into our hands. Many of the refugees who went to Salonika are our men. The lot of the 200,000 refugees in Macedonia and Thrace will be incredibly bad by the early winter, and then we can make our coup easily," said Kostas.

The old brigand admitted that they still get arms and equipment from the northern neighbors, but no longer any food. Why not, I asked. Is there a shortage of food in Yugoslavia? He shrugged again. How then are the Andartes fed? Well, they must get it where they can. This means looting the villages. This must make them pretty unpopular with the inhabitants, I said. He hesitated somewhat, but had to admit that this was indeed the case.

Summing up, Kostas was confident.

Will Continue Support

"Russia is still supporting us and will continue to do so. The international situation is playing into her hands; the Marshall Plan is bound to fail during the winter, which will create a great deal of unrest in France and Italy. England will draw nearer to Russia, and this will tilt the balance completely in our favor."

I talked to other Communists and fellow travelers in and around Salonika. I was surprised how the change of government in Athens affected them. They were no longer as sure of themselves. They tried to call Sophoulis a "monarcho-Fascist," but their words lacked conviction. And when I mentioned the fact that, as Greeks, they seem to wish to sacrifice Macedonia to the Slavs, they answered with an emphatic "no."

Russia will have to do a lot of wordtwisting and will have to increase her propaganda to convince these hesitating leftists. Unfortunately, Greek or American propaganda or counter-information is nonexistent. At present, a clever dissemination of the truth to the Greeks in the north could considerably change the situation in favor of the really democratic forces of the world.

as it relates to proposed exports under the Marshall Plan. He said that, so far as he knew, the discussion would involve only incidentally the high cost of food at home.

Taft said that he had no idea whether Mr. Truman wanted to call a special session of Congress. He said he told Vandenberg that he could be in Washington on October 6 if he, Vandenberg, wanted to call a meeting of Republicans at that time to discuss the President's proposals.

"From what I know of the situation," Taft said, "I see no reason to cancel the speaking dates remaining on my schedule."

He is booked for addresses through October 2, after which he plans to return to Cincinnati.

The White House invitation was telephoned to all ranking members of Senate and House Committees on Appropriations and Foreign Affairs, in addition to leaders like Speaker Martin, House Leader Charles Halleck, Vandenberg and Taft. Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.), the Democratic leader of the upper house, is in Europe.

Yesterday afternoon, for the second time in three days, President Truman summoned his Cabinet to the White House. The session lasted 55 minutes, and apparently was for the purpose of discussing the statement Mr. Truman is to issue today on the world food crisis.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, in leaving the White House, said that Mr. Truman today would make public the report given him two days ago by the Cabinet Food Committee, and would accompany it with a statement of his own.

Mr. Truman is expected to outline a program of voluntary rationing which, according to one of his advisers, will require Americans to make "great sacrifices."

who took part in the Paris talks will be invited to come here early in October to supply further information on the makeup of the report.

3. Italy and France definitely top the list of countries needing emergency aid, but no decision has been made whether to include Great Britain in the stop-gap arrangement.

Lovett explained that the report is now being studied in detail by facilities of the Government which have already studied preliminary reports from Paris. These facilities, selected according to needs for technical analysis, are coordinated by a steering committee under chairmanship of a State Department representative.

U. S. Policy Delaying Recovery, Amery Says

London, Sept. 24 (AP).—L. S. Amery, Conservative former cabinet minister, charged today that American economic policy was holding back the recovery of Europe.

"The main motive (of American policy) has been the desire of American exporting and financial interests to secure an outlet for surplus production and to maintain a one-sided world hegemony by keeping the world broken up into small economic units incapable of ever competing on equal terms with American production," Amery told the Institute of Export.

Foreign Chief Of Austria for Marshall Plan

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 24 (AP).—Foreign Minister Karl Gruber declared tonight in a radio address, which the Russians tried unsuccessfully to censor, that the Marshall Plan was a "general offensive against misery in Europe" and it would be suicidal for any nation to reject it.

An official announcement said that the Russians withdrew their ban on the 10-minute address over their powerful transmitter Ravag after the Americans agreed to broadcast it over their less powerful Rot Weiss Rot. The upshot was that both stations carried the speech.

The Russians sought to censor two passages in the speech, and Gruber objected. The Americans then offered him the facilities of their own station.

Gruber rejected Soviet charges that the Marshall Plan was aimed at splitting Europe into two camps.

"How could such a new form of international cooperation, based on far-reaching American help, be considered thusly since all European nations were invited to participate?" Gruber asked.

He said that "from other parts it has been said that the Marshall Plan threatens the independence of Austria. Economic help has never harmed any one, but has only made them stronger. Only an economically sound country is independent."

[The United Press quoted him as saying there were no surplus food items in eastern Europe and would be none for at least a year.—Editor's Note.]

U. S., Red Row Seen On Council Election

Soviet's Choice of Ukraine as Poland's Successor Sure to Stir Up Opposition

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A new Soviet-American split was threatened tonight over the election of a country to succeed Poland on the U. N. Security Council.

Poland's two-year term will end January 1. Russia's choice as successor is the Ukraine, actually a part of the Soviet Union.

The United States, it was learned, has objected to the Ukraine and also to Russia's second choice, Yugoslavia. Instead, the United States prefers Czechoslovakia, but the Czechs are balking. They don't want to be pulled to pieces in the Soviet-American tug-of-war.

If the United States and Russia do not agree on the successor, the General Assembly might wind up by electing a nation sympathetic to the west.

Australia and Brazil, as well as Poland, leave the Security Council January 1, but picking their successors offered little difficulty. One will almost certainly be a member of the British Commonwealth; the other, a Latin-American nation.

Meanwhile, U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie told the budget committee that U. N. expenditures next year might be as low as $34,500,000—about 2 cents for every man, woman and child who lives in U. N. member states.

The headquarters committee, mindful that the United States will have to put up most of the immediate cash for U. N.'s proposed 65-million-dollar permanent home, elected American Delegate Warren Austin as chairman.

U.N. Would Let In Two Nations

opposed the admission of Bulgaria, especially since the execution of Nikola Petkov, which the delegation here regards as outright murder.

The admission of Pakistan and Yemen had already been approved by the Security Council under a provision of the Charter requiring the Council to recommend new members to the Assembly. Not one among all the 55 Assembly members was opposed to either of them, and spectators saw the rare spectacle of the delegates of Russia, Britain and the United States sitting side-by-side, raising their hands together.

Argentinean Poses Puzzle

But the debate ran into a legal snag which many delegates felt raised serious issues for the future of the United Nations. This was the question, argued with Latin vehemence by Jose Arce of Argentina:

Can any member of the United Nations split itself into two, three, five or more separate states, and then expect them all to get admitted automatically as separate members with separate votes?

Arce raised another question, prompted by the splitting of India last August 15 into two independent dominions of India and Pakistan. Was it legal and proper, he asked, for one of those two dominions (India) to continue in the United Nations as inheritor of the old regime, and at the same time for the other to have to apply for new membership?

Without criticizing either India or Pakistan, the Argentine insisted that the United Nations had done a grave injustice to Pakistan by letting India continue as a member and by raising the new flag of India in public ceremonies last month.

Herbert V. Evatt of Australia reminded him that Pakistan had not objected, and that the important thing was to admit Pakistan quickly without further haggling. But he conceded that the legal problem should be submitted to the Assembly's legal committee for a ruling.

Finally the committee voted 55 to 0 for the admission of Pakistan and Yemen, and 35 to 0 for asking the Legal Committee's advice for future reference.

Adlai Stevenson spoke for the United States. Perhaps to smooth the ruffled feelings of the Arabs here, who see the United States moving into the Zionist camp, Stevenson said Pakistan had the proud distinction of being the most populous of Moslem states.

As to Yemen, he recalled that the United States had recently signed a treaty establishing full diplomatic and commercial relations between the two countries.

The committee's recommendation will go to the full Assembly as soon as a plenary meeting can be arranged. Not until then will the flags of Pakistan and Yemen join the other 55 in the circle of flagpoles outside the Assembly Hall.

By that time, however, the Security Council may have approved the admission of Italy and Finland as well—a decision which would be popular with a majority of the Assembly's Political Committee. There have been some signs that Soviet Russia was relenting in its former opposition to admitting Italy. There also appears to be unanimous willingness among the Western powers to admit Finland in spite of the prospect that she would vote with the Soviet bloc on virtually every issue.

Bigamy Sentence Suspended for Month

Winchester, Va., Sept. 24.—A three-year jail sentence imposed on Robert E. Grimsley of Rappahannock County, convicted of bigamy, was suspended for a period of 30 days yesterday, pending a report on the case by the county probation officer.

Grimsley waived a jury charge and pleaded guilty to marrying Miss Helen Ritenour of Front Royal, in June, 1946, while he was still legally married to another woman. After pronouncing sentence, Judge Elliott Marshall indicated he might use the probation officer's report as a basis for suspending final execution of the prison term.

Soviet Offers Miners New Security Plan

Moscow, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Soviet government announced today a cradle-to-the-grave social security program for coal miners in a move to assure permanent care for its workers and to attract young people into this branch of the economy.

Miners have received high wages and special rations in the past, and the Russians are apparently convinced such favored treatment pays off in higher production. Prewar production levels were passed in the coal industry many months ago, according to official reports.

A system of rank and insignia for engineering and technical staffs in the mining industry was announced.

Miners were covered formerly by the general program of social security, but under the new program they will receive special benefits such as:

A member of a coal miners' union will get 100 per cent of his pay while he is ill. Pensions are provided for invalids and survivors.

Any miner can retire after 20 years work at the age of 50 on half pay. If he prefers to continue his work he gets the pension plus the regular wages, in addition to seniority bonuses. The seniority pay for a miner who has worked underground or in management more than 15 years is 30 per cent of his pay.

A worker who is over 50 with 20 years service may receive base wages plus 80 per cent additional if he continues at his job.

A miner who retires after 25 years service is guaranteed a house with a garden as his private property. He also gets free medical aid for himself and family.

Legion Opens Drive to Spur Army, Air Force Enlistments

By the United Press

Warning that the army lacks manpower to defend "any portion" of the country, the American Legion yesterday opened a drive among its local posts to spur enlistments in the Army and Air Force.

Under the program, to be known as the unified security aid plan, the posts will organize community meetings and local forums to get behind enlistment drives.

At the same time Lieutenant Colonel Stanley W. Dziuban of the army engineers, said the United States is "wide open" to future attack.

Writing in the Octobe issue of the Infantry Journal, he pointed out that no single field commander in continental United States is authorized to direct combined defensive operations of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Divided, Probably Disastrous

"As a consequence," he wrote, "our defensive operations would be scattered, divided and probably disastrous . . . we should establish now a unified joint U.S. defense command with a sound organizational structure providing for integration of the ground, sea and air forces needed to defend the United States."

The Legion said it launched the Army-approved drive because "manpower losses have rendered United States armed forces powerless to perform their basic security mission." It said demobilization has "tumbled Army strength dangerously below the quota fixed by Congress."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army chief of staff, said recently that enlistments are running some 10,000 a month below the number required to keep the Army at necessary strength. The Navy also has said that, unless its enlistments pick up during the remainder of the present fiscal year, it will have to cut its shipboard complement by 10 per cent.

For Popular Awareness

The Legion said its program is intended "to rouse popular awareness of the armed services' needs and attractions." It emphasized that the plan calls for "down-the-line" cooperation with the Army recruiting service, which will provide pamphlets, posters and speakers for the Legion-sponsored meetings.

The Women's Auxiliary will conduct its own recruiting drive which will be aimed specifically at "raising the prestige of military service."

The local posts were instructed in a bulletin from national headquarters to:

1. Organize representative community groups to spearhead local enlistment drives.

2. Promote local forums for the discussion of armed forces needs and obligations.

3. Organize post subcommittees on defense to merge action of interested community organizations. The Legion said Army recruiting units will set local enlistment quotas.

Atom Bomb Quite Possible

Dziuban, formerly assigned to the Army's plans and operations division and now taking special studies at Columbia University, said that any future enemy "quite possibly" would be armed with the atomic bomb.

"All critical headquarters from that of the Secretary of Defense downward should be made safe from atomic attack," he said. "Failing in that, duplicate headquarters with duplicate facilities should be set up at points far removed from one another.

"Experience has taught us to avoid the dangerous Maginot complex and not allocate, for defense purposes, forces from our sparse reserves badly needed for offensive operations."

UEW Repudiates Anti-Red Faction

CIO Electrical Workers Condemn Carey Group by Vote of 3817 to 516

Boston, Sept. 24 (AP).—The CIO-United Electrical Workers today voted, 3817 to 396, in favor of a resolution repudiating the anti-Communist faction led by CIO National Treasurer James B. Carey.

The resolution calls on all members to drive the United Electrical Members for Democratic Action "out of leadership, and if they persist in their disruption to drive them out of the union."

Approval of the resolution automatically threw out the resolution of Carey and convention Delegate William Droham of St. Louis for establishment of a committee to review "whether Communist adherents are accorded privileges that are denied the non-Communist UE members."

The convention reelected its three top officers by overwhelming majorities.

Chosen by roll call votes were: Albert J. Fitzgerald of Lynn, general president for his seventh year; Julius Emspak of Tuckahoe, N. Y., secretary-treasurer, an office he has held since the union first was organized 11 years ago, and James J. Matles of New York, director of organization, a position he has held since it was created in 1937.

Communists Dominate Committee, Curran Says

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime Union, announced today before the union's national convention that a newly elected credentials committee was composed of six members friendly to Curran and nine "promoted by the Communists."

Curran said "those nine members are the ones the Communists want."

Meanwhile, the so-called rank and file caucus distributed to delegates mimeographed lists of what it called "the Communist Party leaders at this convention."

The group said, "With over 90 per cent of the official posts of the union held by members of the Communist Party, is it any wonder why they are afraid to have the rank and file convention delegates investigate and review their work?"

their course," and referred to the fact that Carol King was his attorney.

Attorney Defends Communists

Carol King recenty participated in Gerhart Eisler's defense, and has been defending Communists since 1937.

Mrs. Roosevelt's letter, headed "Dear Summer," inclosed numerous documents and arguments in the Eisler case. She said:

"All these papers were brought to me yesterday by a friend of Mr. Eisler. The man who brought them is a perfectly honest person and very much disturbed. He thinks the State Department has really told the Cuban consul that they do not wish to admit the Eislers and he is perfectly sure that the Eislers are not Communists and have no political affiliations of any kind. He is sure they believe our form of government is 'heaven' and would be entirely agreeable without reservation to take an oath of allegiance.

"I believe that this said that the Labor Department did not examine the case carefully enough. Why not do it all over again and bring it out in the open and let the Eislers defend themselves?

"Cordially, Eleanor Roosevelt."

New Yorker Identified

Welles, who was represented by Norman Littell, former Assistant Attorney General, as counsel, said that subsequent information in State Department files indicated that the friend mentioned by Mrs. Roosevelt was "a Donald Stephens" of New York. The committee failed to identify Stephens further. Eisler told reporters Stephens was a friend of his connected with charitable organizations in New York.

Welles said he turned the matter over to George Messersmith, then Assistant Secretary of State in charge of administration, and "one of the most devoted and Christian public servants of all time."

Red Connections Cited

Messersmith subsequently wrote an answer for Welles' signature stating "Our file indicates that Mr. Eisler has been connected in some measure with communistic organizations and the facts will therefore have to be gone into very carefully by the Consul General when he interviews Mr. Eisler and his wife."

A couple of weeks later, on February 7, 1939, Mrs. Roosevelt wrote, "Dear Sumner—This Eisler case seems a hard nut to crack. What do you suggest?"

Three days later, Welles wrote a reply, prepared by Messersmith, suggesting the Department had to abide by the law (which bars Communists from the United States).

Others Are Listed

"These friends of Mr. Eisler," the latter said, "seem to think that there is some special consideration or treatment which can be given him which is not provided for in our law or that perhaps certain liberties could be taken with the law."

Committee sources said after the hearing that among those who had interceded for Eisler were former Senator Robert La Follette (R., Wis.), Raymond Gram Swing, radio commentator; Clifford Odets, playwright, and William Deiterlie, Hollywood director.

Stafford Man Held in Attack

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 24.—William I. Bowie, 29, of Stafford County, was arrested here yesterday on a charge of raping a 37-year-old woman resident of suburban Sylvania Heights Monday night.

The woman, mother of a grown daughter, told Stafford County Policeman Wilbur R. Robey that Bowie forced her from his car in a secluded spot and attacked her several times under threat of death. Robey said the woman's arms and legs bore severe bruises and scratches.

The woman said Bowie, a distant cousin of hers, had offered her a ride home from a restaurant. She said three other men were in the car, but none of them molested her.

punch might well be the knockout blow."

Survival Factor Vital

But B-29s and B-50s, with a range of 3000 miles or more, can "strike vital Eurasion targets" if the principle of one-way combat is accepted.

One hundred B-29s carrying A-bombs could drop almost twice as much destruction as was rained on Germany by all Allied air forces during the whole war. They could end the combat phase of the war in a week, says Colonel Smith.

Can we get combat crews to fly on one-way flights? Colonel Smith, who flew 31 missions over Europe as a bomber group commander in the Eighth Air Force, believes we can if we show them that by careful planning they will have a fair chance of survival.

"It is doubtful that crews can be sold on necessity alone," Smith says. "They must be convinced that they have better than a 50-50 chance for survival, regardless of necessity. Careful planning of the one-way missions should assure them a very high probability of survival."

Daycoach Service On Airlines Urged

'Luxury' Program Idea Wrong, President's Policy Board Told

Mass air transportation based on "daycoach service" at lower fares is the answer to America's commercial aviation ills, the President's Air Policy Commission was told yesterday.

Solomon

Sam Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., veteran airline executive, declared that "nothing would be more harmful" than the solution proposed by most of the air industry—higher fares, additional mail subsidies and curtailment of competition.

Solomon, former president of Northeast Airlines and manager of the old Washington Airport, has an application pending before the Civil Aeronautics Board to provide such low cost "daycoach" service between Washington and New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Pittsburgh.

Sees Market Lacking

Declaring that the airlines' present troubles are due to their concentration on "luxury service" and the "Pullman market," Solomon added:

"There are not enough people in the United States who can afford the present cost of air transportation and its ground transportation service to and from airports, to support an air transportation industry of the size necessary to achieve the objectives of national policy."

Solomon said his newly organized company, Atlantic Airlines, could provide service at 3½ cents a mile, compared to the current 5-cent rate charged by other lines.

He declared he would do it with or without mail subsidy by increasing the number of seats on a transport, cutting out free meals, letting passengers handle their own baggage, using built-in ramps, and dispensing with many reservation and service employes.

Another phase of his proposal is to arrange for cheap bus service to and from airports to relieve passengers of paying for taxis or limousines.

Sees Something Wrong

Pointing to a Government report that the air transport industry was the only one in the United States which lost money in 1946, Solomon commented that "there must be something radically wrong with an industry which in a period like the present cannot make ends meet."

Earlier the Presidentiayl Commission heard representatives of ocean steamship lines declare that they must be allowed to operate scheduled airline service to compete successfully for world commerce.

Tirey L. Ford, chairman of the Sea-Air Committee of the ocean shipping lines, said the American merchant marine "is fast assuming a secondary position among the fleets of the world." American ships now are carrying less than 50 per cent of our foreign trade and are losing ground, he stated.

Present U. S. international airlines are interested only in passengers "as such," Ford said. Steamship companies, he added, are interested in passengers "as salesmen" who will produce sales abroad which will mean cargoes for their freight steamers. Transocean flying, Ford contended, is "an essential new business-getting tool" for American shippers in the world trade market.

D. W. Rentzel, representing the Radio Technical Commission for Aeronautics and Aeronautical Radio, Inc. urged that the RTC be formally recognized by the Government as the coordinating agency on aviation telecommunications problems. The commission is composed of representatives of both private and Federal agencies in this field.

He also proposed that a Government-recognized corporation be organized to serve in the international field in the same way Aeronautical Radio now operates domestically. The latter is nonprofit communications company owned by 52 air carriers, and serves as the licensee for all ground radio stations used in air transport.

141,108 Acres Allocated for Va. Peanut Crop

The Department of Agriculture has allotted Virginia peanut planters 141,108 acres for 1948, subject to approval by growers.

Marketing quotas were proposed for peanuts again because of prospects for a surplus next year, the department said.

Production was expanded sharply during the war to supply vegetable oil for food.

Quotas, which total 2,359,272 acres for 14 States under the proposed 1948 allotment plan, must be approved by at least two thirds of the growers voting in a referendum to be held in peanut-planting communities before December 31. Under the quota system, a grower may market peanuts grown on his allotted acreage.

Exodus Jews to Get Landing Ultimatum

France Renews Offer to Receive Refugees; Otherwise They Become German Civilians

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP).—A new attempt to break a two-week deadlock on disposition of the Exodus Jews was disclosed today with the announcement of the French consul general here that France will renew her offer to receive the refugees.

(Authoritative British informants in London said the refugees would be given a new ultimatum and would have the choice of either being transported to France immediately or of taking the status of ordinary German civilians. The latter status would deprive them of the extra rations received by displaced persons. Since the 4311 Jews arrived at the two camps near Hamburg on September 11 they have been receiving a daily ration of 2800 calories, compared to the normal German ration of 1550 calories.)

The Jews, who were landed at Hamburg, some forcibly, just over two weeks ago, after being intercepted on their Palestine-bound voyage aboard the Exodus, have been staging a passive resistance campaign.

10 Jews Arrested

Jerusalem, Sept. 24 (AP).—Ten Jews were arrested tonight at Judaism's holiest shrine, the Wailing Wall, when two of them attempted, contrary to Palestine law, to blow the ram's horn signalizing the end of Yom Kippur.

The blowing of the ram's horn has been prohibited at the Wailing Wall for the past 15 years because, the Palestine government said, it incited Moslems in the adjacent Mosque of Omar.

Dr. Bush Expected To Get Defense Job

Secretary of Defense Forrestal indicated yesterday that President Truman would soon announce the appointment of Dr. Vannevar Bush as chairman of the research and development board in the new defense setup.

This is one of the few places remaining to be filled in the unified organization of the armed forces.

Forrestal talked with reporters after calling on Mr. Truman with Dr. Bush.

Asked whether Bush would be named for the defense job, Forrestal replied, "I hope so. The President will have an announcement to make soon."

thing she knew, she heard gates clang shut and found herself in the District Jail, she declared.

At Municipal Court, it was explained that a judge cannot order anyone committed directly to a hospital except for mental observation or communicable diseases. Doctors at the jail, noting the hospitalization order on commitment papers, must decide on hospitalization, the clerk of the court said.

Mrs. Murrill said she was examined briefly by a doctor at the jail. She declared she was then placed in a regular prisoner's cell. She received no medical treatment except a small bowl of water with several bandages which they told her to put on her eyes, she said.

She said she was given no further examinations until Monday when she left her cell and went down to the clinic.

Jail officials stated that she was placed in the women's infirmary for several days, immediately after her arrival.

There was no record in her folder showing that she had stayed in the infirmary. A medical report, dated September 15, described her injuries as bruises and lacerations and listed treatment as cold compresses and aspirin.

Mrs. Murrill declared also that she had asked about getting a bondsman and about notifying her family that she was in jail. She got no satisfaction on either request, she said.

Col. Curtis Reid, superintendent of the jail, said he had found no record that she had made such requests. A prisoner is always given a printed form to fill out for a bondsman and may write his or her family when such requests are made, he said.

Scotland Yard To Crack Down On Fascists

London, Sept. 24 (AP).—The British government has ordered Scotland Yard to crack down on Sir Oswald Mosley's British Fascist Party, prosecuting anti-Semitic statements on the basis of existing laws against incitement to riot, a high government source said today.

The informant said the Home Office has directed police to keep a careful watch over Fascist Party mass meetings in the slums of London's East End, in Liverpool and in other industrial centers where meetings have been revived since the war.

Up to now, he said, the police have been concerned mainly with maintaining order at the Mosley meetings. Under the new campaign they will take full notes on speeches made.

"The protection of the Jewish community is the main factor," he said.

Mosley, head of the British Fascist Party before the war, was seized on May 23, 1940, and interned for part of the duration of the war. He was released because of ill health in November, 1943, and announced later that "my views have not changed."

Parking-Space Row Brings $55,000 Suit

An altercation over parking space at the Fifth Street Market yesterday wound up in District Court as a suit for $55,000 in damages.

The suit was filed for John C. Spivey, 219 F st. ne., a wholesale vegetable dealer, and named as defendants R. E. Keister, jr., 1284 Fifth st. ne., another wholesale vegetable dealer, and his employe, Nath Evans.

Attorney for Spivey is Joseph Lapiana, jr., who explained the base of the altercation. The suit charges that Keister on last August 16 had offered "$25 to a group of men" to inflict physical injuries on Spivey.

Spivey declared in his suit that Evans beat him over the head the next day with a "simulated" blackjack, for which Evans allegedly received $25.

Cardinal Spellman Suggests Unity for Capital and Labor

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP).—Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York tonight urged capital and labor to serve society "with singleness of purpose" as he spoke before a throng of working men at a sectional meeting of the Buffalo Centennial Eucharistic Congress.

"In his great goodness God quickened the earth with riches for man's use not for his abuse; for his rise, not for his ruin, and labor and capital can reap the reward's of God's goodness only if labor unstintingly produces with the skills with which God has so abundantly endowed it, and capital unsparingly distributes the produces of labor for all men's welfare," he said.

Joseph P. Kennedy, former United States Ambassador to England, told the meeting family life was "the antidote and cure" for the present "turmoil."

James Charles Cardinal McGuigan, archbishop of Toronto, told the audience that if the worker does less than a fair day's work "he may be unjustly injuring his employer and most certainly he will be injuring the community by causing high prices and holding back the supply of goods needed by the people."

Tens of thousands from the Buffalo diocese's 635,000 Catholics and crowds of pilgrims celebrated the diocese's 100th year and reaffirmed the Catholic belief in the presence of Jesus Christ in the Holy Eucharist (communion).

Chest Campaign Needs Help of All, Rotarians Told

The Community Chest Federation needs the support of every member of the community to make this year's campaign for $3,900,000 a success, Edward J. Keyes, executive director declared yesterday.

Leroy

He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Mayflower yesterday. Speaking at the same meeting, Howard S. LeRoy, 180th District Governor of Rotary International called upon individual Rotarians to meet a tremendous international challenge.

LeRoy said that we are today rushing forward to either a world unity of an "atomic armageddon." To meet this challenge, he said, Rotary members must extend their service concept to the international field.

Chief to Study Crime Report

ton Post revealed that District police had been "pocketing" crime complaints.

At the same time, the FBI said, Washington is below the Nation's average in the number of policemen available to protect the citizens. The national average for all cities is 2.23 policemen for each 1000 persons. Washington has but 2.11 for each 1000 persons.

Barrett has recommended as a crime preventative a police force eventually of 2500 men. The present authorized strength is 1795 policemen. Barrett has asked to increase this to 2000 men in 1949.

The FBI said in its report that it has been demonstrated that the ratio of crime is inversely proportional to the number of policemen available to patrol the streets.

Major Barrett, in commenting on the FBI crime report, said that it is not probable that there has been a recent upsurgence of crime in this city. He said that the increase noted by the FBI was more likely due to the abolition here of the statistical system which he has termed "obsolete."

"As things stand now," he said, "we even record statistically the theft of a garbage can, a husband-and-wife fight, and all kinds of cases where complainants refuse to prosecute."

Lions to Hear Dr. Pruden

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, minister of the First Baptist Church, recently returned from Copenhagen, where he attended the World Baptist Conference, will be guest speaker at a luncheon of the Uptown Washington Lions Club tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the Broadmoor, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw.

Silver Spring Firemen Push Drive Against Power Lines

The campaign by Silver Spring, Md., firemen to have Potomac Electric Power Co. overhead lines placed underground moved forward yesterday with appointment of a committee to consider a fire code.

The proposal thus far has met with stiff opposition on the part of PEPCO officials, who say the cost would be excessive. Firemen say the overhead wires could interfere with fire-fighting. Civic groups want the wires down to beautify Georgia avenue through Silver Spring's business district.

The committee was appointed by Albert E. Conradis, public utilities agent of Montgomery County, to advise him on the formulation of a fire code for Silver Spring and Bethesda.

Members of the committee are A. J. Bargagni, chief of Bethesda Fire Department; Leo Bender, attorney and former president of Silver Spring Fire Department; Charles E. Deffinbaugh, chief of the Silver Spring Fire Department; Jack Eaton, county building inspector; S. H. Ingberg, former chief of fire resistance section, National Bureau of Standards; Dana B. Johannes, jr., former president, Silver Spring Fire Department; Henry E. Marschalk, president of Montgomery Volunteer Firemen Association, and Henry H. Snelling, former chairman of the Montgomery County Civic Federation's committee on safety.

Bagdon Nominated For Legion Post

The nominating committee of Labor Department Post 42, American Legion, has named Brunswick A. Bagdon as commander for 1948.

Other nominations, expected to be confirmed at the October 8 formal election and installation of the Post, are Marshall C. Miller, first vice commander; Jack Kern, second vice commander; John A. Murphy Puts Captains on Equal Basis

Fire Chief Clement Murphy has eliminated the unofficial rank of acting battalion chief in a move to insure equal rights for all fire captains, including two Negroes, who have attained captaincies.

Murphy

In the future, Murphy disclosed yesterday, captains with more than one year's experience will rotate at performing the duties of acting battalion chief. This will give each captain a chance to obtain experience which will help him gain promotion, the chief said.

The former system, he declared, "has not afforded captains equal opportunity to demonstrate their capabilities for promotion to the grade of battalion chief."

Steps also will be taken, Murphy promised, to make future promotions of captains to battalion chief under regulations of the Civil Service Commission. He said the move was prompted by a recent recommendation of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Divisional and battalion chiefs will discuss the proposal at two special meetings, one for Platoon No. 2 on October 10, anothtr for Platoon No. 1 on October 13, it was announced.

Express Rate Hike Granted

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized an increase in railway express charges, expected to bring in $61,000,000 in annual revenue.

The authorization is good for one year "or until further order of the commission."

The increases are on a sliding scale, ranging from 53.5 per cent for short haul traffic, down to one-half of 1 per cent on long-distance business.

Railway Express was authorized to put the increases into effect on 10 days' notice.

The increases were declared necessary to meet higher operating costs.

Waning Florida Storm, Cold From Canada Join Here Today

Weak in Comparison

It was a weak sister compared to the howler which caused 75 million dollars damages in Florida and took more than 40 lives along the Gulf Coast last week. The sun was out over most of the storm-battered area yesterday.

Rain which started about 1 p. m. pelted Washington most of yesterday, ranging east and south. Frederick, Md., and Front Royal, Va., were among the dry spots.

Over the Nation, winter was nudging the Dakotas, where temperatures dropped to 30. Below freezing temperatures were reported in some sections of New York State. It was still summer on the Pacific Coast. Fresno, Calif., had 102 and Los Angeles had 101. At San Francisco the high was 63 degrees.

6 Killed, 9 Hurt In Tanker Blast On St. Lawrence

Waddington, N. Y., Sept 24 (U.P.). At least six men were killed when the coal freighter SS Milverton crashed into an oil tanker and an explosion spread flaming oil over a narrow St. Lawrence River channel today.

Nine men were injured and seven still were missing hours after the blast which hurled the 23 officers and crewmen of the Milverton to her decks and ignited oil leaking from a gaping hole amidships the oil tanker Trans-River.

The collision occurred at 7:30 a. m. while the Milverton, loaded with 3000 tons of coal and 4000 gallons of fuel oil, was speeding eastward in a swift downstream current.

The Trans-River, according to survivors, cut suddenly across the Milverton's bow.

Krug Names Davis as Head Of Division

Secretary of Interior Krug announced yesterday appointment of James P. Davis as director of the division of territories and insular possessions.

Davis

He succeeds Edwin G. Arnold, recently appointed special assistant to Krug on international matters.

Davis has served with the foreign service, the National Recovery Administration and the OPA. He was an OPA price executive and a consultant on price and rationing controls in Canada, Cuba, Bolivia, Chile and other South American countries.

He also was OPA regional administrator for the territories and possessions

Man Labeled Red Loses His Position

Berlin, Sept. 24 (AP).—The employment contract of George R. Wheeler, military government manpower specialist labeled a "Communist" by Congressman George A. Dondero (R., Mich.) has not been renewed, it was announced today. Officers said, however, the loyalty committee failed to find evidence that he was "either a Communist or disloyal to the United States."

Last week Heinz Norden, also a Dondero target, was told his contract would not be renewed. He, too, had been cleared by the loyalty committee.

U. of Md. to Start Building

Grading work for the University of Maryland's $2,350,000 building program, which was approved by the State Board of Public Works, will begin immediately, C. L. Benton, university comptroller, said yesterday.

Costruction of a proposed $800,000 football stadium and a $300,000 swimming pool is expected to begin next spring, while other units will be begun as funds are accumulated.

The program also includes a combined physical education field house and auditorium expected to cost $900,000 and a $350,000 chapel. University President Harry C. Byrd assured the board the projects can be financed entirely from the university's own sources.

Comptroller Benton explained that $300,000 in cash is already available. This amount has been accumulated through a $10 fee paid by each student since 1933 under an Athletic Board program. The baord will also borrow $600,000 through a bond issue, probably by spring or early summer when construction funds are needed, he said.

The rest of the needed funds, amounting to $1,610,000, are expected to be collected in additional student fees of $20 a year per capita this year and the next two years.

British Launch Plan To Modernize Mines

Birmingham, England, Sept. 24 (AP).—The National Coal Board announced today that orders had been placed for 36 million dollars worth of mining machinery as the first step in a program for modernization of British mines which is expected to take 15 years to complete.

Izvestia Sees Iran Favoring Oil Pact

Moscow, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia said today the ruling circles of Iran were expected to reject foreign advice directed against ratification of the (proposed) Soviet-Iranian oil agreement.

Foreign observers said the reference probably was to United States Ambassador George W. Allen in Tehran.

[Allen recently sought to counter Soviet pressure for approval of the proposed oil concession agreements with a declaration that the United States had "dedicated its full energy and resources to freeing peoples of the world from fear of aggression."]

Good news for lovers of good coffee—

EDWARDS COFFEE IS BLENDED AND ROASTED IN WASHINGTON'S MOST MODERN COFFEE PLANT...
TO SUIT WASHINGTON TASTES!

Top combination of latest equipment and expert coffee "know how" brings Washingtonians rich coffee, days fresher

RIGHT HERE IN WASHINGTON the "Edwards Way" of fine coffee-making assures you of coffee made under the most ideal conditions known. The spotless Edwards plant, built and equipped in 1941, is Washington's finest. The roasters and other processing equipment are the most modern in Washington. And the expert blending and roasting is done under the exclusive Edwards formula, a master guide to fine coffee-making for over 43 years. Even the way Edwards assures and protects the freshness of Edwards Coffee is different: Edwards Coffee is roasted only to your grocer's order, then rushed by truck direct to the store—the "freshest" coffee service ever developed! No wonder Washingtonians are changing to Edwards . . . for rich coffee, days fresher!

1 BUILT FOR COFFEE! The big, sunlit Edwards Coffee plant on West Virginia Ave. N.E., was built for coffee processing. Blending, roasting, packing, warehousing—all "blue-printed" to assure the most modern, sanitary coffee production. The plant is kept spotless as your own kitchen (the floors even shine) . . . a further guarantee of utmost cleanliness.

2 EDWARDS "TRIPLE-TESTS" FOR UNIFORM FLAVOR! Here in the immaculate Edwards testing room, experts painstakingly test Edwards Coffee during actual preparation. Then test again after it's roasted. And to make triply sure that Edwards is always freshly rich, Edwards is taken at random from your grocer's shelves and tested a third time. Triple testing: uniform flavor!

3 BLENDED FOR "THE ONE RICHEST FLAVOR." The Edwards people buy only the choicest Central and South American coffees. Then, under the famous Edwards formula, they blend not one not two but many of these rich coffees to bring you the one richest flavor . . . the rich coffee taste that Washingtonians prefer!

4 "SMALL-BATCH" ROASTING IN THERMALO ROASTERS! Edwards Coffee is roasted only in small batches under exact formula control . . . and in the new-type Thermalo roasters, most modern in Washington. This way, all the natural richness of the coffee is brought to full flavor. You get a rich cup of coffee every time!

5 ON ITS WAY . . . RICH COFFEE, DAYS FRESHER! Under the "Edwards way," Edwards Coffee is roasted only to your grocer's order, then delivered direct to the store. No warehousing, no "hibernating!" He gets it faster, you get it fresher—DAYS FRESHER! And to further guarantee absolute freshness, Edwards is not allowed to remain in stores beyond a certain, specified "fresh" date.

GUARANTEED RICH!
GUARANTEED FRESH!

Unequal VA Subsistence

The Benjamin Franklin University, which is a school of accountancy and financial administration, complains that the Veterans' Administration is discriminating against its students by not allowing them full subsistence benefits under the so-called GI Bill of Rights. The VA ruling comes as an especially heavy blow, it is said, because many students of accountancy have registered at this school under the expectation that they would draw full subsistence. Word that they are to be cut down to one half subsistence comes at a time when it may be too late to register at any other school where full subsistence could be obtained. The timing of this notice, however, appears to stem from the discovery of an error in the VA contract with the Benjamin Franklin University. Except for this error, accountancy students at this professional school would have had only one half subsistence from the beginning of the veterans' educational program.

The question remains, however, as to why students attending an exclusively professional school should have less favorable treatment than students studying the same subjects in a liberal arts college. VA rules draw a distinction, we are informed, between accredited schools operating on a semester-hour basis and exclusively professional schools operating on a clock-hour basis. In most instances, no doubt, such a distinction can be justified by differences in teaching and study practices. But in specific cases, serious injustice may be done. Veterans studying accountancy in a liberal arts college may obtain full subsistence for a weekly class attendance of 12 periods of 50 minutes each. Veterans studying accountancy in exclusively professional schools, however, would have to attend 25 classes of 60 minutes each to get full subsistence. The result is that, of two veterans pursuing the same course of study in Washington at different schools, one may receive twice the allowance granted the other. The same is true with respect to many other schools throughout the country. No such discrimination can be justified in a democracy. While we appreciate the complicated nature of the problem, we hope that the VA's advisory committee on vocational rehabilitation and education will find a way at its meeting next month to refine its rules so as to effect equality of treatment in practice as well as theory.

Communists In Unions

The Communists have always shrewdly understood that labor unions afforded them their most effective avenue to influence in a capitalist society. Accordingly, they have joined—infiltrated, we think, is the appropriate colloquial term—key unions the control of which might become decisive for the economy, and by the tactics of harassment, obfuscation and tenacity for which they have become notorious have managed in a few situations to secure real dominance. The effort constantly going forward in unions to keep the Communists from gaining control, or to oust them where they have gained it, is vital at once to the labor movement and to the national security.

The struggle to keep Communists from control has lately become an overt one in two important unions—the United Automobile Workers and the National Maritime Union. Walter Reuther, president of the former organization, and Joseph Curran, president of the latter, have openly challenged the Communists to a showdown. This has, of course, elicited outraged charges of factionalism, Red-baiting and demagoguery. And indeed there is a danger in this kind of internal dissension; once before the UAW was rent and nearly ruined by it. But there is an even graver danger in ignoring a disease which threatens to subvert the union's whole character and purpose.

It is a stipulation of the UAW constitution that no office, elective or appointive, may be held by anyone subservient to a "Communist, Nazi or Fascist organization, which owes its allegiance to any government other than the United States or Canada, directly or indirectly." Mr. Reuther wants this constitutional edict enforced. He has chosen, as has Mr. Curran in respect of the maritime workers, what seems to us the appropriate and thoroughly democratic way of meeting the issue—a direct appeal to his fellow members. They will have to decide where the real interest of their union lies. It is, to be sure, an obvious political stratagem—much employed nowadays in Washington—to catalogue as Communist whoever may be dissident or nonconformist. Their respective unions will have to judge the validity of Messrs. Reuther's and Curran's charges. They can scarcely doubt, if they look about them, that the interest of the Communists is not the interest of American labor.

Vishinsky Echo

Any hope that Secretary General Lie's appeal to reason would be heeded was dashed when Mr. Vishinsky launched another denunciation of American warmongers. In the intervals of Vishinsky cannonading the satellite sharpshooters have been keeping up the campaign. The purpose, of course, is to intimidate the nations so as to smother the American effort to vitalize the Assembly—now that the Security Council has been "frozen," as Mr. Bidault puts it. But the student of Soviet policy is not content with a surface and obvious explanation. He is examining the tirades of Vishinsky and his friends for an inkling, if not a sign, of the immediate course of Soviet policy. For that purpose he is no doubt reading their orations with a dictionary in his hands recording the meanings that the Soviet Union and its Communist followers give to their blistering words.

In the Communist lexicon warmongering is a propaganda word destined to promote one end in America and another end in Russia. In America the object is to affright the timid into opposition to their Government's "containment" policy vis-a-vis the Soviet Union. In other words, Vishinsky wants to make Wallaceites of us all. In Russia the intention is to affright the Russians into support of Soviet "antiencirclement" vis-a-vis the United States. Periodically the need arises, as it does in all dictatorships, to "busy domestic minds with foreign quarrels," in the Napoleonic phrase. There always has to be an "enemy" in order to keep the homefolks united. To say that the "enemy is at the gates" (Mrs. Lenin's favorite phrase) is to kill domestic discontent, the theory being that people can be scared as well as whipped into submission. In this attempt Vishinsky & Co. have a redoubtable ally in their slave press, for the Soviet newspapers made no move to put Marshall and Vishinsky side by side; it was all Vishinsky, together with columns about his success in causing "complete panic and boiling wrath" among our reactionaries.

Inside the Soviet Union there is, of course, no freedom of speech, so that the Russian people can indulge in no warmongering, as we mean the word, without a go-signal from their masters. Even if there were freedom, we doubt whether there would be any manifestation of what we mean by warmongering, for the Russians are as peace-loving as Americans. The reason for the lack of a go-signal from the Kremlin is that the word "war" has no significance among the Russians except as a tragedy that a hostile world wishes to visit upon Russia. That is the triumph of Muscovite propaganda. Warmongering can be and is being incited under the Communist phrase for it, namely, encouragement of revolution abroad. But so drugged with propaganda are the Russian people that they do not realize that when their masters in the Kremlin call for revolution abroad they are guilty of warmongering. It is the Kremlin's thesis, not ours, that the Soviet system and the non-Soviet system cannot coexist, and what does that mean but the instigation of war?

In this connotation the Soviet speeches at the General Assembly show, in our opinion, an intensification of the skirmishing for tactical advantage. Diplomatic war, in other words, has been declared. The situation condemns the world to dangerous living, for the "line" is given to Communists all over the world to lay down a barrage on all American efforts to promote pacification and reconstruction. It is inevitable that if this strategy meets with success, overt action will begin. A week ago a collision seemed in the making in Italy. But the Communist-inspired strikes and demonstrations fizzled, while the international troops in Trieste "held" Tito's gangsters when they tried to overrun the Free Territory. On this analogy the general strike that the Communists have called in the seaport appears doomed to failure. The trouble is that the non-Soviet world can never be sure of the outcome unless it is strong of soul, ready for any emergency, and impervious to Soviet threats and propaganda. Weakness and division are what the Soviet counts upon to give a green light for action, and Vishinsky invective in New York is an effort to create both.

Subsidizing Marriage

Shades of the companionate marriage hubbub of the 1920's have been raised by the suggestion of Dr. Walter Clarke, executive director of the American Social Hygiene Association, that the dowry system be revived. Dr. Clarke, writing in the October Woman's Home Companion, proposes early marriage as a means of combating the present increase in divorce, sexual license, venereal disease, mental illness and juvenile delinquency. Parents should help to make early marriage possible, he says, by some modern equivalent of the dowry system, such as savings or insurance programs for children designed to help them through the first years of married life.

Dr. Clarke holds, as did the late Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Juvenile Court reformer, who advocated what he called "companionate marriage," that late weddings postponed on economic grounds, deprive young people of a natural physical and emotional outlet when their sex drive is strongest, and contribute to social ills. Judge Lindsey proposed that parents subsidize newlyweds to some degree, and that young people marry and go to college together. He went so far as to suggest that young married couples delay, if necessary, the starting of their families until they had finished school or gotten a financial start. In the widespread controversy that followed the airing of these ideas, Judge Lindsey was accused of being an advocate of trial marriage and even of free love.

Dr. Clarke, however, points out that childbearing is easiest in the early years following sexual maturity, and that our ancestors, who married early and had large families, developed more stable homes than do couples today. He blames society for setting up an ideal of continence before marriage, then prolonging by economic barriers the attainment of the marriage goal, and at the same time surrounding young people with sexual stimulants. This situation has of course grown out of an industrial society with rising standards of living and with increasing sex appeal in competitive methods of advertising and promotion.

Although this country has a high record for early marriage compared with most Western countries, yet the marriage age has been steadily creeping up since pioneer days, when boys and girls often married in their early teens. Yet the marrying fever that war brought on has recently been causing young women and men to throw economic caution to the wind and rush to the altar early and late. The Census Bureau has just reported a marked shrinkage in the number of American spinsters. This is likely to be only a temporary trend, however, and both parents and the Nation need to give thought as to how to create a more favorable social climate for early marriage. What is most urgently needed now is housing for marrying couples.

Radio Standards

The new code of standards adopted in principle by the directors of the National Association of Broadcasters is a response, belated but highly significant, to the controversial Blue Book issued by the Federal Communications Commission some 18 months ago. The Blue Book was a warning to the industry that excessive commercialization was interfering with the discharge of its public service responsibilities. Industry spokesmen have been fuming and spluttering about this FCC admonition ever since; but most radio stations throughout the country quietly acknowledged the validity of the FCC's criticism and began to improve their program performance. The code announced at the Atlantic City convention of the NAB last week is a formalization of these reforms and a sign of radio's coming of age.

The principal reform proposed in the code is a restriction on the amount of time to be devoted to commercial announcements—those irritating intrusions on news or entertainment which are now commonly known as "plug-uglies" but which are, nevertheless, radio's source of revenue. The new code says that no broadcaster should permit more than three minutes of commercial announcement in any 15-minute time segment. However generous an allocation to the advertiser this may seem from the point of view of the radio listener, the fact is that it represents a fairly stringent limitation. It may spell the difference between survival and extinction for the marginal, unaffiliated station and for new stations bucking established competition. Nevertheless it seems to us an inescapable ruling if radio is not to drive away its primary patron, the listening public.

There are other reforms in the proposed code, dealing with the character of advertising, canons of good taste, the content of children's programs, the treatment of religion, which seem altogether laudable in intent but will have to be judged in performance. The loudspeaker itself will have to tell us what the NAB means when it forbids the advertising of "products which are not acceptable conversational topics in mixed social groups" and then insists that "laxatives, deodorants and products claiming similar functional service" should be "handled in accordance with the highest standards of good taste."

It is but fair to say that the major networks and most individual radio stations already adhere to standards higher than those prescribed in the NAB code which is, plainly, a minimum of decency. The industry's problem is to compel adherence to this minimum of decency on the part of those stations which have no regard for principle. The code as announced makes no provision for enforcement; and indeed it is hard to see how the industry, which must suffer in prestige from violations of its code, can punish the violators in any way save through publicity. It is here, perhaps, that the FCC and the NAB can cooperate effectively. "If you adopt a good code," FCC Chairman Denny told the NAB convention, "the commission may . . . inquire whether a particular station has lived up to the minimum standards adopted by the industry." He made it clear, however, that the FCC would not let the industry prescribe the Government's standards. It would simply, as it should, help the industry to help itself.

MUSIC

Why are voices calling to one another in the evening,
Lovelier than at other times . . . ?
Rising and falling across the fields,
Like a flock of bells—
Is it the wind after sunset,
Lifting the sound in delicate gushes,
Letting it float,
Then carrying it high among the branches
Of stirring trees?
Is it the quivering boughs sliding the words downwards
Over cool, green cataracts of leaves—
Or, is it the dews and the damp
Under the sky, moulding the shape of words
Into music?

I will remember these voices
Calling across the meadows at evening
On cold, winter nights,
When the flame eats into the log,
And a gale is shaking the spruces.

McNerney's Position

We, the officers of the Dahlgren-Terrace Citizens Association, feel we owe to the residents of Washington, white and colored, an explanation of the situation which has arisen as the result of the publication by The Washington Post of remarks supposedly made by Mr. Arthur B. McNerney at our meeting September 17 at the Crosby-Noyes School. No publication has been made by The Washington Post of our protests at what we consider a very unfair and inaccurate reporting by it, which could not have failed to insult and antagonize the colored race. Moreover it places Mr. McNerney (who is a fine public spirited man and a good friend to many members of the colored race) in a very unfavorable light.

The whole tenor of Mr. McNerney's remarks was to the effect that legal means were the only ones available to us to keep covenanted properties from being violated. He made no derogatory remarks against the colored race. Although he did protest against tactics of certain colored real estate agents, it is sad to note that The Washington Post failed to record the complimentary statements by Mr. McNerney concerning a number of high-principled colored real estate men.

Our position is this: We purchased homes in our community which are subject to these so-called restrictive covenants. Where these covenants have been violated, we are taking the legal remedies through court action open to us to defend them.

GERALD F. COLFER, president; DR. JOSEPH KELLY, vice president; ROSE A. ELLIOTT, treasurer; MELBA R. HARLOWE, secretary.
Washington.

Editor's Note: The reporter who was present at the Dahlgren-Terrace Citizen's Association related what he heard. He kept careful notes of the statements he repeated in his story and does not acknowledge that they were inaccurate. There have been no previous complaints that they were inaccurate although a few members of the association have protested the "effect" of the story. The Washington Post story did not convey in any way the impression that Mr. McNerney advocated violence. On the contrary it did quote him directly as counseling legal methods of enforcing covenants. The representative of The Washington Post does not recall any remarks complimentary to Negro real estate agents unless such a construction could be put on one observation relating to a particular agent described by the speaker as hitherto fair in his dealings but recently guilty of "crossing him up." The Washington Post is glad to make known the position of the members of the association.

Inadequate Protection

The unjust brutality and the decision of the grand jury in the Julius Willie Clegg case are true evidence that the citizens of the Capital of the U.S.A. are not receiving adequate protection from those who are hired and whose salaries are paid by us, the citizens.

We as individuals are supposed to profit by our mistakes and the actions of others. Is this a fruitless statement? At this instance we are reminded of the decision of the jury of South Carolina in the freeing of 28 men for breaking, entering the jail, apprehending and murdering a man that had not been found guilty of the accused act. That was a shame! America's protective law was given another chance in the case of Julius Willie Clegg, but thus far has faltered.

Wake up, America, the eyes of the world are on you. Let us be fair with our citizens.

FREDERIC H. PERRY.

Individual Participation

Thanks so much for the symposium in The Washington Post of September 21 on the school problem in our larger cities. It was most timely. Now, what can we do about it? Take another step toward regimentation, bureaucracy and higher taxes or take one toward individual participation in public affairs and economy?

There is no use in trying to teach. Teaching is a closed shop. Your child can jolly well go ignorant before anyone without a master's degree may be enrolled as a teacher in Washington. But you will remember that shortage in teaching staff is one of the least of our troubles. Money, supplies, upkeep and the nonteaching staff are in far more critical situation.

So, let each one of us take over the personal supplies for our own child, books, pencils, etc. That is not much money, a few dollars from each parent scarcely enough to deduct as expense from his income tax, probably direct savings of less than a $100,000 in cities of Washington's size but enough to overhaul the heating system in any of her schools, maybe two.

The indirect savings are bigger and better. Consider the personnel who used to do the buying, distributing, etc., and who will be available for transfer to supervisory, janitor or even teaching positions. There is real savings.

But mostly consider the increase in interest, support and pride on the part of the parents and the value to the pupil in the books that become permanent possessions. And think of the value to our Nation in the increase in personal interest in civic affairs.

Salvation Army Aid

The press, during the last few days, has carried several stories in connection with the arrest, on a vagrancy charge, of Mrs. Elizabeth Hudlow and the comments made from the bench by Judge Arnold W. Scott deploring alleged nonactivity on the part of welfare agencies in cases of this type.

Lieut. Colonel W. W. Bouterse, Salvation Army divisional commander, has just concluded a very thorough search of the case records on file at the Army's welfare bureau and the client in question has been the beneficiary of aid since 1929. She has been given emergency care and shelter at the organization's lodge for women on many occasions and, according to Salvation Army records, Mrs. Hudlow has applied for, and received, aid under three different names.

Colonel Bouterse, in a communication to Judge Scott, informs him that the facilities of the Salvation Army are available to the Municipal Court and Police Department at any time during the day or night and earnestly requests the judge to make this information available to the staff of his court, assuring him that the Salvation Army stands ready to cooperate in every way possible.

Trinidad Boys' Club

I have been reading with uneasiness what has been printed in the papers recently about the Trinidad Boys' Club becoming a part of the Police Boys' Clubs.

I hope this doesn't happen.

There is something clean and fine, something truly American, about the Trinidad Boys' Club. The rhythm and peculiar tenderness of its meaning would be shattered and destroyed if it became a part of a monopoly. In a way, it is the little man against the big man.

If the people who have helped the club in the past decide to give up the hard and lonely road the club has followed since it began, it will be a blow to us who admire a fighter with guts and who can take it. EDWARD F. FULK.

Vishinsky's Accusations

I have read Mr. Vishinsky's speech to the U. N. General Assembly, and afterward, Mr. Barnet Nover's column in The Washington Post calling the speech a lie and Mr. Vishinsky "a man utterly without intellectual or moral scruples."

I submit that Mr. Vishinsky's statements were in a considerable degree factual and that Mr. Nover's attempt to dismiss them as lies is dishonest and typical of the journalism of which Mr. Vishinsky complains.

There are warmongers in this country. There are influential people making violently biased statements against Russia. There are considerable elements who privately and even publicly advocate dropping the atom bomb on Russia now. Why shouldn't Mr. Vishinsky be vehement—why shouldn't he bring this matter before the bar of world opinion and speak plainly?

Many Americans are appalled by all this and not because they are afraid of Russia, but the contrary. They know that Hitler's attack on Russia was all but fatal and that in the opinion of our own experts it will take her many years to recover.

No, there are some of us who are beginning to fear our own, beloved America. We are afraid because we know that the bomb has been used without any proven necessity and that it could be used again without the consent of the people. We also know that if we murdered millions of men, women and children, we would become an accursed people. That there would be no atonement for or escape from a guilt so vast.

Today, an America which is economically and morally unwell holds the fate of the world in its hands. If that really meant in the hands of a truly informed American public, then, and only then, would there be nothing to fear.

ARTHUR W. ERICKSON.
Kensington, Md.

As I read Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky's speech in the United Nations General Assembly, on September 18, as published in your paper, it would appear that any hope of lasting peace for the world is merely an unfortunate dream of a disappointed maiden when she hoped for so much but gained so little.

If what Mr. Vishinsky says is true, and it seems that there is some basis for some of the accusations he makes, then all nations should prepare for a final war and stop this foolish talk about world peace which does not exist nor can exist so long as one race, nation or group by reason of its military power and/or the aid of other powers maintain or aid in the enslavement or subjugation of any people.

If the United Nations organization cannot and will not make a decision in the Dutch-Indonesia affair, it should close up now and frankly tell the world that it cannot secure world peace. If the United States cannot guarantee freedom and equality for its own citizens in Mississippi, Georgia, etc. here at home, it sounds foolish for this Government to tell Greece or Russia what they should or must do in that regard.

Changing Family Life

By Malvina Lindsay

Inflation Sideline

JUST AS FASHION was changing women into clinging vines again, and the public mood was turning wistfully toward a patriarchal "Life With Father" home, postwar inflation had to come along with other plans.

Now it is evident that more wives and mothers are going to be breadwinners outside the home, that more fathers will have to help with household activities, that more children will require public day care, and that this postwar period, like all others, will bring its quota of change to family life.

Women's return to the labor force last spring and summer was more than seasonal. It is going right on. It is the main answer many American families are making to the problem of how to keep up their standards of living on shrinking dollars.

This trend has been heightened by increased divorce, and by the need for work of widows of war casualties, wives of disabled and of student veterans, also by wives of men who have lost their jobs in spotty unemployment areas. Hence legislators find in their laps again a problem many of them had fatuously believed would end with the war. It is the day care of children whose mothers work.

MANY communities closed their wartime children's centers on the theory that all working mothers would go home and stay there when war plants closed. For a while there was an eager retreat to the home on the part of tired women. A general feminine longing for the sheltered life swept the country. War brides and brides-to-be quit their jobs, hoping to spend the rest of their years presiding over dovecotes.

Now many of them are at work again or looking for jobs so they can help pay family bills, or meet payments on new inflation-priced homes. In about one fifth of all normal families, husband and wife both work, estimates the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Although mothers of small children stay in the home if possible, yet it is estimated about 1,250,000 of these are employed—in most cases through necessity.

Meanwhile, public day care centers continue to close on the national wave of pennywise economy. Only four States and three cities now provide day care for children. Increasing numbers of children of working mothers are being parked in questionable places under unsafe and insanitary conditions, as the cost of care in private centers is more than most ordinary mothers can pay.

The problem is likely to grow worse if living costs continue to rise. It is becoming so widespread and pressing that State Legislatures and Congress will have to wrestle with it this winter.

AUTHORITIES on the problem say it should be handled on a long-range, permanent basis. They point out that the general trend of wives to work outside the home has long been under way, and is expected to increase as the country becomes more industrialized. The trend is already accepted by many industries which provide maternity leave, and by many unions which include it in their contracts. A bill providing maternity leave for Federal workers has been introduced in Congress. Another pending bill provides Federal grants to States to establish nursery schools and kindergartens for children 4 and 5.

Day care is needed not only for children whose parents work, but also for those whose home conditions are not desirable. The idle, after-school hours in congested neighborhoods often are breeders of delinquency.

Both day care centers and nursery schools are now meeting much the same opposition that kindergartens did 50 years ago, and that even the public schools did in the middle nineteenth century. Then as now public officials opposed to change ridiculed new educational steps as new-fangled devices to enable lazy parents to shift responsibility. However, it is likely that the next big evolution in education will be a dawn to dusk school system to provide proper activities and supervision for all children not supplied with these in their homes.

German Black Market

In recent weeks our Military Government has uncovered the fact that the Germans "underestimated" their grain crops by more than 50 per cent. It stated that crops in Germany would be considerably larger than reported by German farmers. The danger exists that a large part of the food products will go into the black market, instead of being used for the benefit of industrial workers.

Whoever sets foot on German soil since the end of the war is shocked by the incredible black market in the American and British zones. Why don't our official statements report these conditions? We are feeding the Germans at immense expense to ourselves. Of course, there is not enough food for all city dwellers grown in Germany. But conditions would be different if a dozen German farmers and other black marketeers would be severely prosecuted and punished by our Military Government. The death penalty should be imposed in a couple of cases and there would be more food for industrial workers.

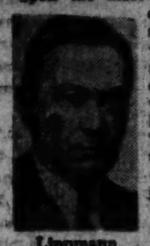
Who is making up for these amounts of food? The American taxpayer, of course. It is time that the truth about German food conditions is told to the American public and that something is done about it. O. BRADY.
Washington.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War XI

IN ITS approach to the German problem, which is crucial in a world settlement, we come upon the most dangerous and destructive consequences of what Mr. X calls a policy of firm containment and what the world knows as the Truman Doctrine. Here, ever since Secretary Byrnes went to Stuttgart in 1946 and addressed the German nation, we have been preparing the ground for a gigantic diplomatic disaster.



Lippmann

For the policy of containment envisages the western zones of Germany as an essential part of the "unassailable barriers" which Mr. X tells us we should erect in the path of the Soviet Union. Thus the German nation must, if the policy is to be made to work, participate in the coalition of the containing nations. That it may be willing to participate, it has been deemed necessary to evoke the sentiment of German "unity", and to cultivate the national patriotism of the Germans even to the point where we have allowed the ideal of the unity of Germany to displace the ideal of the unity of Europe.

THE UNDERLYING assumption, which is implicit though unavowed, has been that since Germany has lost the eastern provinces to the Russians and to a Russian satellite, Poland, German national feeling will naturally be directed against the Soviet Union. Historical experience and the logic of the situation indicate, I believe, that this is a profound miscalculation. For we are encouraging the Germans to want something—namely, national unity—which we cannot give them except by going to war with Russia. Germany cannot have unity, as all Germans must understand unity, except by recovering the lost provinces of eastern Germany. We would have to conquer Russia and Poland in order to restore the eastern provinces to Germany.

But Russia can return them to Germany whenever she decides that an alliance with Germany is a vital Russian interest. This can be done by performing another partition of Poland, an act which the men who signed the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact of 1939 could carry out if they deemed it expedient and necessary. Or if they deemed it inexpedient to partition Poland again, but necessary to enlarge the truncated Reich, they can offer the German nationalists compensation in western Europe and elsewhere for the lost provinces in the east. Just as they gave the Poles the German provinces as compensation for the territory east of the Curzon line, so they could offer Austria to the Germans, perhaps Alsace-Lorraine, perhaps Denmark, perhaps the Netherlands and the mouth of the Rhine.

WE DO NOT need to know exactly what the Soviet Union would offer the Germans for an alliance. It is enough to know that in an auction for the support of the Germans the Russians could offer them great prizes, and that we can offer the Germans absolutely nothing—except some help in rising from squalor and misery and prostration to the position of a fifth rate power living a prosaic and stunted national existence. The idea that we can foster the sentiment of German unity, and make a truncated Germany economically strong, can keep her disarmed, and can use her in the anti-Soviet coalition, is like trying to square the circle. Applied to Germany, the policy of containment is a booby trap, constructed by men who do not understand the politics of power.

THE CONTROLLING fact in the German problem is that by the advance of the Red Army beyond Berlin and because of the annexations which resulted from it, the Soviet Union has destroyed the unity of the Reich and has acquired the power to restore the unity of the Reich. The western nations cannot restore the unity of Germany, and it is therefore suicidal for them to incite the sentiments of unity, and to treat the western portion of Germany as a prospective ally in the operation of the Truman Doctrine. For if Germany is to become allied on either side of the diplomatic conflict, the precedents of history and the logic of the situation tell us that when she is strong enough to be a useful ally to anyone, she will become the ally of Russia. The more we bring what remains of Germany after the dismemberment of the east under the unified control of a German government, the more profitable and the easier it will be for Berlin and Moscow to make a deal and become allied. If Hitler and Stalin, Ribbentrop and Molotov, could make a deal, how can we dare to suppose that a Germany ruled by Communists, Socialists and nationalists would not make a deal?

AND IF we carried the policy to its ultimate end, as Mr. Hoover has asked us to do, and made a separate treaty of peace with western Germany, we should have made a German-Russian alliance even more certain. The German government with which we had made peace would again be a sovereign power: it would have to have at a very minimum the sovereign right of an independent state to have diplomatic agents abroad and to receive them, and to use the diplomatic apparatus of codes, couriers, and agents.

Having made a separate treaty of peace with us, the new central German government would necessarily have to begin negotiations for separate treaties of peace with its eastern neighbors—with Poland, Czechoslovakia and with Russia. She would enter these negotiations, having gotten from us all that she can expect—which is not much and not nearly enough to satisfy a German patriot. The negotiations with the east would offer the great prizes and all manner of temptation. These negotiations would take place with the Red army in eastern Europe and in what had been the eastern provinces of Germany, and as a matter of fact with the Red army in Berlin. Thus Russia, which alone can offer the German nationalists great inducements, would also be in a military position to compel the German nationalists to enter into a deal.

ONCE WE recognized the consequences of the fact that Germany had been dismembered in her eastern provinces, it becomes plain that we cannot use western Germany to contain Russia. It becomes plain, too, that the unity of Germany cannot be restored by the United States. Therefore there can be no German settlement, which is tolerable, by reestablishing the sovereign power of a central German government in a truncated area and dedicated to the unity of Germany. The annexations in the east of Germany demand a radical decentralization of western Germany.

The truncated area will have to be decentralized, not unified, and the German states which are in it will have to take their places within a larger European system and a European economy. Not German unity but European unity, not German self-sufficiency, but European self-sufficiency, not a Germany to contain Russia but a Germany neutralized as between Russia and the west, not the Truman Doctrine but the Marshall Plan, purged of the Truman Doctrine, should be the aims of our German policy.

THESE WILL be sound aims even if we find it impossible to agree with the Russians on a treaty of peace. For we shall have identified ourselves with a policy which opposes the revival of the German power to threaten her neighbors, not with a policy which would place them in a German-Russian nutcracker, would compel them to choose sides for a third world war, and would make their territory the battlefield of that world war and of the enormous civil war which it would surely precipitate.

Though we could not conclude an agreement with the Russians, we should be identified with a policy which, if an agreement could be concluded, would mean the evacuation of the continent, and the restoration of Europe to the Europeans. Thus, as the diplomatic struggle continued, we should stand forth ever more clearly as the champions of the vital interest of all the peoples of Europe.

WE COULD then leave it to the Europeans to decide how much they are willing to have paid in reparations, in concessions and trade agreements, and as ransom, in order to get the Russians to withdraw the Red army. If we were wise, and were more interested in settling the war than in making gestures of our disapproval of the Russians and of communism, we should offer to contribute on our part to the ransom,—if paying ransom will achieve the main objective.

If, nevertheless, the Soviet government will not negotiate an agreement, if the price of a settlement is impossibly high, if the ransom is deliberately set in terms which mean that Russia does not intend to evacuate Europe, the situation will be no more dangerous than it is today. But our energies will be concentrated, not dispersed all over the globe, and the real issues will be much clearer.

Reconstruction Or Chaos

THE REPORT submitted to the United States Government by the 16 nations that participated in the European conference on the Marshall Plan is an extraordinarily significant document.

NOVER

It has ramifications and implications that go far beyond the acute economic crisis which it is primarily designed to overcome.

That would be accomplishment enough. Yet the by-products of the program envisaged in the report may, in the long run, overshadow the immediate objective, vital as that is.

If the program is carried out not only will the present grave danger of economic collapse which threatens Italy, France, Great Britain and other countries be averted, but the door will have been opened to a brighter, happier, more prosperous and more peaceful Europe than has ever before existed. For the end result of the program will be a long step forward in the direction of a truly united Europe.

SUCH A DEVELOPMENT would be of enormous benefit to the sorely stricken peoples of the Old World. It would be a great boon to us, too.

Without a prosperous Europe, our own prosperity can only be a temporary affair. And unless unity and cooperation replace that anarchy and recurrent conflict which have characterized the history of that continent for so many centuries, our own peace will constantly be in jeopardy.

This fact our statesmen clearly realize. In his Harvard address of June 5, Secretary Marshall declared that: "Before the United States can proceed much further in its efforts to alleviate the situation and help start the European world on its way to recovery, there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to the requirements of the situation and the part those countries themselves will take . . ."

"The initiative," said Mr. Marshall "must come from Europe."

THIS SUGGESTION has now been carried out.

The report signed by the 16 nations envisages European recovery as the product of European as well as American efforts.

America's contribution to the recovery program is placed at around 16 billion dollars of a total estimated foreign exchange need by the 16 nations of around 22 billion dollars during the next four years.

This is a large sum. Many Americans, including members of Congress, may deem it too large. It is well to remember, however, that the sum in question represents a sharp scaling down of the original estimate of minimum American aid drawn up by the conferees at Paris.

Certainly, if we are going to help western Europe at all, and it is clearly in our economic and political interest that we do so, our aid must be adequate. Otherwise it will be wasted.

AMERICAN aid, while vital and indispensable to the success of the program does not tell the whole story by any means.

While the United States is engaged in helping western Europe (assuming Congress votes the necessary funds), western Europe will be busily engaged in helping itself as well.

Between them, the 16 nations are now pledged to expand the production of food, coal, steel, electric power, oil refining capacity and merchant tonnage. They are pledged to put their finances in order and integrate their systems of communication. They are also committed to a progressive relaxation of import restrictions.

IN THE LATTER connection one section of the report is of particular importance.

That is the section dealing with economic cooperation and the measures the various countries plan to take to achieve it. A good example is the declaration by the French government of its readiness to "commence negotiations with all European governments who wish to enter a customs union with France and whose national economies are capable of being combined with the French economy in such a way as to make a viable unit."

"The Italian government," the summary goes on to say, "has associated itself with this declaration."

A European customs union, even a customs union of the 16 nations, will not be easy of accomplishment. However, the initiative being shown by France and Italy and the example already set in that connection by Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg represent a great step forward in that direction.

Similarly, European unification will be greatly advanced by the plan to carry out projects for the mutual exploitation of new sources of electric power, including unused hydroelectric resources in the Alps, the brown coal deposits of Germany and volcanic heat in Italy.

It is through such mutual enterprise in the economic sphere that European unity can best be achieved, since it will create bonds of self-interest among the hitherto self-centered and quarreling nations of the Old World.

Should the program envisaged in the 16-nation report fully be carried out—it can only be done with our assistance—it can mark a great milestone in the history of Europe and the world. In our interests and in the interests of the world we cannot afford to have it fail.

Problems Of The Greek Army

ATHENS, GREECE.—Why an army of 138,000 men should not be able to subdue 20,000 guerillas is hard to understand. But even a glimpse of the wild, mountainous country in northern Epirus, Macedonia and Thrace clears up the mystery. That, plus a glimpse of the way in which the Greek army operates today.

Childs

The army has a beautiful table of organization instituted by the British when they trained the Greeks after 1944. The chain of command solemnly passes down from the Defense Council and the Minister of War.

The orders that pass down, however, are rarely capable of being carried out. The Greek army marches right up the hill—or rather rides up as far as possible in trucks—and then marches right down again.

This is not for any lack of courage. In 1940, when they hurled Mussolini's invading army back within the border of Albania, they proved their courage a hundred times over. It was one of the epics of the war.

THE PLAIN fact, however, is that a mechanized army formally organized is helpless against guerillas who can vanish like smoke into mountain retreats, out of sight and out of sound of even the most modern equipment. Greek generals like to plant their artillery on one side of a mountain and lob shells across onto the other side. One general, on being asked the location of the enemy, replied:

"Oh, we are merely firing for morale."

This business of morale explains a lot about the Greek army. The firing and the marching and the ambitious beginnings of an air force are related to the morale of the politicians in Athens. The problem of morale is right here in the capital.

The pressure on the American aid mission to increase the army is very great. The objective of Minister of War George Stratos, a carryover from the previous government, is 200,000 men. Beginning with his first meeting with the Greek General Staff, Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, chief of the military side of the mission, was confronted with demands for new material and more men.

The first request was for anti-aircraft guns. Livesay pointed out that the rebels had no planes and, therefore, antiaircraft protection seemed a little superfluous. A week later came a request equally far-fetched. Finally, Livesay asked the staff to coordinate their needs. Not long afterward the plan for an increase to 200,000 was presented to him, and when he declined to pass this on to Washington, the Greeks appealed over his head.

CERTAINLY some changes are necessary, and they will cost money. Thus 20,000 troops who have served for six to seven years are being replaced by 20,000 men just conscripted into the army. To train and equip these new recruits will cost about eight million dollars. Others in the army for long periods also must be replaced.

This work is going forward. Already 13 shiploads of military material have arrived and the material has been unloaded at the nearby port of Piraeus.

There are equally important changes which the Greek government thus far seems unable to make. A large proportion of the 138,000 men in the army are used to protect towns in and near the rebel territory. Any order to remove these troops results in immediate political pressure and the order is rescinded.

A constant source of grumbling among the troops is the belief that some are favored over others and allowed to stay safely in the villages and the towns. Although Stratos denied that there is any politics in the army, American observers believe otherwise.

Livesay's position is a curious one. Under the terms of the Aid Act he can do little more than observe and, perhaps, give his advice if it is asked. The shadow of Greek sovereignty lies between him and the men he deals with. Yet we are paying the bill—$102,000 a day to feed 196,000 Greeks in the army, the navy, the gendarmerie and the civil police.

They are being given a diet that averages 3700 calories a day, far above that of the population in general and fantastically more than that of the pitiful refugees who have fled from rebel terrorism. The danger is that the army will come more and more to occupy a favored position. If pressure is not resisted, it will grow at the expense of reconstruction and rehabilitation. It may or may not subdue the guerillas. But in a time of crisis this favored army might become a weapon for an ambitious dictator of the type Greece has known before.

Direct Air Travel To Santiago, Chile, To Start Tuesday

Direct air travel—without changing planes—between Washington and Santiago, Chile, will be inaugurated Tuesday by Peruvian International Airways, it was announced yesterday.

Pioneer flight, with Gen. Armando Revoredo, Air Minister of Peru, and Gen. Harold L. George, president of PIA, aboard, is scheduled to arrive at National Airport Sunday at 8:30 a. m. Several South American newspaper correspondents will also make the trip.

A PIA official disclosed the flight will cover 5600 air miles in "about 27½ hours" Itinerary includes Santiago, Lima, Panama, Havana, Washington and New York.

Miller Junior High Seeks Funds for 'Overflow' Site

The Board of Education is asking $817,754 to complete the Miller Junior High School project—and $200,000 to buy a site to relieve overcrowding at the still unbuilt school.

This request, puzzling on the surface, comes from the board's belief that the estimated junior high school population in the Miller School area will be 2500 within three or four years, and the capacity of Miller will be 1000.

The Miller School is to be built near 49th st. and Washington pl. ne. Already, $990,427 has been appropriated for the project. Miller is planned to take the double shift load off Browne Junior High at 24th and Benning rd. ne. The project is to be advertised for bids next month.

Site of the school to relieve overcrowding at Miller will be near 49th and Sheriff rd. ne. Also in the budget requests for Miller is $84,000 for equipping the building, and money also is asked to hire its personnel by the middle of the next school year.

Other details of what the budget estimates propose for individual schools follow:

McKinley Senior High—The board asked $27,500 for equipping the machine shop, and $35,000 to install movable bleachers in the gymnasium to increase seating capacity by 1000 persons.

Marshall Heights section—Budget requests include $60,000 to buy a site for a future 16-room elementary school building.

Merritt School—A fund of $75,000 was asked to buy a site near 49th and Hayes sts. ne. that will serve both as a playground for the present temporary Merritt Elementary School, built during the recent war, and as a site for a permanent future 24-room replacement building.

Monroe School — See Bruce School. For Monroe the budget requests also include money to hire a clerk next September.

Montgomery School—New requests call for $439,280 to finish the proposed 16-room Montgomery School near New Jersey ave. and P st. nw. Earlier appropriations for the project total $160,720, and it is to be advertised for bids early next year.

Morse School—See Montgomery.

Mott School—$35,000 asked to buy nearby recreation space from the National Capital Housing Authority.

Nalle School—The finishing money, $164,000, was asked to go with $500,000 earlier appropriated for the new 24-room Nalle School near East Capitol st. and Benning rd. It would take care of 1000 pupils, many from new housing projects in the area. It would also relieve double-shifting at the Smothers School, a mile away. There were 301 pupils in 10 of Smothers' 24 classes, on part time last year. The Nalle project is to be advertised for bids next month.

For Eight-Room Addition

Payne School—$250,000 asked to start building an eight-room addition to the Payne School at a total cost of $498,000. The city has $14,940 to plan the project this year. Also requested was $28,000 to equip the addition, and funds for extra personnel.

Patterson—Money was asked for two new elementary school sites to take the expected future overcapacity load off Patterson School on South Capitol st. between Danbury and Elmira sts. sw. One site would be in the vicinity of Oxon Run ave. and Stanton rd. se., about a mile from Patterson. A total of $19,000 was asked for the two sites.

Phelps Vocational High—Twenty thousand one hundred dollars asked for new equipment for the drafting, print, plumbing, paint and tailoring shops, and another $1000 for buying agricultural equipment, including tractor, soil spreader lime sower, sprayer, soil heating sets, and a growing and finishing battery. Also requested was $3400 to hire a teacher of radio.

Randall Junior High—With bids already advertised for a $450,000 addition, the new budget requests called only for additional custodial help for the expanded plant.

Griffith's Birth of a Notion

Hollywood, Sept. 24.—D. W. Griffith and Sid Skolsky are writing a "Cavalcade of the Movies." If they include only a fraction of what D. W. Griffith did for pictures, it should be great. Largely because of him, we have our present industry. At least a dozen prominent people have promised Griffith that they would do a picture based on his life. Let's hope this is it. If ever a man has been neglected by an industry that owes him its life, it's D. W. ("Birth of a Nation") Griffith.

Jane Powell—and not Kathryn Grayson—will play the lead in "The Red Mill," with John Raitt . . . Lucille Ball is back in town and asking for her Metro release. This time, I hope she gets it. She did a whale of a job back East in "Dream Girl"; and she always has been good in pictures. She hasn't had a part at Metro since she resigned with that studio a year ago.

Metro would like to buy "Ivory Tower," a play tried out in Westport, Conn., last summer, for Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn. The story concerns a playwright and a Congresswoman. I presume Katy would base her characterization on Helen Gahagan Douglas' life . . . Igor Gorin, whose records sell like hot cakes, may do a picture here before starting his concert tour this winter. He's one of our finest and most popular baritones.

Long Way From Home

Herb Sterne, the publicist who filled our newspapers with stories about Susan Peters and "Sign of the Ram," has been caught in the Columbia studio purge. He did the work of three men before being fired. Susan called the studio head about the matter, but was told by him, "I have more important things to get ulcers about than this." But it's really a break for Herb. He'll be off for Tahiti in October to write that book he has been promising to do for many years. He'll be gone at least six months.

Singapore Liberated ... Old Can of Film Falls Off Shelf

By Richard L. Coe

"YAH KNOW," said Mogul Mite, sticking his 75-buck shoes on his mahogany desk, "nobody's made a pitcha about the Mysterious East since we—or was it the British?—freed Singapore."

"Boss, that's a terrific idea. If we hurry we can get it into Keith's Washington on September 24 and clean up."

"Yeah. Yew know. One of those things wid plenty atmosphere—foreigners and all that. Good clean American mixed up wida buncha punks."

"Boss, that's terrific. It could be about jools. Pools 'n' all that 'n' a beautiful dame. The guy could go prowlin' around in the dark streets 'n' get ina fight."

"Yeah. We could modernize it, too. Yuh know all that psychological stuff about the mind. Make the babe go off her nut—war nerves, bombing or stuff."

"Boss, that's terrific. Give the dame amnesia so she'll forget the guy 'n' marry somebody else. What a finish! Keep 'em on the edge a their seats wonderin' if she'll go back to the guy or stick it out with the husband."

"Now you're wakin' up. Combine that stuff about the jools and the dame's forgettin' who she is. It's a cinch."

"Boss, that's terrific. That Ava Gardner dame would be a smash. Lookin' mysterious, wid nobody ever sure whether she's off her nut or playin' the guy for a sucker to get the polls herself."

"She'll do fine. Then for the guy we'll have to get a breezy type. Like Fred MacMurray. Matter of fack, I think he's on the payroll. Fix the guy fer him."

"Boss, that's terrific. He's a good fast talker and could be smugglin' the jools to get outa that stoopid tax stuff. Yon know—foreigners tryin' to keep the guy from gettin' the honest loot he's risked his life for."

It's Always Worked

"Comedy, though. We gotta get some laughs. Toss in a coupla hick tourists, society dame 'n' henpecked husband. Spring Byington, Porter Hall types."

"Boss, that's terrific. We got box office in this thing. Gee, it it wasn't for Hope 'n' Crosby we could call it 'The Road to Singapore'."

"Too long. Just call it 'Singapore.' Get a packa good background shots 'n' start rollin'. The publick's liked it before 'n' they'll like it again.

"Boss, that's terrific."

"Well, I think I'll head up to Palm Springs for a coupla weeks. It's been a tough aftanoon."

"It sure has."

ALSO ON KEITH'S screen with "Singapore"—which really made it into a well-filled house yesterday—is a travel short on Caribbean islands, with Calypso music; a short devoted to Frankie Carle's orchestra, and a Disney adventure with Donald Duck, who has a tough time with one of those rubber mattresses.

IN BALTIMORE'S Ford Theater this week is "Command Decision," which the Sun's Donald Kirkley says "will be compared, and not unfavorably, with 'Journey's End' and 'What Price Glory?'" . . . The play is William Wister Haines' adaptation of his best-selling novel, which concerned an overseas command and its brass-hat troubles. . . . Kermit Bloomgarden, Kirkley reports, has given it a splendid production with Paul Kelly, Jay Fassett and Paul McGrath heading the cast. . . . The play opens in New York next week. . . . Yes, Ford's has Saturday matinees.

THIS WEEK'S NEW bills aren't so numerous as promised . . . The Warner is holding "Life With Father" for a third week . . . "Desert Fury" stays a second at the Palace . . . "Mother Wore Tights" returns to F st. at the Columbia . . . So, too, after six years, does "Bad Men of Missouri," which brings Dennis Morgan, Jane Wyman, Faye Emerson Roosevelt and Wayne Morris back to the Metropolitan . . . Which means the new ones are: "The Unfinished Dance" at the Capitol, this morning; "Monsieur Verdoux," at the Pix and four K-B neighborhoods tomorrow, and "The Adventuress," bringing Deborah Kerr to the Hippodrome Saturday.

ANNA MAY WONG is another of our town's visitors . . . The screen star, a Los Angeles native, will be drawing her old fans to a fashion show at the Statler Friday afternoon at 2:30 . . . Hecht's is her sponsor and you get tickets from them . . . We always enjoyed her slinky Chinese charm and will try to look her up for you . . . Wonder why they didn't toss her into "Singapore."

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews Margaret O'Brien, Cyd Charisse and newcomer Karin Booth in the Capitol's "The Unfinished Dance."

"SINGAPORE." Universal-International picturization of a screenplay by Seton I. Miller and Robert Thoeren. Produced by Jerry Bresler. Directed by John Brahm. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

AFL to Vote Kitty of 2 Millions To Beat Labor Act Supporters

By Drew Pearson

A two-million-dollar kitty will be voted at the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor October 6 to launch the AFL's campaign to defeat members of Congress who supported the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

Question troubling AFL leaders is how to spend the money without violating the Taft-Hartley Act which prohibits a labor union from using union dues for political activity. Here is how AFL moguls plan to do it:

The two million dollars will be spent in a so-called press and radio "educational program" to accquaint the American public with the great strides made by labor and industry under the Wagner Act, now supplanted by the restrictive Taft-Hartley Act.

Meanwhile, augmenting this national publicity drive, the AFL will send speakers into the districts of every Congressman who supported the Taft-Hartley bill to stump against him for reelection. The expenses of these stump speakers will be financed entirely by voluntary collections taken up at meetings where the speakers appear.

U. S. Worries Over Italy

Behind Secretary Marshall's urgent demands that a special session of Congress be called to vote relief funds for Europe are some triple-urgent cables received from his Ambassador in Rome, James C. Dunn, warning that Communist revolt is imminent.

Dunn

The De Gasperi government in Italy was formed with no Communists represented in the cabinet. And although it was kept a strict diplomatic secret, this was done on the specific recommendation of the American Embassy. Because of this the entire prestige of the United States is staked on keeping the De Gasperi government in power.

Meanwhile, a top secret United States Army Intelligence report gives startling details of the Communist plan to seize Italy. For some time, United States Intelligence agents have been working to ferret out the underground network of Communists which the Russians have carefully planted to take over Italy at the appropriate time. Presumably this would be when United States troops are withdrawn—on December 15—and when the Italian food and fuel crisis reaches the winter climax.

This column has been able to obtain a copy of the secret United States Intelligence report and pertinent parts of it follows:

The partisan railway police (in Bologna) has at its disposal 1300 men, all armed with tommyguns and pistols. The corps is also equipped with heavy weapons kept at the commands, five trucks, two autos and several motorcycles. Ildebrando Brighetti, alias Brando, is commander of the railway police. He is in a position to dispose of 70 motor vehicles of the FF.SS autopark as well as 80 motor vehicles of the UNRRA autopark."

"The provincial military commander of Bologna is thought to be Ilio Barontini and the probable chief of staff, Gen. Francesco Zani. Dozza, Bottonelli, Betti, Gianquinto Gorghesi and Verenne Grazia belong to the provincial military command with assignments not yet specified. Two Russian officers, one of whom lives with Dozza and the other with Colombi, are thought to carry on consultative functions in the provincial command.

"Bologna mobilization center (for the Communist revolt) is the city railway police headquarters. Arms and ammunition depots are at the headquarters of the railway police. Units include:

"'Red Star' Brigade. Commander Marino Mongiori, residing at Borgo Panigala.

"Santa Justa Brigade. Commander Romeo Galli, residing at Sasso Marconi.

"'Paolo' Brigade. Commander Golinelli, residing at Imola.

"There are understood to be three other brigades: 'Irma Bandiera,' 'Sixty-second Garibaldi,' 'Justice and Liberty.'

Local Officials and Communists

"The Garibaldi brigades are formations which were already active during the period of the partisan fight and which the several commanders have held spiritually united. They are nil as a fighting force, but in case of success of the G. A. P. front line assault groups, they would immediately assemble until they reached a very large number (about 10,000 men), as if for a regular mobilization. They are made up largely of manual laborers and agricultural workers in general, easy to disperse in case of government success, but fierce and combative in case of failure.

"The Bologna provincial command has at its disposal an information service presided over by Prof. Paolo Fortunati, assessor at the tax office, assisted by the Carabinieri Maj. Armando Silvini, commander of the communal tax investigation squad.

"Information is therefore gathered under the cloak of investigations regarding the communal tax services.

"As the assessor attached to the personnel of the Bologna Commune is the Communist, Betti, brother-in-law of Mayor Dozza, the latter, by timely transfers among the personnel, has placed the Office of Identification Cards and the Office of Food Rationing in charge of absolutely trusted personnel so as to be able to issue identification cards and ration cards to their own elements, especially Slavs sent by the Tito organization. These elements are thus in a position to conceal themselves and obtain work as Italians.

"In Modena Province, at the moment of insurrection the Mountain and Flatlands headquarters will fuse into a single command under the orders of the Mayor of Pavullo, Mario Ricci, who will have as his lieutenant the present commander of the Sixty-fifth G. A. P., Casalini Ivo. Secondo Benedetti will remain Ricci's chief of staff, Olindo Cremaschi political commissioner of the joint command, and the Mayor of Modena, Corassori, will take charge of liaison.

"In Reggio Emilia Province, the groups probably have, all told, 10 small antitank guns, 20 45-mm. mortars, 150 Panzerfaust, 120 light machine guns, a great many hand bombs and about 100 antitank mines.

"Reggio is one of the largest centers of the semimilitary movement. Moreover, the recent seizure of a full-sized arsenal of automatic weapons made by Reggio carabinieri confirms this assertion."

Highway Budget Includes Funds to Speed 3 Projects

Funds to speed construction of three major District highway projects are being asked in the Highway Department's 1949 budget.

The budget, which is only $11,000 more than the current year's appropriation, calls for appropriation of $2,800,000 in District funds to match Federal money on these construction projects:

The twin highway bridges spanning the Potomac, which are to replace the existing Highway Bridge; construction of the Dupont Circle underpass, and the elevated extension of K st. nw, from Rock Creek to Key Bridge.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, head of the Highway Department, estimated spending at Dupont Circle will be at a $200,000 monthly rate after work begins next spring. He predicts the work will have advanced to the stage where streetcars will be passing under the circle by the summer of next year, although automobile traffic still will need to use the surface circle.

Augmenting work on the K street elevated is widening of Canal rd. nw., from Key Bridge to Foxhall rd., at a cost of $150,000. The Highway Department also is asking funds to widen and straighten 14th st. nw. between W and Harvard sts., estimated to cost $150,000.

Other construction proposals include a four-lane roadway on 4th st. nw. between College st. and Harvard st. on a relocated line and grade, replacing a two-lane macadam pavement; spending $50,000 to start a project planned to bring Military rd. nw. from 27th st., east to Missouri ave. into the Fort Drive highway belt; repaving of 49th st. ne., between Sheriff rd. and Eastern ave., and similar improvement of Weaver st. nw. from Loughboro rd. to MacArthur blvd.

Total asked for new construction in the 1949 budget is $5,250,000, as compared with a $5,285,000 appropriation for 1948. The total budget contains requests for $7,204,000 of District funds during the next fiscal year, as compared with the current appropriation of $7,193,000. District highway projects also will be aided by matching Federal funds under the Federal aid legislation.

The department wants to spend $400,000 to pave new streets, another $400,000 to surface and repave existing pavement which has been worn out with use, and $150,000 to reclaim old macadam roadways by constructing curbs and gutters.

Also requested was a revolving fund of $70,000 to speed snow removal work and to permit the District Commissioners to act in emergency situations "created by the elements," and $25,000 for additional snow removal equipment.

The department is asking $1,439,935 for street and bridge maintenance during 1949, as compared with $1,474,851 appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Dredge Permit Sought

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Army Engineers' office here announced today the receipt of an application for permission to construct jetties and dredge a channel in Herring Bay and Red Lion pond near Fairhaven, Anne Arundel County. The permit was sought by Joseph E. Rose of Washington, D. C.

Rain Retards Attendance at Maryland Fair

La Plata, Md., Sept. 24—The annual Charles County Fair opened here today, but rain kept the opening crowd small.

Today was scheduled as "Sportsmen's Day." Biggest event of the fair comes on Friday, when the cattle judging is to be held.

Featured events today were trap shooting, judging the work of homemakers and hobbyists. Tomorrow, demonstration of 4-H Club work will be featured.

Over a hundred head of Aberdeen Angus shorthorn and Hereford cattle already have arrived at the fair grounds from sections all over southern Maryland. Friday, livestock day, will be given over entirely to judging the animals.

Utility Stock Issue Approved by Virginia

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24.—The Virginia State Corporation Commission yesterday approved the application of the Annandale Water Co. to issue 250 shares of stock with a par value of $100.

More than half will be used for plant construction and operating funds.

The Commission also ordered a hearing November 24 on the application of the Alexandria, Barcroft, & Washington Transit Co. to provide bus service between Alexandria and Franconia.

Six-Year Era Of Easy Sales Viewed at End

By S. Oliver Goodman

Rapid and far reaching changes in distribution methods are ahead in the retail and wholesale business, Vergil D. Reed predicted yesterday.

Reed, associate director of research of J. Walter Thompson Co., advertising agency, addressed a luncheon session yesterday of the local Women's Advertising Club in the Washington Hotel.

"The days of presents, bribes and tips to retailers and their clerks for the privilege of buying are over," Reed declared. "The retailer is again the wooer instead of the wooed. The consumer's attitude runs the gamut from coyness to vindicative wrath and getting back into her graces and confidence will be no easy matter . . ."

Wholesalers, like retailers, have not had a selling job for the last six years, he pointed out. They have been merely buyers, with customers waiting to grab any goods available.

With the return of competitive selling, Reed said, the necessity for aggressive merchandising is fast arriving. Wholesalers must do extensive marketing research, he added, and give intelligent assistance to retailers. More attention must be given to selection, training and supervision of salesmen. Better lighting, floors, displays, shelving and machines are "musts." Greater appreciation of branded and advertised merchandise is at hand.

"One hears much of late," said Reed, "about a revolution in distribution. In my opinion there will be no revolution—but evolution is, and will be, so rapid and far-reaching that only the excellent will prosper. The good will survive. The unfit will be merely astonished at the speed with which the trends and currents suck them under and wash them out."

KEY PROBLEM: Key to Europe's recovery is increased production of coal from Ruhr mines, in opinion of M. S. Szymczak, member of the Federal Reserve System board of governors. Addressing local control of Controllers Institute of America Tuesday night in Carlton Hotel, Szymczak pointed out that the best day's output for Ruhr coal has been 244,000 metric tons compared with average daily output of some 440,000 tons before the war. If the "Battle of the Ruhr" can be won, he predicted a stronger impetus will be given to European recovery than would result from the application of much greater assistance to less crucial areas.

VALUE OF COURSES: Value of American Institute of Banking courses was stressed last night by Miss Alice Whitton in an address before the women's committee of the Washington chapter in Mayflower Hotel. Even for those girls now working in banks but who have marriage in mind, she said, banking education will help them become better wives. It will "help them in budgeting, keeping household accounts straight, orderliness and so on." Miss Whitton is cashier and trust officer of the Burke & Herbert Bank & Trust Co. of Alexandria, Va. Miss Helen R. Dwyer, women's committee chairman, presided at the dinner meeting.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Gerry W. Hawes, jr., former Washington district sales manager for American Airlines, has been named central regional director of State affairs with headquarters in Chicago . . . Albert L. Thompson, jr., of Greensboro, N. C., will move to Washington to represent the Tomlinson's furniture firm in this sales region . . . Webster Bartram, formerly of Pan American World Airways, has been apointed director of news bureau of Colonial Airlines, Inc.

REVENUES GAIN: Capital Airlines (formerly known as Pennsylvania-Central Airlines) yesterday reported for August an operating profit of $16,585. Net loss after deductions for fixed charges was $38,330. President C. Bedell Monro noted that passenger traffic revenue last month totaled $1,423,513, against $1,241,780 in July. Gross revenues were $1,740,297 vs. $1,582,974 in July. August operating expenses were $1,723,711, against $1,782,879 in previous month.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP).—After selling off sharply in the first hour, grains staged a quiet but steady upturn on the Board of Trade today. The rally left corn generally ahead of the preceding close, but both wheat and oats ended lower than yesterday.

Wheat was down as much as 9 cents, corn 6 cents and oats 3 cents at one time when heavy selling from commission houses caught the market without commercial support. Trading was heavy during this sell-off, but for the rest of the day was of only moderate volume.

Wheat closed 2¼ to 4, December 2.66⅜@2.67¼; corn was ½ lower to ¼ higher, December 2.17@2.17½, and oats were ⅝ to 1¼ lower, December 1.05⅞@1.05¾.

All spreads exhibited a nervous undertone as the grain trade watched Washington developments on the food situation. Reports high domestic prices and suggestions that margins be pared all appeared to be a part of a general picture undergoing thrashing out in the Nation's Capital.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular today, closing 75 cents a bale lower to 65 higher. Mill buying against textile sales was impressive and at one time rallied the market to gains of almost $1 a bale.

The upturns, however, encouraged increased hedge selling against the expanding movement of the new crop. There was considerable liquidation in nearby October futures, prior to first notice day Thursday.

Gaming Cases Transferred to Montgomery

Trial of 20 St. Mary's County (Md). gambling cases has been transferred to Montgomery County at request of the prosecution.

Associate Judge John B. Gray, jr., of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, ordered transfer of the cases which arose from a court-sponsored crackdown on slot machines in St. Marys. State's Attorney C. Henry Camalier had declared it was impossible to obtain "fair and impartial" trials in St. Marys.

"Some members of the jury panel are simply not willing to convict on the most incontrovertible proof," Judge Gray said when he issued the transfer order late Tuesday night.

Court officials in Montgomery said yesterday the cases would normally be heard in the November term of court. They added, however, there was a possibility the cases might be moved forward.

Twenty-five indictments naming 24 defendants were returned by the recalled March grand jury in St. Marys several weeks ago after the court insisted they investigate operation of slot machines.

Three cases have been tried at the current term of St. Marys Circuit Court. Two of them resulted in hung juries and the third resulted Tuesday night in a $300 fine being imposed on John King of Lexington Park on six counts.

The remaining two of the 25 cases will be continued in St. Marys Court.

Judge Gray said the court had decided against a defense counsel suggestion to remove the trials to Anne Arundel County on the ground Anne Arundel has "a division of public opinion liable to produce exactly what has happened in this county."

Germans Mistreat Refugees, Must Live Their Life

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP).—Members of a German family convicted of mistreating refugees billeted in their home have been sentenced by a German official to spend four weeks in a refugee camp, the United States newspaper Stars and Stripes reported today.

The unsual punishment was meted by Willy Bettinger, State refugee commissioner for Wuerttemberg-Baden to Wilhelm Rapp, a baker, and his wife and two daughters.

"They will now have the opportunity to experience the life of the refugee at first hand," commented Bettinger. His sentence was approved by American Military Government.

Trial of Officers Booked at Elkton

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 24 (AP).—Trial of State Trooper John J. Harbaugh and Wicomico County jailer John W. Turner on manslaughter charges has been set for November 19 in the Second Judical Circuit Court at Elkton, State's Attorney Rex A. Taylor announced today.

The officers were granted a change of venue September 18 when they pleaded they could not obtain a fair trial on the Eastern Shore because publicity "had put the public in a vengeful mood."

Harbaugh and Turner were indicted for manslaughter in the July 27 death of Milton H. Jones, 31-year-old Salisbury automobile dealer. Jones died in the Peninsula General Hospital several hours after a scuffle at the jail.

Five Jap Officers Die on Gallows

Guam, Sept. 24 (INS).—Five Japanese officers, including Lieutenant General Yoshio Tachibana, were executed by hanging today on Guam for war crimes.

The Japanese officers were convicted recently by a military court on charges of murder and cannibalism. The crimes were perpetrated upon American war prisoners on Guam and other Pacific islands.

Motorists in France To Lose Gas Ration

Paris, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The cabinet decided today to cut out entirely the 4.4 gallons monthly gasoline ration for motorists and to slash priority allocations 40 per cent.

The cabinet said motorcyclists could have 1.1 gallons of gas a month, but that nonpriority car drivers would get none.

Auto Loan Firm Inquiry Flags Six

The corporation counsel's office is examining applications of six persons with criminal records for auto loan company licenses.

The records were disclosed by a police investigation of 25 applicants for auto loan licenses, Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise revealed yesterday. A police report on the inquiry recommended that only one of the six applicants be denied a license because of his record.

Acting Corporation Counsel Chester Gray who assigned Wise to study the individual cases said: "The criminal records will be given careful notice in our office."

The record of the one applicant challenged by police included three arrests on narcotics chargese, a jail sentence in Pennsylvania for an undisclosed crime, liquor law violations here. He also had a record with the FBI, the nature of which was withheld, Wise stated.

None of the five other applicants with "records" had committed serious or recent crimes, it was explained. Their records included:

An arrest on a bribery charge in 1936.

Conviction for simple assault in 1931.

Conviction for assault in 1940.

Conviction for disorderly conduct in 1935.

Conviction for conspiracy in 1930 and for liquor tax law violation in 1938.

But Need Rain

Farm Crops In Maryland 'Very Good'

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—Last week was "very good" for farm operations in Maryland and in the southern part of the State the tobacco crop improved after late August rains, the Weather Bureau reported today.

More rain, however, is needed in most areas for sowing winter grains, the bureau said in its weekly crop review. It noted that while soil moisture is ample in most sections "wells and streams are becoming low."

Truck crops and gardens in Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties were "mostly good," the review said. "Cutting corn was well along but picking has not started." Tomatoes there are decreasing in supply, late sweet corn is coming in "but is wormy," fall apples are being picked while later varieties of apples and Kieffer pears are ripening.

Corn in the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula "averages only fair," with "about 50 per cent put in shock or silage." Sugar corn and tomatoes are fast decreasing in quantity. Late apples are being picked but "the crop is just fair."

Corn is about half cut and some has been picked in southern counties, and cutting has started in all northern counties. The crop varies from fair to good, the review said.

Greenbelt Council to Name Mayor

Election of a mayor and airing of charges against Town Manager James C. Gobbel by former Mayor George Bauer will be the principal items before the newly-elected Greenbelt (Md.) Town Council at its initial meeting Monday.

Gobbel

Slated to be inducted at the organization meeting at 7:30 p. m. in the town offices are Councilmen Thomas J. Canning, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Harrington, Frank J. Lastner, David M. Granahan and Allen D. Morrison.

Canning was elected in the regular election September 16, while the others were chosen in the special runoff election Tuesday. A mayor will be elected from among the councilmen.

Town interest is centered on the charges against Gobbel, who said yesterday he would attend the meeting to demand that an immediate investigation be opened.

Withdraws From Race

Bauer, who has accused the town manager of illegal salary expenditures, withdrew from the council race because he said he wished to "be free of political implications" when he pressed his charges against the town manager.

Gobbel, who denied the former mayor's charges, said he "not only would welcome the investigation, but would demand it."

Meanwhile, the five newly elected councilmen yesterday made it clear that they had entered the race as independents, and were not officially indorsed by the committee for beter government, with whom all five had been identified in newspaper stories.

All the councilmen said they welcomed the support of the committee along with others who voted for them, but they emphasized that they did not constitute a "slate" forwarded by any organization.

A spokesman for the Committee for Better Government yesterday said his organization had never officially indorsed the five candidates, but said that CBG members, as individuals, had worked toward their election after they were named on a five-man "slate" proposed by a group of 150 petitioners.

He said the committee actually had never been moulded into a formal organization, but simply consisted of a group of citizens working together in the interest of the same campaign issues.

Morrison, who will begin his sixth consecutive term on the council Monday, said he favored a plan under which present tenants can buytheir homes, but said he would indorse "any program under which that can be made feasible."

The new councilmen indicated similar views on operation of the town's cooperative stores, which figured as one of the major issues in the campaign. All favor retention of a lease under which the cooperative stores are protected from competition within half a mile radius of the town's shopping center.

Russians Charge Anglo-Saxon Plot In East Europe

Moscow, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The New Times charged today that Anglo-American diplomats and embassies are carrying out conspiratorial underground activity in the countries of eastern Europe.

"Open diplomatic pressure upon the countries of new democracy does not bring the Anglo-Saxon politicians the desired success," New Times said. "They are taking recourse ever more frequently in hidden conspiratorial activity of the darkest character."

The FIRST CUSTOMER-OWNED DEPARTMENT STORE in the U. S.

IS NOW UNDER WAY . . .

Architect's sketch of the E. A. Filene Co-op Department Store now under construction at Shirlington Business Center, Arlington, Va., which is expected to be completed early in 1948.

E. A. FILENE CO-OP STORE

. . . The late E. A. Filene of Boston, one of America's leading merchants and philanthropists, founded the Consumer Distribution Corporation, which is now planning a chain of consumer-owner Department Stores.

. . . The Filene Co-op Department Store at Shirlington, Arlington, Va., will be the first of these stores.

. . . Co-ops in Washington, including the newly planned Filene Co-op Department Store, make possible:

- A reduction in the cost of living
- A guarantee of quality
- A return on patronage and investment
- A democratic ownership—one vote to each member
- A membership and patronage open to all persons in the community

TODAY 85,000 persons in the Greater Washington Area share in the benefits of cooperative ownership. These Co-ops are open to members, patronage and use by all the 1,300,000 consumers in this area.

Health, hospitalization, housing, credit, insurance needs may be met through membership in Co-ops. Groceries, gasoline and electrical appliances may be bought by anyone at stores owned by the customers—and Washington radio listeners now have the opportunity to own a cooperative radio station—WCFM.

MacPhail Will Quit as Yankee Boss

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—California U. thinks it has a Chinaman's chance to beat Navy Saturday and is happy about the whole thing . . . 180-pound George Fong, from San Francisco's Chinatown is the new sensation of the California backfield after breaking away inside tackle for 40 yards and a touchdown against Santa Clara last week . . . Excuse, if I call him a fast guy with a buck . . . If Jackie Robinson were playing with the Yankees instead of Brooklyn, he wouldn't get permission to join a professional basketball team. Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees declares that his own baseball career was cut short by five years because of the pounding his feet took on basketball floors . . . Georgie Abrams has been matched to fight Freddie Apostoli in San Francisco, which will be no new experience for either man. While in the Navy in the Pacific on tour with other athletes, they fought each other almost nightly . . . The sale of Outfielder Joe Grace by the Nats to the Pirates at the $10,000 waiver price was readily approved by Manager Ossie Bluege. Grace was grumbling that Bluege wasn't playing him enough . . . Barney Poole, Army's great end of last year, who has played six years of varsity football, is now playing for Mississippi where he is a sophomore. His wartime record in football isn't being held against him.

POVICH

ERNIE CASE, the UCLA All-American of last year who was supposed to be the big shot of the Baltimore Colts and isn't, has complained to Los Angeles friends that Coach Cecil Isbell has made him change styles . . . Navy Coach Tom Hamilton treasures a letter he got from one of the fans who attended the last Army-Navy game. It complimented the Navy team on "the fighting spirit you instilled" and was signed, "Harry S. Truman" . . . Gil Coan's impressive hitting since joining the Nats from Chattanooga indicates that Clark Griffith will trade either Buddy Lewis or Stan Spence before the 1948 season opens . . . Coan won't take spring training in Florida with the Nats. He'll work out with the Duke University team at Durham, N. C., because his feet are allergic to Florida's sandy soil . . . Bobby Locke, the South African golf pro who won 7 of the 15 tournaments he entered in the United States, will go home this month with $24,000 in prize money . . . Frank Wickhorst, ousted as California's head football coach at the end of last season, moved quickly into a better job. He's Director of Personnel for the Henry Kaiser industries at Berkeley, Calif. . . . Eddie Prokop, New York Yankee backfield man, is called the best pass-defense man in the league by Ray Flaherty, his coach.

NAVY COACHES tell how they missed out on Doc Blanchard who was set to enter the Naval Academy three years ago, but couldn't qualify because his vision didn't meet the strict requirements . . . West Point also ended up with Glenn Davis when Navy, too, was bidding for him. But Army had to provide two appointments for the Davis family. His mother insisted Glenn's twin brother must go to the same school . . . Herman Wedemeyer, great ball-carrier of the St. Mary's Gaels, missed a touchdown in last Saturday's game with Portland after breaking through the line into the clear. He had to stop on the 20-yard line to adjust his helmet which had fallen over his eyes, and was tackled from behind . . . As soon as the World Series is over, Clark Griffith will announce that there will be no change in the management of the Washington club for 1948 . . . Except for the Browns of 1944, the Yankees and Dodgers of this season could be called the weakest pennant winners of the last two decades . . . Managers Bucky Harris and Burt Shotton are both deserving of "Manager of The Year" awards . . . the Dodgers will have the best catching in the 1947 World Series, but that would seem to summarize their advantages.

THE ONLY SCOUTING report California owns on the Navy team was prepared by a former Navy man, who, paradoxically is not fond of California . . . Frank Wickhorst turned in an exhaustive report on Navy in the Army game last year, just before he was fired as Cal's Coach . . . Jimmy Jones, trainer of Armed in Saturday's match race with Assault, actually is touting his horse. "Bet him win and place," says Jones with a wink . . . He points out that neither horse has any idea he is running for a $100,000 winner-take-all purse, and on Saturday morning will get his oats and hay just as if nothing important was on the schedule . . . For the first time in years, the Washington Baseball Club is in the market for catching talent with good catchers the scarcest article in baseball . . . Red Ruffing's best friends, who point out that he is 42, has been getting his ears pinned back regularly, and doesn't need the money, are urging him to quit pitching and retire . . . At a time when Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers is being voted the most valuable rookie of the year award, it is revealed that the Brooklyn Club contracted to pay him only $5000 for 1947, the minimum salary that can be given any big league player.

Coach Thinks They Can Do It

Villanova Out to End Army's Undefeated Streak Saturday

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP).—Villanova's Wildcats, smarting under four successive trouncings by Army's great wartime football machine, took stock of themselves today and optimistically looked forward to ending the Cadets' 28-game unbeaten streak Saturday at West Point.

That confidence bloomed from Coach Jordan Olivar on down even though the Cadets rolled up 199 points to Villanova's none during the four-year span starting in 1943. The scores were 27-0, 83-0, 54-0 and 35-0.

"Sure, I'm more confident," Olivar explained, "but we don't have anything we didn't have last year. We'll use the same boys but they'll have the benefit of that one year of experience—a year of playing as a unit, the first unit I've even had at Villanova."

What Olivar neglected to mention but what was probably in his mind is that he'll send a veteran outfit—which whipped the Merchant Marine Academy of Kings Point, N. Y., 60-0 last Saturday—against a team weakened by the loss of practically all of its wartime stars including Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard.

"This is the most important game of my playing or coaching career," said Olivar. "It will mean much to the team and to the school if we can break Army's unbeaten streak. It's also a game which can serve as a tipoff as to how Villanova will perform the rest of the season."

Ever since last fall Olivar and his assistants have been searching for a way in which to break through Army's defense. They have run movies of the Army games over and again looking for a weakness in the Cadet defense.

Earl Blaik, Army coach, personally scouted the Wildcats last week but didn't get a chance to see much as Olivar instructed his teams—he used four of them—to operate only routine plays. Blaik, however, did see a fine array of backs directed by a sleight-of-hand "T" formation in Bill Doherty.

There's not a ticket to be had for the game on the Villanova campus. A trainload of 1500 will leave Saturday morning. A C-54 Skymaster will fly a load of Wildcat rooters while Villanova's New York Alumni Club will make the trip on a boat up the Hudson River.

Leo Durocher Asks to Be Reinstated

New York, Sept 24 (AP).— A reliable source whose identity can not be disclosed said tonight that Leo Durocher, suspended former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has applied to Commissioner A. B. Chandler for reinstatement and that Chandler had answered this appeal.

Although there was no confirmation, the same source intimated that Durocher had been given the green light, once the 1947 season and World Series is completed.

Durocher was suspended for the 1947 season, which Chandler said included theWorld Series, in an official communique from the Commissioner's office, April 9.

At that time Chandler said, "Durocher has not measured up to standards expected of managers of our baseball teams."

At the present time Durocher's name is not formally listed on the actvie Brooklyn roster.

However, the same source pointed out that it is customary in baseball that when a man is suspended "from" a list that he be reinstated "to" that same list.

Durocher was expected to arrive in New York at 8:05 a.m. (EDT) tomorrow morning, with his wife, Larraine Day, enroute to the New York Yankee-Brooklyn series opening tuesday.

Walter Mulbry, Chandler's chief assistant, in Cincinnati, declined to comment on whether the Commissioner and Durocher had exchanged letters but has this to say:

"Any correspondence between the Commissioner and Durocher would be unnecessary.

Wynn Seeks 18th Tonight

The Nats came back to Griffith Stadium tonight to wind up a 1947 season that opened with high hopes and is ending in seventh place in the American League standings.

In the opener of a two-day series with the Philadelphia Athletics the Nats send their most successful hurler, Early Wynn, to seek his eighteenth triumph.

Another tangle with the A's tomorrow night closes out business with that club, after which afternoon games Saturday and Sunday with the Red Sox will end everything.

Although the Nats are going nowhere, all their last four games will be important to the opposition. Philadelphia has an outside chance to overtake Cleveland for fourth place in the dash to the wire and Boston can take second over Detroit.

Immediately behind the Nats are a pair of beatings by the A. L. champion New York Yankees, 2-0 and 3-1, with Walter Masterson and Mickey Haefner the victims.

Kramer Still Winning Easily

Los Angeles, Sept. 24 (AP).—Jack Kramer, America's singles champion, won his way into the quarter-finals of the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament today, brushing off with ease the challenge of Vladimir Cernik of Czechoslovakia by scores of 6—1, 6—1.

In another center court attraction, Earl Cochell of New York sent another foreign invader, Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Equador, to the sidelines, dealing out a devastating forehand to win, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, national women's champion defaulted of illness.

Fourth round matches slated for tomorrow include Bill Talbert, New York, and Enrique Morea, Argentina; Dinny Pails, Australia, and Ed Moyland, San Francisco; Ted Schroeder and George Richardson, Los Angeles; Jim Brink, Seattle, and Colin Long, Australia, and Frank Parker, Los Angeles, and Billy Sidwell, Australia.

Dick (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles moved into the quarter-finals by defeating Bob Falkenburg, Los Angeles, 6—4, 8—6. Gonzales upset the favored Czech, Jaroslav Drobny, in a featured match yesterday.

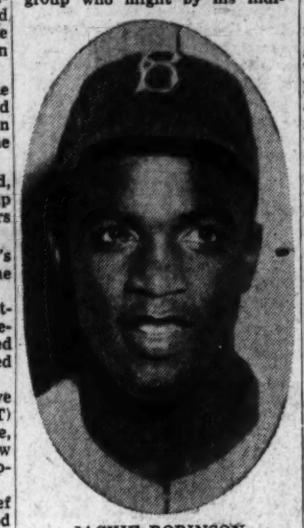
Robinson May Run Off With Series Title

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, SEPT. 24 (AP).—There is little or nothing to choose between the infield quarters in the coming World Series, judging by the figures, so it becomes necessary to try to single out the one player in the group who might by his individual exploits blow the big play-off wide open.



JACKIE ROBINSON
He may upset Yanks

That player would be Jackie Robinson, the Negro rookie who plays first base for the Brooklyn Dodgers. He could do it. In a close series, such as that of last fall, one fleet, daring baserunner of Robinson's stripe can supply the difference.

Both pennant winners have superior infields. Each boasts a crack double-play combination. Neither packs a great deal of power in its inner works. It comes down, as this observer sees it, to a comparison between Robinson and his first-basing rival, the veteran George McQuinn of the Yanks.

McQuinn made a great comeback this season. Bucky Harris yanked him right out of the boneyard last winter, and George has repaid him tenfold. The oldster has slugged a resounding .300 (the same as Robinson), and he has whaled 13 home runs (one more than Robinson). He undoubtedly is a slicker fielder than the Negro rookie.

BUT THERE the comparison ends—and Robinson takes over. It is no exaggeration to say that the pigeon-toed freshman from Montreal "made" the Dodgers. Chances are he will be named the most valuable man in the National League.

Unless one has watched Robinson play a good number of times, it is difficult to appreciate his brilliance or understand why he is such a pain to the opposition. The fact that he has stolen 27 bases—more than all the Yankees combined—doesn't entirely clear it up.

Let it suffice to say that every time Robinson comes up in the series the Yankees had better brace themselves and prepare to play very tight and intelligent baseball. If they ever slip and let Robinson start running, it could be a "Pepper Martin" series all over again. It is not difficult to remember how the Philadelphia Athletics were practically run right out of the park by the Cards of 1930.

On the possibility, then, that Robinson might win a game or two by sheer speed and daring, he has to be given the nod over McQuinn, who hasn't stolen a base. By the same reasoning, the Dodger infield must be rated over that of the Yanks in a sudden death series.

Newsome Requests, Gets Unconditional Release

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP).—Skeeter Newsome, plucky little shortstop of the Philadelphia Phillies, today asked and was given his unconditional release, effective at the close of the current season.

The Phils' front office said Newsome, at home recuperating from a minor operation, declined a managerial post in the club's farm system. Newsome, 37, said he felt he has a few years left in the majors and was eager to sign up with another club.

It's Tarheels, Iowa, LSU In Top Games

By Steve Snider

New York, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Many a football showdown worthy of a late November afternoon was brewing over the Nation today with Iowa, North Carolina and Louisiana State rated probable winners in the three top games of the week.

With Ernie Case gone from U.C.L.A., it has to be Iowa's power and passing over the defending West Coast Conference champs on Friday night at Los Angeles. Iowa, a Big Nine dark horse this season, retains most of its 1946 team which gave Illinois a terrific afternoon before losing, 7 to 0, as Illinois moved toward the Rose Bowl where they swamped U.C.L.A., 45 to 14.

It's North Carolina this time in a replay of the Sugar Bowl game against Georgia. Playing at Chapel Hill on Saturday, the Tarheels with Charley Justice and a shade the better line figure to prove that 20 to 10 Sugar Bowl defeat by Georgia and Charley Trippi—now gone—was all a mistake.

Louisiana State, 7 to 6 upset victory over Rice last year, has the passing in Y. A. Tittle to do it again Saturday and it'll be no upset. Although Rice was the Southwestern Conference co-champ and Orange Bowl victor, L. S. U. is loaded.

Around the East:

Army over Villanova—Preserving that streak of 27 victories and a tie despite Villanova's confidence with Blanchard and Davis gone.

Clemson over Boston College—Speed over beef.

In the Midwest

Illinois over Pittsburgh — as usual.

Michigan over Michigan State—First leg on the Rose Bowl?

Minnesota over Washington—A tough one.

Giants Beat Dodgers, 6-5

Brooklyn, Sept. 24 (AP).—After Hal Gregg tuned up for the World Series with a one-hit shutout job on New York for five innings, today the Giants hopped on Rookie Willard Ramsdell for six runs in the sixth inning and a 6-5 edge over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the final meeting of the two clubs this season.

A crowd of 16,990 turned out for the Brooks' final preseries appearance at Ebbets Field, shoving the attendance to a new National League high of 1,807,596. The Dodgers set the old record in 1946.

With Gregg moving down the Giants in the first five innings, the pennant winners clubbed Starter Andy Hansen for a 4-0 early edge. Jackie Robinson, Pee Wee Reese and Spider Jorgensen were the only regulars in the starting lineup.

Two Down at Turn

Louise Suggs Has Bad Scare, But Wins 2 and 1 in Amateur

Detroit, Sept. 24 (AP).—Narrowly averting an upset defeat with one of the gamest comebacks of the tournament, little 5-foot 5-inch Louise Sugs, the Western champion from Lithia Springs, Ga., squeezed out a 2 and 1 second round triumph over Sally Sessions of Muskegon, Mich., today to lead the way into the quarter-finals of the forty-seventh Women's National Amateur Golf Tournament at Franklin Hills Country Club.

Two-down at the turn with an outgoing 43, Miss Suggs rallied to take the next three holes in a row and bettered par by a stroke for the last 10 holes of the match to continue as the No. 1 favorite to succeed the abdicated Babe Didrikson Zaharias as National champion.

Moving along with her into the round of eight, scheduled for tomorrow, were a pair of 20-year-old youngsters, Mary McMillin of Green Bay, Wis., and Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., four other feminine stars in their mid-twenties and the 39-year-old veteran, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., who won the National title 10 years ago and is the only former champion still in the running.

Mrs. Page Wins 6 and 5

Mrs. Page fired the most remarkable round of the day, shooting at a one-under-par clip for the 13 holes it required her to oust Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., 6 and 5.

A commendable 41-39—80 by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Narragansett, R. I., wasn't quite good enough to keep the six-time former champion in the scramble to the title relinquished a month ago by Mrs. Zaharias, who turned professional.

Dorothy Kirby knocked out Mrs. Vare by a narrow 1-up margin, overcoming a 2-down deficit at the seven-hole mark by playing the last 11 in one-under-par for a 42-37—79.

Miss Lenczyk, Newington, Conn., holder of the Canadian women's open title, overcame an incorrigible putter to knock out Helen Sigel, blonde Philadelphian, who was a finalist in the 1941 national tournament, 4 and 3, although Miss Lenczyk three-putted four greens.

Mrs. Bush Wins

Gaining adequate revenge over Miss Sigel, who beat her, 5 and 3, in the second round of last year's championship, curly-haired Miss Lenczyk stepped into a third round meeting with Mrs. Eddie Bush, wife of a Detroit professional, who is competing in her first national tournament. Mrs. Bush stopped the Michigan champion, Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, 2 and 1.

Miss McMillin also playing in her first national championship, staved off a late rally by Mrs. W. R. Kirkland of New York, to win 1-up and move into a quarter-final meeting with Miss Suggs, the medalist.

Dot Kielty, 27-year-old West Coast star from Los Angeles, moved into a lower bracket clash with Mrs. Page by nosing out Laddie Irwin, the Metropolitan district champ from Montclair, N. J., 1-up.

Single 18-hole rounds starting at 2 p. m. (EST) tomorrow and Friday will take the survivors into the 36-hole final Saturday.

Czech Lifter Seeks To Regain Laurels

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP).—Four years in the infamous Mulhausen Concentration Camp cost Vaclav Becvar his world's heavyweight weightlifting championship but the Czechoslovakian strong man will be back in competition this weekend, hopeful of regaining his former laurels.

Becvar, who was imprisoned for killing a gestapo agent in a holdup after the Germans took over his country, will compete in the world's weightlifting championships here Friday and Saturday as a member of the Czech team.

Hatton's Homer Wins for Reds

Cincinnati, Sept. 24 (AP).—Grady Hatton hit a home run in the ninth inning today to defeat Chicago, 6 to 5, and clinch fifth place in the National League for Cincinnati.

A half-inning earlier Kent Peterson entered the game with the bags filled with Bruins and retired them without a score.

1950 His Last Year; Harris Stays As '48 Pilot

By Ted Smits

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Larry S. MacPhail, president of the champion New York Yankees and one of baseball's most dominant figures, revealed today that he plans to give up active direction of the Yankee organization after 1950.

He made this announcement, rather wistfully, as he disclosed at a news conference that Bucky Harris would be back next year as manager of the baseball Yankees.

Under Harris in his first year at the helm, the Yankees won the American League pennant and will meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in the world series starting next Tuesday.

$3,000,000 Offer Rejected

MacPhail also said that he and his partners had turned down a $3,000,000 offer for a half interest in their vast sports enterprise, embracing both baseball and football.

"My present contract has three years to run," said MacPhail. "I have refused to have it extended. I have no idea of continuing actively in baseball beyond 1950. I want to take it easy. As a matter of fact, I would have quit after we won the pennant if it weren't for my responsibility to my partners."

MacPhail, the man who introduced night baseball to the majors, has been president of three big league clubs—the Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League, and the New York Yangees.

He's Taken Quite a Beating

"I've been under a lot of stress and strain," he said in an interview following his press conference. "I have taken quite a beating. Baseball isn't something you can forget when you close down your desk."

MacPhail declared considerations of health were not a factor in his plans. He explained that under his present contract neither of his partners, Del Webb and Dan Topping, is active "in the baseball picture," the responsibility for which falls entirely on him.

MacPhail said he had a contract with the Yankees for five years in an davisory capacity—"but under it I won't have to work."

It's Bucky's Own Choice

He explained that Harris had elected to remain as manager in 1948 when given the choice of that job or an executive position as MacPhail's assistant.

The proceeds of Sunday's baseball game at Yankee Stadium between the Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics will be turned over to the Babe Ruth Foundation, said MacPhail.

Many baseball stars of yesteryear, who will be guests of the Yankees at the World Series starting next Tuesday, will appear in Yankee Stadium Sunday, including Pitchers Denton (Cy) Young, Lefty Gomez, Lefty Grove, Herb Pennock, Chief Bender and Stan Coveleski, Catchers Micky Cochrane, Ray Schalk and Wally Schang, Infielders George Sisler, Jimmy Foxx, Charlie Gehringer, Roger Peckinpaugh, Mark Koenig and Frank (Home Run) Baker, and Outfielders Babe Ruth, Tris Speaker and Bob Meusel.

Choice in Travel: 'Skins or Colts

Two special trains will leave Union Station Sunday afternoon to take football fans to Philadelphia for the Redskin-Eagle game or to Baltimore for the Colt-New York Yankee contest.

The B. & O. Redskin Special sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce, leaves Union Station at 10:20 a. m. and leaves Philadelphia after the game at 6:15 p. m., arriving in Washington at 8:45. For information call District 3535.

The B. & O. train for the Baltimore Colt game leaves Union Station at 12:15 p. m., arrives in Baltimore at 1:15 p. m., and pulls out of Baltimore for Washington 30 minutes after the contest ends. Reservations may be made at the B. & O., Executive 0770.

It's His 11th Season

Baugh, Frisky 33, Will Aim at 1000th Pass of Career Against Eagles Sunday

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sammy Baugh will lead the Washington Redskins against the Eagles in Philadelphia Sunday, and the chances are that before the game is over he will have completed the 1000th pass of his pro career.

He already has 992 passes stacked away in his record room, so hitting No. 1000 should be litle more than routine.

That Baugh is amazing, folks. He's almost as much of an insituation in this town as the Washington Monument, and there are some who wonder if he isn't just as indestructible.

He starts his eleventh year in a game so rough a 5-year man is considered an oldtimer.

The facts speak for themselves.

Last Sunday in Baltimore, in an exhibition against the Green Bay Packers, the Redskins were very much behind at the end of three quarters; namley, 0 to 31.

Final score: Packers 31, Baugh & Co. 21.

In Baugh's first year as a pro, many a good sports writer sprained a typewriter trying to jump the adjective hurdles while describing him.

Sammy was good all right. He tried 171 passes, and completed 81 of them. Included were seven touchdown tosses.

The way it turned out, that was Baugh's worst year.

If he's slowing down, the record book hasn't discovered it.

Last year, for example, he tried 161 passes, completed 87, of which 8 went for touchdowns.

Dick McCann, Redskin general manager, says that what makes Baugh more remarkable is his spirit.

"We think he's too valuable to take chances," said Dick. "But you can't stop Baugh. He frequently punts, and then makes the tackle. Or he passes, and then throws an important block to make a touchdown possible."

But will Baugh ever wear down? And what will the Redskins do then?

Well, Baugh will wear his old jersey number, 33. But this year it takes on new meaning. It's also his age.

"The way Baugh has been going," said McCann, "I see no reason why he shouldn't be able to work all the way up to Red Grange's number."

Coach Chacos Keeps Mum

Charlotte Hall Squad Fast, Light; Schedule Difficult

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

With a tough schedule and a squad of only 22 men, Coach Lou Chacos, of Charlotte Hall Military Academy, is keeping his fingers crossed.

The loss of one or two key men would leave Chacos in a bad spot, so he refused to make predictions about his prospects this fall.

He has a light but fast first team, but after that things are a bit thin, and Chacos is a little worried about teams like Allentown, Pa., Gonzaga, W-L and St. Johns.

Three lettermen from last year's team that won five, lost three and tied one, are bulwarks on this year's eleven.

Harry Mattingly, quarterback, who is a fine passer and kicker, is back after missing most of last year's games because of an injury. Mattingly completed nine passes in 11 tries last week in the Cadets 12-7 opening game victory over Hagerstown.

The other lettermen are Center Phil Kolodner and Halfback Jack Bialock. Kolodner is the key man of the Cadet's defense and one of the best line backers in the area.

Lacy Evans and Paul Burak make up the rest of the first-string backfield, with Joe and Carl Fahrner, a brother combination, and Chester Trott and Tom Eichelberger in reserve.

At the ends are big Tony Yanchulis, Phil Kritsings and Bill Collinson. Yanchulis promises to become a fine pass catcher, standing six feet, three inches and having a large pair of hands.

Two 17-year-olds, Cal Quenstedt and Jack Fredricks are the first-string tackles, with Bill Housley and Oney Rausch their nearest competitors. Harry Mortenson and Ed Kramer are the leading guards, followed by Paul Barker, Dick Elliot and Marvin Riddle.

Kolodner is backed at the center post by Bill Reid.

Jonesy Will See His 'Bums'

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP). The mayor of Springfield interceded today in behalf of Jonesy, a little newspaper vender who is Springfield's most rabid Brooklyn Dodger booster.

Lowell Jones, or Jonesy as he is known to everybody here, has been a Brooklyn rooter for years. Sometimes, when they lose, he cries or tosses his papers away in chagrin.

Now he's celebrating the Dodgers' pennant victory by going around town in a baseball uniform, selling his papers and jeering at St. Louis Cardinal backers.

The only cloud is—he wants to see the Dodgers in the world series but can't get a ticket.

Friends of Jonesy, who is about 35, told Mayor Harry Eielson. The Mayor wrote a letter today to the Brooklyn management, asking if they could scare up a ticket for "this fan who has been boosting, hoping and praying for your team."

Dutch Schaefer Misses Races

Len Duncan, nationnal 100-mile dirt track champion, last night was substituted for Ed "Dutch" Schafer on tomorrow night's final seven event midget auto program at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway which features a 100-lap, or 25-mile grind that will be included in the national 100-lap championship series.

Schafer suffered an eye injury that necessitated an immediate operation following a crack-up at Goshen, N.Y., over the week-end when he was forced out of the 100-lap competition after taking a lead in the 98th lap.

Stahley Has Big Line to Stop Attack

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Neil (Skip) Stahley has been coaching college and service football for 17 years and he has never had a losing team.

"And I don't think I'll break precedent with this 1947 George Washington team of mine," says Stahley.

But, frankly, things don't look too good for the Colonials as they prepare to open their 1947 season against the University of Virginia Cavaliers at Charlottesville Saturday afternoon.

The five sidelined are the No. 1 and No. 2 fullbacks, Bill Spangler and Joe Bernot, No. 1 and No. 2 right ends, Bev Miller and Dick Koester, and Center Don Druckenmiller.

G. W.'s Line Big and Fast

Injuries to the Colonials range from sprained knees and torn rib cartilages to the plain old grippe.

But the Colonials are not without hope of springing an upset, if they can get the breaks. The line will be big and fast with Stan Burak and Merle Leicher at the ends, Carl Butkas and Harvey Shippman at tackles, Dixie Howell and Bob Unger or Jim Regan at guards, and Johnny Grinnell at center.

In the backfield will be Art Kennedy at quarter, Charlie Butler and Jimmy Kline at the halves and Paul Skinner at fullback.

What worries Stahley is a report that the Cavaliers, with a strong backfield and poor line last year have bolstered their weak spots. They have added promising linemen to a team that includes more than two dozen lettermen.

Weak Enks, Overconfidence

Stahley is keying up his charges to take advantage of two possible Virginia weaknesses:

1. At the ends where the Cavaliers were vulnerable last season, and where they have had difficulty finding replacements.

2. Overconfidence by the Cavaliers, who are girding for what they consider to be a more important game against Harvard on October 11.

The man most feared by George Washington is 205-pound Halfback Bruce Bailey, a triple-threater who has Virginians comparing him with Bill Dudley, an All-American at Virginia and last year professional football's most valuable player.

The Cavaliers are deep in veterans at the other backfield positions with Billy Pennell and Ralph Shoaf at right half and fullback, and George Neff, former Episcopal High star of Alexandria, at the difficult quarterback spot.

Not since 1922 have G. W. and Virginia met on the bridiron. And before then, the Colonials lost three times an dtied the Cavaliers once.

Catholic U. Uncovers a Kicking Star

Joe Maiuri, a freshman back who was not even listed on the Catholic University football roster, may be the answer to Coach Gene Augusterfer's kicking problem this fall.

An Army veteran, Maiuri has been getting off some tremendous boots in practice. Questioning revealed that he had averaged 50 yards a kick at Montgomery, W. Va., High School.

Standing 5 feet, 10½ inches in height and weighing 178, this C. U. hopeful is also a good ball carrier and a fair passer.

But his kicking is what has caught the coach's eye. In this department he is in a class of his own on the Cardinal squard. If the boy continues to show good form in this department, Coach Augusterfer may have another Tom Oliver on his hands.

Oliver, killed during the war, got off an 84-yard kick against Western Maryland in 1935, one of the longest in-the-air boots ever made.

Kiner Being 'Walked Out' Of Homer Derby by Pitchers

Pittsburgh, Sept. 24 (AP).—Ralph Kiner may be "walked out" of the home run derby because opposing pitchers seem too willing to give him a free ticket instead of a chance to work for a ride on the slugging merry-go-round.

The long-hitting young Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder moved in front in the homer race by belting one out of the park against the St. Louis Cardinals last night—but he had to hit one of the only two pitches Jim Hearn put in the strike zone. The blow was his fifty-first and put him one up on Johnny Mize of the New York Giants in their neck and neck race.

Kiner had four chances last night but he was walked three times, amid a storm of boos directed against Hearn by a crowd of some 10,000 frost-bitten fans.

None of Hearn's free tickets was intentional. He worked carefully on rugged Ralph, trying to keep his deliveries out of the reach of that big bat while still nicking the corners.

Hearn simply was doing what every other pitcher has been doing since Kiner earlier this month set a new record by belting eight homers in four consecutive games. Since that splurge has has had 17 walks in 45 trips to the plate. His homer production has fallen accordingly. He's hit only two among the nine safe blows he's garnered in 28 official tries.

Kiner's season walk total now stands at 95. During his heaviest stick work, he benefitted by the fact Hank Greenberg hit behind him. With Hank coming up, pitchers couldn't afford to walk Ralph too often—no more than they could afford to put Mize on to get at such clouters as Willard Marshall.

Stribling Wants To Fight Perry, Bee Bee, Hursey

Storm warnings, yesterday went out to three of Washington's well-known middleweights Smuggy Hursey, Bee Bee Washington and Aaron Perry—and they came from Ken Stribling, the ex-GI, who opens the boxing season Monday ngiht at Turner's Arena in a 10-rounder against Irish Billy Cooper of Paterson, N. J.

Stribling, who has flattened his last six opponents, including Frank Sweeney in three, Joe Gannon in one and Georgia Williams of Baltimore, has asked the trio to meet hi msometime this winter, and would like to dispose of them in the above-mentioned order, his manager, Billy Banks, said yesterday.

Himself a former prize fighter, wh ohas been in with some top scrappers, Banks pointed out that Stribling is the only local middleweight with a reputation who is unbeaten during 1947.

Louray O'Day Takes Closing Feature at Marlboro

Gay Peggy Nosed Out By Gelding

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Sept. 24.—It was only fitting that the Maryland minor track season should end with the feature race going to one of the season's prize products. J. K. Wynkoop's Louray O'Neil, a gelding who came around the small tracks with no reputation, rang up his ninth victory of the season in the Herndon Purse.

A crowd of 7000, dodging rain drops, installed Louray O'Neil as the favorite and then watched him last by a scant head going into the wire.

Halogi Finishes Third

E. C. Allnutt'e Gay Peggy, well handled by Apprentice Ray Drury, came with a stretch rush to barely miss taking the main prize. In third position was S. H. Rogers, jr.'s Halogi. The winner was a $3.40 mutuel and was clocked in 1:27 1/5 for the 6½ furlongs.

Fitting it was, too, that Jockey Sammy Palumbo, leading rider of the year on the minor ovals, was aboard Louray O'Neil and he put up one of his best efforts. Such was needed.

Halogi did the expected and went to the front early but Palumbo had Louray O'Neil close up. In the stretch, Halogi weakened and Palumbo went to a drive. Louray O'Neil responded and took a daylight lead. Then Gay Peggy made her move along the rail and just missed getting up in time.

Two galloping winners, both favorites, teamed to produce a mere $8|20 pay-off on the daily double. In the first race, Jockey Sammy Palumbo rode R. A. Chapman's Gem D'Esprit home five lengths in front of the closest opposition. The three-year-old paid $3.20 in his own right.

In the second race, F. R. Greer's My Exit, paying a $5 mutuel, took command when Apprentice Eddie Hopkins drew out to score by six lengths in the test of a mile and a sixteenth.

Sanitation Budget Asks 8½ Millions

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The District can acquire $700,000 worth of sewage treatment equipment which will just about pay for itself.

The proposal comes from Sanitary Engineer Harold Kemp, who is asking that the District spend $8,501,000 during the fiscal year beginning next July 1 on sewer installations.

Kemp's budget request, released yesterday by the Commissioners, showed a $700,000 item for installing sludge drying and incineration equipment at the Blue Plains sewage disposal plant. In the past, damp sludge cakes have been stored at the Lorton, Va., penal institutions, but facilities there are no longer adequate.

Would Pay for Itself

Kemp said the equipment would practically pay for itself because the District could sell the dry sludge for fertilizer. If the bottom drops out of the fertilizer market, making the operation unprofitable, the sludge could be disposed of by incineration and the resulting gas used as fuel. Funds for designing the plant were provided last year by the Federal Works Administration.

Kemp asked for two additional pumps at a cost of $200,000 to help handle increased loads at the sewage treatment plant. Bids will be opened today for installing four sedimentation and four digestion tanks, to bring the present installation up to needs.

Request Is 60 Per Cent Higher

Kemp's record budget request of $8,501,000 is 60 per cent higher than the $5,033,483 appropriated for the Sewer Department this year. More than 80 per cent of budget would go into capital improvements, such as sewers to serve new housing, repairs and replacement of worn out sewer sections.

"Need for service sewers to accommodate new buildings during 1949 will increase beyond prewar levels," Kemp predicted.

Another reason for the budget increase is that the District must now handle stormwater control without aid from the Federal Works Agency, which provided loans and grants during the war, Kemp said.

Lovett Gratified Over Improved India Situation

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett yesterday expressed "deep satisfaction" over what he termed recent improvement in riot-torn Punjab in India and Pakistan.

He said "all friends of the new governments welcomed the announcement of September 20 of the accord reached by their Prime Ministers for further joint efforts to restore peace and order in the disturbed areas."

Dispatches from India and Pakistan last night reported "serious attacks" on refugee convoys moving between east and west Punjab, with exact casualties undetermined. Other dispatches quoted Pakistan officials as charging 1200 Moslems were killed and 800 wounded when Sikh troops and civilians engaged in a three-hour massacre of refugees aboard a train at Amritsar.

Old Belt Tobacco Sale Prices Fall Sharply Under Last Year

Danville, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—Old Belt tobacco markets began their second day of sales today after an opening day which showed a distinct decline in price as compared with averages on opening day in 1946.

Prices dropped from $2 to $12 per hundred and U. S. and Virginia figures showed all groups and colors were affected. From 10 to 12 per cent of offerings were going for less than Commodity Credit prices and much of this was being delivered to the stabilization corporation.

Volume was heavy on most markets, with fair to fine lugs predominating, although trading was heavy in low and fair leaf and in cuttings and primings. Prices ranged from $2 to $62 per hundred pounds.

Danville sales totaled 97,186 pounds for an average of $43.15; in South Hill 253,332 pounds were sold for an average of $47.30 per hundred; in Martinsville a total of 198,434 pounds brought an average in one warehouse of $43.82 and in another $45.72; in Petersburg an estimated 217,000 pounds brought considerably less than last year's opening day average of $51.01; in Kenbridge 193,056 pounds sold for an average of $42.62 and in Clarksville an average of $46.40 was paid for 208,376 pounds.

Averages on some representative United States grades were: Leaf—Good lemon, $52; fair lemon, $50; low orange, $32, and low grain (orange side), $18; cutters—Good lemon, $57; fair lemon, $44; fair orange, $58, and low orange, $57.

3 New Polio Cases Reported

Three new suburban polio cases were reported yesterday, bringing the Greater Washington area total this year to 33 cases, the District Health Department announced yesterday.

One of the cases was an 8-year-old boy, brother of a girl reported as a polio case Tuesday. Both are being treated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. They live on Juniper ln. in Falls Church, Va.

Two Mount Rainier, Md., boys were reported as polio cases at Children's Hospital, Health officials said. One was a 13-year-old boy whose home is in the 4200 block of Kaywood dr.; the other, age 4, lives in the 4200 block of Kaywood dr.

So far this year, there have been 12 polio cases in the District, 21 in nearby suburban areas, health officials said.

Blast on Tanker Kills 1, Cripples Ship; Aid on Way

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Cherokee and the Montauk were proceeding late today to help the tanker Esso Saranac, disabled 230 miles off Cape Henry by a furnace explosion which killed one crew member, burned two others severely, and left the vessel drifting helplessly.

The Montauk, dispatched from New York, is expected to reach the Esso Saranac at 3 a. m. tomorrow. The Montauk has been instructed to take the big tanker in tow and head for Hampton Roads.

Names of the blast victims were not available, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The tanker, out of Corpus Christi, Tex., with oil for Britain, radioed early this morning that the forward furnace of its port boiler had exploded.

State Hospital At Marion Asks Four Millions

Marion, Va., Sept. 23 (AP).—Southwestern Virginia State hospital, the last of six institutions visited today by Governor Tuck and his budget advisory commission, produced a budget asking for $2,430,070 for maintenance and operation during the biennium beginning next July 1.

The institution also petitioned for an additional appropriation of $1,680,000 for additional building and improvements.

The touring budgeteers stopped for the night here after receiving requests representing combined increases of more than three million dollars for operating costs and some $6,500,000 for capital outlays from five institutions visited earlier in the day.

At Catawba, their first stop of the day, the budget-makers heard officials of the tubersulosis hospital ask for $1,079,452 from the general fund for maintenance and operation in the new biennium, an increase of $478,258 over the 1946-48 figure.

Catawba's program also called for $1,462,860 in capital outlay appropriations.

To Meet Rising Costs

Here, as in all other requests, the need for more money for personnel and to meet rising costs otherwise was cited.

VPI asked for $2,176,876 from the general fund for maintenance and operations, an increase of $953,077. This was based on an enrollment of 4800 students.

Dr. Walter Newman, VPI president, told the commission that the amount sought from the general fund was just 24.8 per cent fo VPI's total budget of $8,761,257 proposed for the new biennium. The rest would come from fees and other special sources.

A $5,111,333 capital outlay program was outlined for VPI, including $3,542,183 in new funds sought from the State.

For Station, Service

Along with the VPI requests were budgets for the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station and the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

The experiment station asked for $1,313,362 from the general fund, or $691,320 above the present biennium's figure. In capital outlays, it proposed $483,250, of which $424,578 would be new.

The Extension Service called for $2,271,528 toward its total proposed budget of $3,865,558.

The collage also asked for $1,937,800 in capital outlays, which would include $469,000 in new money plus funds previously appropriated.

Tomorrow the budget group will inspect the regional prison farm in Bland County and then swing back to Virginia Military Institute at Lexington.

Commission Acts on Md. Pollution

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission announced today it had adopted three resolutions aimed at making the State's waters purer, and had voted to cooperate with West Virginia in a four-point program to wipe out pollution of the Potomac.

One resolution was designed to prevent pollution by industrial enterprises and residential developments; another would prevent dumping of oil from vessels, and the third would authorize proceedings against offenders cited by inspectors.

Pollution Case Begun

Members disclosed that enforcement officials were building up a case against developers of two Anne Arundel County real estate subdivisions from which they said sewage is now being dumped into the Severn and South rivers.

Dr. Robert H. Riley, State Health Director, and a member of the commission, declared:

"No doubt the attitude of these polluters and others like them will be different when they realize the power vested in the new group.

Commission's Powers

"Whenever health authorities step in to correct pollution they have been required to prove that conditions had made someone ill or threatened the public health.

"Now it would seem that it is only necessary to prove that pollution results from the discharge or deposit of liquids or solids which may create a nuisance or be detrimental to natural resources."

The commission authorized Maul M. McKee, its executive secretary, to cooperate with West Virginia in carrying out an attack on the Potomac River pollution problem along lines suggested by K. S. Watson of Charleston, W. Va.

De Franceschi and the two children failed to return home for supper on Saturday after what started out to be a routine trip to Washington.

Mrs. De Franceschi said last night she would seek court action giving her custody of the two children when her husband's whereabouts are learned.

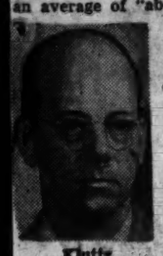
Navy to Up 'Per Diems' In District 12 Cts. Hour

'Average' Boost Resulting From Survey Will Be Effective Nov. 1

By Jerry Kluttz

Approximately 12,000 Navy per diem employes in the Washington area will have their salaries raised an average of "about 12 cents an hour," a Navy official revealed yesterday.



Kluttz

The increase, he said, would be approved officially on or before October 1. It will go into effect no later than November 1. It was explained that the commanding officers of naval establishments would be given a maximum of 30 days to make changes to put the wage boosts into operation.

The Navy man emphasized that the increase will "average" about 12 cents an hour, but that the wage raise of an individual employe may be as low as 8 cents, and as high as 15 cents an hour. Many of Navy's West Coast per diems have had their salaries boosted a flat 15 cents an hour.

The higher salaries are the result of surveys made of the salaries paid the Navy's 200,000 per diem employes the country over. The study was ordered last July 1 by then Secretary Forrestal after cost-of-living increases had been won by private employes in similar work. The law requires the Navy to pay its per diems the rates "prevailing" in the areas in which they work.

The big bloc of per diems here work at the Naval Gun Factory. Others are employed at the Alexandria Ordnance Plant, David Taylor Model Basin, Naval Research Laboratory, Naval Ordnance Laboratory, Naval Air Station, the Anacostia Receiving Station, Bethesda Naval Hospital, the Indian Head (Md.) Powder Plant, and the Naval Observatory.

GPO: The 7700 employes of the Government Printing Office also will seek cost-of-living wage boosts. It is reported that the craft unions that represent the bulk of the employes will seek a flat 15 per cent wage increase. GPO employes were given an increase that averaged 14 per cent a year ago.

Most of the unions that have members in GPO have served notice on the public printer that they will seek a reopening of wage negotiations on or after October 1. The public printer has the authority to adjust salaries and his policy is to give the same increase to union and non-union employes. However, he seeks the advice of the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing before a settlement is made.

The 1600 GPO printers are represented by the Columbia Typographical Union. They have selected a 5-man committee to negotiate a cost-of-living raise for them. Their wage demands will be presented to Public Printer Giegengack late next week.

BEP: Another round of wage increases will follow to the several thousand per diem employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing if GPO, as expected, approves a cost-of-living raise. BEP follows the GPO on salary schedules. However, only one craft union there has presented a petition to Director Alvin W. Hall for a cost-of-living boost. The other union representatives are awaiting the outcome of GPO negotiations before they act.

WHITE-COLLAR: Pay raises for per diems in Government will underline the plight of the Government white-collar, or classified, employe, whose salary is fixed by Congress.

The average Government per diem employe already has had his salary raised an average of 43 per cent since before the war. Now that average is to be raised. In fact, it has already risen since the War Department recently granted pay raises to many of its per diems.

On the other hand, the white-collar employe has had an average increase of around 33 per cent since before the war. And he has no immediate prospect of being given relief. In contrast, the cost of living is up about 60 per cent since before the war.

The average increase of 14 per cent given white-collar employes as of July 1, 1945, has been more than wiped out by higher living costs. If that raise was justified then, a better case can be made now for a flat 20 per cent boost.

On top of the soaring living costs, thousands of white-collar employes have had their salaries slashed in the shake-down of Government by demotions, reclassifications and downgradings. To sum it all up, the Government white-collar employe is becoming Uncle Sam's forgotten man."

JOBS: Veterans Administration has openings for CAF-11 and 12 experienced real estate appraisers. Apply to Room 2710 of the Munitions Building . . . Mother of Boy, 7, Accuses Stepfather in Custody Case

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

An attractive 24-year-old mother, accused of abandoning her young son, wept as she testified yesterday that she fled from her parents' home, leaving the boby behind, because he stepfather had made improper advances toward her.

The woman, Mrs. Edith Dye, had brought proceedings against her stepfather, Clyde L. King and her mother, Grace, 308 Seaton pl. nw., seeking to regain custody of the 7-year-old boy.

The lad, Edward, had been living with the grandparents since he was a year old.

Mrs. Dye told how she had been awarded custody of her son after she and her husband, George, were separated in 1941.

She said that she secured employment at a Baltimore bomber plant leaving the child with the grandparents and paying her mother $120 a month for his support.

Tears trickled down the witness' face as she testified she decided to leave her parents' home after her stepfather molested her while her mother was away.

In 1944, she testified, she joined the Wacs. She saiod she continued to send money to the grandparents for the child's support until her discharge in 1946.

She told the court she had tried on six occasions to persuade her parents to return the child to her but was refused. So urgent was her desire for the lad, she said, that she even tried to "steal" him but was unsuccessful.

Denying that she had ever "abandoned" the boy, she said she visited him twice a month after leaving Washington.

As Mrs. Dye launched into her testimony, her attorney, James C. Toomey asked Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts to exclude the boy from the courtroom.

The lad, who had been sleeping peacefully in the lap of his stepfather, was removed.

When Mrs. Dye became too choked with emotion to continue, Letts recessed the case until today when the witness is expected to resume testimony.

King, a railroad engineer, told reporters that he and his wife "have become too attached to the youngster to give it up."

"His mother never took care of him," he said. "It was only about four months ago that she first started to show any interest in him."

Mrs. Jillson Says Mate Is In Contempt

The estranged wife of a former Army major yesterday asked the District Court to adjudge him guilty of contempt in failing to give her custody of their 4-year-old son as decreed by the court in a temporary custory order last month.

The motion was filed in behalf of Mrs. Kathryn Sinclaire Jillson, 1841 R st. nw., by her attorney, Jean Boardman.

Mrs. Jillson filed suit for divorce against George Jacob Jillson in April, 1945, charging cruelty. Jillson brought a counter complaint charging misconduct, which Mrs. Jillson denied.

In the divorce suit, Mrs. Jillson also accused her husband of attempting to have her railroaded to an insane asylum. She was found of sound mind at Gallinger, the suit alleged. A damage suit is pending in District Court against a psychiatrist, allegedly employed by Jillson. The divorce proceedings are still in litigation.

Associate Justice Edward M. Curran last August granted temporary custody of the child to Mrs. Jillson pending further divorce action. The boy was said to have been staying with Jillson's mother in Pearl River, N. Y.

Mrs. Jillson declared in an affidavit which accompanied the suit yesterday that she had brought habeas corpus proceedings in New York in a move to get custody. The affidavit stated that the New York court refused temporarily to give "full faith and credit" to the District Court's custody order, pending further action.

Boardman said yesterday Jillson was with the Army of Occupation in Japan last month but he has no knowledge of his present address.

Mental Tests Ordered for Man Accused by Child

A man accused of molesting an 8-year-old girl and of using vile language to the girl's mother when the latter called him to protest, yesterday was ordered held for a mental examination pending trial.

The action was taken by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson upon request of the defendant, John A. Antonelli, 23, of 828 49th av., Capitol Heights, Md. Trial on the charges was slated for October 28.

Sex squad detectives reported Antonelli made improper advances to the child in a downtown shade shop where he was employed part time. Antonelli had been convicted twice before on similar charges.

McCandlish Wins Verdict In Recount

Fairfax Resident Declared Democrat Nominee by 1 Vote Over Edwin Lynch

Robert J. McCandlish, jr., of Fairfax, yesterday was declared Democratic nominee for the county's seat in the House of Delegates by a one point majority over Delegate Edwin Lynch.

A court of three circuit judges named McCandlish the winner, in what had seemed to be a tie primary election, by a vote of 2851 to 2850.

In the morning, the three-man commission appointed September 9 to recount the ballots presented to the court their findings: 2843 votes for McCandlish; 2841 votes for Lynch; 54 ballots in dispute.

No Errors Found

Chairman T. J. Atockton said the commission had found no error in the original count. The break in the tie came as a result of the judges' rulings in the case of the disputed ballots, which included ballots thrown out by the polling judges as well as those contested by the candidates during the recount.

So ended the controversy which has dragged on since August 6. Previous highlights in the case were:

(1) Unofficial announcement on August 6 that Lynch had won, 2854 to 2852. This was taken from telephoned reports to the central registrr from the 26 precincts.

(2) Official announcement by the board of election canvassers on August 7 of a tie, 2853 votes each.

Lynch Certified

(3) Drawing of lots in Richmond August 12 by the State Board of Elections. Lynch's name was drawn. The board then certified Lynch as the party's nominee.

4. Court hearing in Fairfax on McCandlish's petition for a recount, filed August 9. The court, appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Appeals, assumed jurisdiction and appointed the commission which handed in its report yesterday.

The court handed down its decision after hearing argument by opposing counsel on the ballots in dispute. Most of these were ballots which showed erasures or unofficial markings.

"It's been some doin's," sighed McCandlish when it was all over. McCandlish, who first won a seat in the House in a special 1942 election, had previously defeated Lynch by a comfortable margin in 1943. Lynch, in turn, won the seat in 1945.

"Somebody had to lose," said Lynch as he wished McCandlish well in the November election. "Perhaps I'm just as well out of it." He said he would return to his occupation as farmer and real estate man, and has no political plans for the future.

THE PROF IS ALL FOR IT—Dean Elmer Louis Kayser of George Washington University can thank Gov. William Tuck of Virginia for the apples offered to him by coeds yesterday. Civic Groups Warned on School Use

(See also "Letters to the Editor," Page 12)

Citizens' and civic organizations were reminded yesterday that meetings which "create unrest" are not permitted in the public schools.

The reminder came from the District Recreation Board, which has charge of community use of public school buildings.

It followed protests by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Committee for Racial Democracy in the Nation's Capital over statements made last Wednesday night at a meeting of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association in the Crosby S. Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne.

Association Officer Credited

The statements which drew the protests were made by Arthur B. McNerney, 1016 Jackson st. ne., an officer of the Brookland-Dahlgren Terrace Protective Association. McNerney spoke before about 40 members of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association who had gathered to map plans for a legal fight to enforce restrictive covenants which forbid sale of property in the neighborhood to Negroes.

Veterans Get Little Hope On Housing

Heads of local veterans' organizations received little encouragement on the Washington area housing situation when they visited the D. C. Veterans Information Center, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., yesterday at the invitation of Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director.

Miss Mary Mahoney, housing supervisor for the center, told the visitors that landlords have less to offer and are even more allergic to families with children than was the case a year ago. Furthermore, she said, the demand now is more for permanent homes or apartments than was the case during the war, when the men were away.

Colonel Leonard poited out that almost half the present housing applicants are military personnel transferred to this area. He said a good part of the shortage for Army men might be relieved if barracks at Fort Belvoir and Fort Hunt, between Alexandria and Mount Vernon, were turned over for family housing.

Home seekers are now coming to the Center at the rate of more than 100 a day, according to the Center's records for this month. Of these, an average of 32 are placed, some 15 of them in apartments or rooms with cooking privileges or facilities, Miss Mahoney said.

Montgomery Approves Big Housing Plan

A twice-rejected apartment zoning request for a 1500-unit, 15-million-dollar apartment project was approved yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners.

Construction of garden-type apartments on a 92-acre tract at Piney Branch rd. and New Hampshire ave. extended, is contemplated for next spring, according to W. W. Rapley.

Zoning approval was conditioned upon construction being started within one year. The commissioners also ordered that a school site and park lands be set aside on the tract.

The application was 1 of 28 acted upon yesterday by the commissioners. Seven were approved, action was deferred on 1, and 20 were denied.

Denied by the board were four other apartment zonings which embraced erection of units costing an estimated $11,000,000. Among them was a request by J. A. Watson, jr., H. F. Watson and Hilleary O. Rose for rezoning of a 20-acre tract adjoining Sligo Creek pkwy., on which it was planned to construct about 300 garden-type apartment units at an approximate cost of three million dollars.

Disapproved also was the request of J. R. and M. M. Clark for apartment classification of a 30-acre tract on the west side of New Hampshire ave. extended, opposite the Naval Ordnance Laboratory. Between four and five hundrel units were planned to cost about four million dollars.

A request by R. Bates Warren for rezoning of a seven-acre tract at River and Goldsboro rds. to pave the way for 100 units costing $3,500,000 was also denied, as was a Kass Realty Co. request for rezoning three lots at Montgomery ave. and the East-West hwy. Bethesda, for construction of a 23-unit, $500,000 development.

Stolen Goods Lead to Safes, 3 Suspects

The Washington Post

Three young men were charged yesterday with stealing two safes here containing more than $1200.

Held under $5000 bond each for further hearing Tuesday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, the men are Billy Waugh, 22, of 507 K st. ne.; Billy Hughes, 20, of the same address, and Jack T. Lyons, 20, of 1005 L st. nw.

Police said they solved the "safe-liftings" by means of clues which included a stolen car, two whisky bottles with pouring spouts attached, six steaks, half a loin of pork and a liverwurst.

One safe was stolen September 11 from the Capitol Hill Restaurant, 101 B st. se. Nearly $1000 was inside it.

The other containing $277, was taken Monday night from David's Grill, 1123 17th st. nw., with the whisky and foodstuffs.

Tuesday morning, according to police, a stolen car with the ignition wires crossed and the steering lock broken was found in the rear of 735 North Capitol st.

Inside the automobile were two bottles of whisky of the same brand as those stolen from David's Grill.

Det. Sergts. M. O. Myers, Thomas C. Sullivan and S. R. Russell were sent to investigate.

They said that inside the icebox in one of the rooms of 735 North Capitol st. were found the various meats. A walk down to the basement, said the policemen, and there was the safe stolen Monday. The safe was not broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Curtis of the North Capitol st. address were questioned and held as Government witnesses. Within 12 hours, the three defendants were arrested.

The safe from the Capitol Hill Restaurant was recovered earlier from the grounds of the National Training School. The $1000 is still missing.

Veteran's Body Found in Ruins After Md. Fire

The body of Harwell H. Mitchell, 26, of 1831 Monroe st. nw., veteran of Bataan and Japanese prisoner of war for 3½ years, was found early yesterday morning in the smoking ruins of a cottage at Sherwood Forest, near Annapolis.

Three fire companies fought the blaze, unaware that the summer cottage was occupied. Two firemen found Mr. Mitchell's body lying on a half consumed bed in the ruins.

Mrs. Claire Mitchell of the Monroe st. address, mother of the Army veteran, said he had been living at the cottage for the past 10 days while painting it. He was to have begun on-the-job training here shortly in jewelry making, she said.

She said that neighbors told her they had heard an explosion about 5:30 a. m. yesterday morning, followed by a mass of flames leaping from the cottage. Origin of the fire is undetermined.

The cottage was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur M. Sherwood of 322 Jefferson st. nw. Police said the owners had contracted with Mr. Mitchell to paint the interior.

Mr. Mitchell enlisted in the Army in January of 1941, and was taken prisoner on Corregidor after it fell to the Japanese. He was discharged this year as a corporal, and had been living at the Monroe st. address since then. He was a native of Texas.

Besides his mother, Mr. Mitchell is survived by a brother, Malcolm, now en route here from Corpus Christi, Tex., where he is a seaman first class in the Navy.

Huff Tells Fund Needs For Public Welfare

All Services Must Be Modernized, Director Says in Budget Analysis

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The District's Public Welfare Department needs modernization of all its services and more adequate resources as it "comes of age."

Huff

This was the statement yesterday of Ray L. Huff, director of public welfare, who in the department's 21st annual report to the District Commissioners declared that "welfare needs have not been met as they need to be."

"By sudden thrusts from explosions and catastrophes, money has been found which did not appear to exist before. The catastrophe resulted in attention and emotional reaction. Public welfare is not an emotional process. It is a means for public security. It requires sober, considered attention before catastrophe strikes."

Huff contrasted the work of public welfare with that done by private agencies and concluded that "the same degree of interest and the same extent of organized opinion has not existed in support of public legislation, especially legislation for appropriations."

Huff pointed out that the Council of Social Agencies has "diminished" the "effectiveness" of some of its member groups by permitting "small groups to act and report on matters under actual or allowed sponsorship." He added, however, that "present activities for Council and Chest reorganization brought about through the strong expression of interest by civic groups will probably bring about a change."

The Board of Public Welfare, said Huff, "recognizes that insofar as it is practicable to do so under the law, the work of public and private organizations should be coordinated to achieve total community security."

The welfare director declared that all institutions for children and adults are inadequate. "While it is true that improvements have been made in institutional services in program and in repairs, yet what can be done with ease and economy in a properly constructed institution can be approximated only with great stress and high cost in inadequate institutions . . . The high cost of small operations acts to create a dilemma which defeats appropriations."

A reduction of the "very high turnover" of welfare workers during past years was predicted by Huff.

The reduction, Huff believes, will come about through the In-Service Training Program for Agency Services and Protective Institutions, which was begun during the fiscal year 1946 and which was continued last year.

Huff explained that the heavy demand for social workers has made the field highly competitive, and that a strong training program is essential to the operation.

Need for a greater degree of public information on welfare matters was cited by Huff.

Huff declared that "general public meetings" are needed, to study specific phases of welfare problems. Sessions would be held on such topics as care of the feeble-minded, juvenile delinquency, institutional requirements, home finding, emergency care of children, assistance needs and adoptions.

Some District Foster Homes Unsuitable

Some foster homes here are "completely inadequate," according to the annual report of Ray L. Huff, welfare director, to the District Commissioners yesterday.

Huff urged a study of these homes "to decide whether it is to the best interest of the children to remain there, or if their disadvantages are not overweighed by the ties the children may have established to the family."

"There are indications," the report said, "that it may be impossible to find adequate foster homes for all of the agency's children. It is not possible to predict certainly how substantially increased board rates, changes in the licensing regulations, economic and social changes that may come in the community, and increased recruitment and educational efforts may influence the number of usable applicants. However, it is questionable if enough adequate homes for older children can be found."

State Hospital At Marion Asks Four Millions

Marion, Va., Sept. 23 (AP).—Southwestern Virginia State hospital, the last of six institutions visited today by Governor Tuck and his budget advisory commission, produced a budget asking for $2,430,070 for maintenance and operation during the biennium beginning next July 1.

The institution also petitioned for an additional appropriation of $1,680,000 for additional building and improvements.

The touring budgeteers stopped for the night here after receiving requests representing combined increases of more than three million dollars for operating costs and some $6,500,000 for capital outlays from five institutions visited earlier in the day.

At Catawba, their first stop of the day, the budget-makers heard officials of the tubersulosis hospital ask for $1,079,452 from the general fund for maintenance and operation in the new biennium, an increase of $478,258 over the 1946-48 figure.

Catawba's program also called for $1,462,860 in capital outlay appropriations.

To Meet Rising Costs

Here, as in all other requests, the need for more money for personnel and to meet rising costs otherwise was cited.

VPI asked for $2,176,876 from the general fund for maintenance and operations, an increase of $953,077. This was based on an enrollment of 4800 students.

Dr. Walter Newman, VPI president, told the commission that the amount sought from the general fund was just 24.8 per cent fo VPI's total budget of $8,761,257 proposed for the new biennium. The rest would come from fees and other special sources.

A $5,111,333 capital outlay program was outlined for VPI, including $3,542,183 in new funds sought from the State.

For Station, Service

Along with the VPI requests were budgets for the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station and the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

The experiment station asked for $1,313,362 from the general fund, or $691,320 above the present biennium's figure. In capital outlays, it proposed $483,250, of which $424,578 would be new.

The Extension Service called for $2,271,528 toward its total proposed budget of $3,865,558.

The collage also asked for $1,937,800 in capital outlays, which would include $469,000 in new money plus funds previously appropriated.

Tomorrow the budget group will inspect the regional prison farm in Bland County and then swing back to Virginia Military Institute at Lexington.

Commission Acts on Md. Pollution

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission announced today it had adopted three resolutions aimed at making the State's waters purer, and had voted to cooperate with West Virginia in a four-point program to wipe out pollution of the Potomac.

One resolution was designed to prevent pollution by industrial enterprises and residential developments; another would prevent dumping of oil from vessels, and the third would authorize proceedings against offenders cited by inspectors.

Pollution Case Begun

Members disclosed that enforcement officials were building up a case against developers of two Anne Arundel County real estate subdivisions from which they said sewage is now being dumped into the Severn and South rivers.

Dr. Robert H. Riley, State Health Director, and a member of the commission, declared:

"No doubt the attitude of these polluters and others like them will be different when they realize the power vested in the new group.

Commission's Powers

"Whenever health authorities step in to correct pollution they have been required to prove that conditions had made someone ill or threatened the public health.

"Now it would seem that it is only necessary to prove that pollution results from the discharge or deposit of liquids or solids which may create a nuisance or be detrimental to natural resources."

The commission authorized Maul M. McKee, its executive secretary, to cooperate with West Virginia in carrying out an attack on the Potomac River pollution problem along lines suggested by K. S. Watson of Charleston, W. Va.

De Franceschi and the two children failed to return home for supper on Saturday after what started out to be a routine trip to Washington.

Mrs. De Franceschi said last night she would seek court action giving her custody of the two children when her husband's whereabouts are learned.

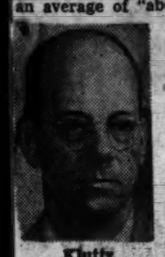
Navy to Up 'Per Diems' In District 12 Cts. Hour

'Average' Boost Resulting From Survey Will Be Effective Nov. 1

By Jerry Kluttz



Kluttz

Approximately 12,000 Navy per diem employes in the Washington area will have their salaries raised an average of "about 12 cents an hour," a Navy official revealed yesterday.

The increase, he said, would be approved officially on or before October 1. It will go into effect no later than November 1. It was explained that the commanding officers of naval establishments would be given a maximum of 30 days to make changes to put the wage boosts into operation.

The Navy man emphasized that the increase will "average" about 12 cents an hour, but that the wage raise of an individual employe may be as low as 8 cents, and as high as 15 cents an hour. Many of Navy's West Coast per diems have had their salaries boosted a flat 15 cents an hour.

The higher salaries are the result of surveys made of the salaries paid the Navy's 200,000 per diem employes the country over. The study was ordered last July 1 by then Secretary Forrestal after cost-of-living increases had been won by private employes in similar work. The law requires the Navy to pay its per diems the rates "prevailing" in the areas in which they work.

The big bloc of per diems here work at the Naval Gun Factory. Others are employed at the Alexandria Ordnance Plant, David Taylor Model Basin, Naval Research Laboratory, Naval Ordnance Laboratory, Naval Air Station, the Anacostia Receiving Station, Bethesda Naval Hospital, the Indian Head (Md.) Powder Plant, and the Naval Observatory.

GPO: The 7700 employes of the Government Printing Office also will seek cost-of-living wage boosts. It is reported that the craft unions that represent the bulk of the employes will seek a flat 15 per cent wage increase. GPO employes were given an increase that averaged 14 per cent a year ago.

Most of the unions that have members in GPO have served notice on the public printer that they will seek a reopening of wage negotiations on or after October 1. The public printer has the authority to adjust salaries and his policy is to give the same increase to union and non-union employes. However, he seeks the advice of the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing before a settlement is made.

The 1600 GPO printers are represented by the Columbia Typographical Union. They have selected a 5-man committee to negotiate a cost-of-living raise for them. Their wage demands will be presented to Public Printer Giegengack late next week.

BEP: Another round of wage increases will follow to the several thousand per diem employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing if GPO, as expected, approves a cost-of-living raise. BEP follows the GPO on salary schedules. However, only one craft union there has presented a petition to Director Alvin W. Hall for a cost-of-living boost. The other union representatives are awaiting the outcome of GPO negotiations before they act.

WHITE-COLLAR: Pay raises for per diems in Government will underline the plight of the Government white-collar, or classified, employe, whose salary is fixed by Congress.

The average Government per diem employe already has had his salary raised an average of 43 per cent since before the war. Now that average is to be raised. In fact, it has already risen since the War Department recently granted pay raises to many of its per diems.

On the other hand, the white-collar employe has had an average increase of around 33 per cent since before the war. And he has no immediate prospect of being given relief. In contrast, the cost of living is up about 60 per cent since before the war.

The average increase of 14 per cent given white-collar employes as of July 1, 1945, has been more than wiped out by higher living costs. If that raise was justified then, a better case can be made now for a flat 20 per cent boost.

On top of the soaring living costs, thousands of white-collar employes have had their salaries slashed in the shake-down of Government by demotions, reclassifications and downgradings. To sum it all up, the Government white-collar employe is becoming Uncle Sam's "forgotten man."

JOBS: Veterans Administration has openings for CAF-11 and 12 experienced real estate appraisers. Apply to Room 2710 of the Munitions Building . . . United Nations in New York needs a crew of light offset pressmen to work during the General Assembly meeting. Get further details today at 820 7th st. nw.

Mother of Boy, 7, Accuses Stepfather in Custody Case

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

An attractive 24-year-old mother, accused of abandoning her young son, wept as she testified yesterday that she fled from her parents' home, leaving the boby behind, because he stepfather had made improper advances toward her.

The woman, Mrs. Edith Dye, had brought proceedings against her stepfather, Clyde L. King and her mother, Grace, 308 Seaton pl. nw., seeking to regain custody of the 7-year-old boy.

The lad, Edward, had been living with the grandparents since he was a year old.

Mrs. Dye told how she had been awarded custody of her son after she and her husband, George, were separated in 1941.

She said that she secured employment at a Baltimore bomber plant leaving the child with the grandparents and paying her mother $120 a month for his support.

Tears trickled down the witness' face as she testified she decided to leave her parents' home after her stepfather molested her while her mother was away.

In 1944, she testified, she joined the Wacs. She saiod she continued to send money to the grandparents for the child's support until her discharge in 1946.

She told the court she had tried on six occasions to persuade her parents to return the child to her but was refused. So urgent was her desire for the lad, she said, that she even tried to "steal" him but was unsuccessful.

Denying that she had ever "abandoned" the boy, she said she visited him twice a month after leaving Washington.

As Mrs. Dye launched into her testimony, her attorney, James C. Toomey asked Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts to exclude the boy from the courtroom.

The lad, who had been sleeping peacefully in the lap of his stepfather, was removed.

When Mrs. Dye became too choked with emotion to continue, Letts recessed the case until today when the witness is expected to resume testimony.

King, a railroad engineer, told reporters that he and his wife "have become too attached to the youngster to give it up."

"His mother never took care of him," he said. "It was only about four months ago that she first started to show any interest in him."

Mrs. Jillson Says Mate Is In Contempt

The estranged wife of a former Army major yesterday asked the District Court to adjudge him guilty of contempt in failing to give her custody of their 4-year-old son as decreed by the court in a temporary custory order last month.

The motion was filed in behalf of Mrs. Kathryn Sinclaire Jillson, 1841 R st. nw., by her attorney, Jean Boardman.

Mrs. Jillson filed suit for divorce against George Jacob Jillson in April, 1945, charging cruelty. Jillson brought a counter complaint charging misconduct, which Mrs. Jillson denied.

In the divorce suit, Mrs. Jillson also accused her husband of attempting to have her railroaded to an insane asylum. She was found of sound mind at Gallinger, the suit alleged. A damage suit is pending in District Court against a psychiatrist, allegedly employed by Jillson. The divorce proceedings are still in litigation.

Associate Justice Edward M. Curran last August granted temporary custody of the child to Mrs. Jillson pending further divorce action. The boy was said to have been staying with Jillson's mother in Pearl River, N. Y.

Mrs. Jilison declared in an affidavit which accompanied the suit yesterday that she had brought habeas corpus proceedings in New York in a move to get custody. The affidavit stated that the New York court refused temporarily to give "full faith and credit" to the District Court's custody order, pending further action.

Boardman said yesterday Jillson was with the Army of Occupation in Japan last month but he has no knowledge of his present address.

Mental Tests Ordered for Man Accused by Child

A man accused of molesting an 8-year-old girl and of using vile language to the girl's mother when the latter called him to protest, yesterday was ordered held for a mental examination pending trial.

The action was taken by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson upon request of the defendant, John A. Antonelli, 23, of 828 49th av., Capitol Heights, Md. Trial on the charges was slated for October 28.

Sex squad detectives reported Antonelli made improper advances to the child in a downtown shade shop where he was employed part time. Antonelli had been convicted twice before on similar charges.

McCandlish Wins Verdict In Recount

Fairfax Resident Declared Democrat Nominee by 1 Vote Over Edwin Lynch

Robert J. McCandlish, jr., of Fairfax, yesterday was declared Democratic nominee for the county's seat in the House of Delegates by a one point majority over Delegate Edwin Lynch.

A court of three circuit judges named McCandlish the winner, in what had seemed to be a tie primary election, by a vote of 2851 to 2850.

In the morning, the three-man commission appointed September 9 to recount the ballots presented to the court their findings: 2843 votes for McCandlish; 2841 votes for Lynch; 54 ballots in dispute.

No Errors Found

Chairman T. J. Atockton said the commission had found no error in the original count. The break in the tie came as a result of the judges' rulings in the case of the disputed ballots, which included ballots thrown out by the polling judges as well as those contested by the candidates during the recount.

So ended the controversy which has dragged on since August 6. Previous highlights in the case were:

(1) Unofficial announcement on August 6 that Lynch had won, 2854 to 2852. This was taken from telephoned reports to the central registrr from the 26 precincts.

(2) Official announcement by the board of election canvassers on August 7 of a tie, 2853 votes each.

Lynch Certified

(3) Drawing of lots in Richmond August 12 by the State Board of Elections. Lynch's name was drawn. The board then certified Lynch as the party's nominee.

4. Court hearing in Fairfax on McCandlish's petition for a recount, filed August 9. The court, appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Appeals, assumed jurisdiction and appointed the commission which handed in its report yesterday.

The court handed down its decision after hearing argument by opposing counsel on the ballots in dispute. Most of these were ballots which showed erasures or unofficial markings.

"It's been some doin's," sighed McCandlish when it was all over. McCandlish, who first won a seat in the House in a special 1942 election, had previously defeated Lynch by a comfortable margin in 1943. Lynch, in turn, won the seat in 1945.

"Somebody had to lose," said Lynch as he wished McCandlish well in the November election. "Perhaps I'm just as well out of it." He said he would return to his occupation as farmer and real estate man, and has no political plans for the future.

$1,275,000 Donated

Approximately $1,275,000 has been contributed so far to Children's Hospital funds campaign, John J. Anderson, assistant director, said last night.

Among the more recent contributions is $300, contributed by Capital Forest No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon. The campaign has been under way since mid-March, 1946.

GWU Coeds Are 'Polishing Apples'

The Washington Post

THE PROF IS ALL FOR IT—Dean Elmer Louis Kayser of George Washington University can thank Gov. William Tuck of Virginia for the apples offered to him by coeds yesterday. The Governor sent the apples—blue-ribbon winners in the recent Virginia State Fair—to the students for use in the frequently mentioned practice of "apple polishing" with their professors. The coeds are (from left) Barbara Hanby, president of the Mortar Board honor society; Nancy Anderson, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Queen of the 1946 Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, and Mrs. Lynn Post, a junior, who was the Summer Prom Queen at the University of Wisconsin this year

Civic Groups Warned on School Use

(See also "Letters to the Editor," Page 12)

Citizens' and civic organizations were reminded yesterday that meetings which "create unrest" are not permitted in the public schools.

The reminder came from the District Recreation Board, which has charge of community use of public school buildings.

It followed protests by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Committee for Racial Democracy in the Nation's Capital over statements made last Wednesday night at a meeting of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association in the Crosby S. Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne.

Association Officer Credited

The statements which drew the protests were made by Arthur B. McNerney, 1016 Jackson st. ne., an officer of the Brookland-Dahlgren Terrace Protective Association. McNerney spoke before about 40 members of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association who had gathered to map plans for a legal fight to enforce restrictive covenants which forbid sale of property in the neighborhood to Negroes.

Veterans Get Little Hope On Housing

Heads of local veterans' organizations received little encouragement on the Washington area housing situation when they visited the D. C. Veterans Information Center, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., yesterday at the invitation of Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director.

Miss Mary Mahoney, housing supervisor for the center, told the visitors that landlords have less to offer and are even more allergic to families with children than was the case a year ago. Furthermore, she said, the demand now is more for permanent homes or apartments than was the case during the war, when the men were away.

Colonel Leonard poited out that almost half the present housing applicants are military personnel transferred to this area. He said a good part of the shortage for Army men might be relieved if barracks at Fort Belvoir and Fort Hunt, between Alexandria and Mount Vernon, were turned over for family housing.

Home seekers are now coming to the Center at the rate of more than 100 a day, according to the Center's records for this month. Of these, an average of 32 are placed, some 15 of them in apartments or rooms with cooking privileges or facilities, Miss Mahoney said.

Montgomery Approves Big Housing Plan

A twice-rejected apartment zoning request for a 1500-unit, 15-million-dollar apartment project was approved yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners.

Construction of garden-type apartments on a 92-acre tract at Piney Branch rd. and New Hampshire ave. extended, is contemplated for next spring, according to W. W. Rapley.

Zoning approval was conditioned upon construction being started within one year. The commissioners also ordered that a school site and park lands be set aside on the tract.

The application was 1 of 28 acted upon yesterday by the commissioners. Seven were approved, action was deferred on 1, and 20 were denied.

Denied by the board were four other apartment zonings which embraced erection of units costing an estimated $11,000,000. Among them was a request by J. A. Watson, jr., H. F. Watson and Hilleary O. Rose for rezoning of a 20-acre tract adjoining Sligo Creek pkwy., on which it was planned to construct about 300 garden-type apartment units at an approximate cost of three million dollars.

Disapproved also was the request of J. R. and M. M. Clark for apartment classification of a 30-acre tract on the west side of New Hampshire ave. extended, opposite the Naval Ordnance Laboratory. Between four and five hundrel units were planned to cost about four million dollars.

A request by R. Bates Warren for rezoning of a seven-acre tract at River and Goldsboro rds. to pave the way for 100 units costing $3,500,000 was also denied, as was a Kass Realty Co. request for rezoning three lots at Montgomery ave. and the East-West hwy. Bethesda, for construction of a 23-unit, $500,000 development.

Huff Tells Fund Needs For Public Welfare

All Services Must Be Modernized, Director Says in Budget Analysis

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The District's Public Welfare Department needs modernization of all its services and more adequate resources as it "comes of age."

Huff

This was the statement yesterday of Ray L. Huff, director of public welfare, who in the department's 21st annual report to the District Commissioners declared that "welfare needs have not been met as they need to be."

"By sudden thrusts from explosions and catastrophes, money has been found which did not appear to exist before. The catastrophe resulted in attention and emotional reaction. Public welfare is not an emotional process. It is a means for public security. It requires sober, considered attention before catastrophe strikes."

Huff contrasted the work of public welfare with that done by private agencies and concluded that "the same degree of interest and the same extent of organized opinion has not existed in support of public legislation, especially legislation for appropriations."

Huff pointed out that the Council of Social Agencies has "diminished" the "effectiveness" of some of its member groups by permitting "small groups to act and report on matters under actual or allowed sponsorship." He added, however, that "present activities for Council and Chest reorganization brought about through the strong expression of interest by civic groups will probably bring about a change."

The Board of Public Welfare, said Huff, "recognizes that insofar as it is practicable to do so under the law, the work of public and private organizations should be coordinated to achieve total community security."

The welfare director declared that all institutions for children and adults are inadequate. "While it is true that improvements have been made in institutional services in program and in repairs, yet what can be done with ease and economy in a properly constructed institution can be approximated only with great stress and high cost in inadequate institutions . . . The high cost of small operations acts to create a dilemma which defeats appropriations."

A reduction of the "very high turnover" of welfare workers during past years was predicted by Huff.

The reduction, Huff believes, will come about through the In-Service Training Program for Agency Services and Protective Institutions, which was begun during the fiscal year 1946 and which was continued last year.

Huff explained that the heavy demand for social workers has made the field highly competitive, and that a strong training program is essential to the operation.

Need for a greater degree of public information on welfare matters was cited by Huff.

Huff declared that "general public meetings" are needed, to study specific phases of welfare problems. Sessions would be held on such topics as care of the feeble-minded, juvenile delinquency, institutional requirements, home finding, emergency care of children, assistance needs and adoptions.

Stolen Goods Lead to Safes, 3 Suspects

The Washington Post

Three young men were charged yesterday with stealing two safes here containing more than $1200.

Held under $5000 bond each for further hearing Tuesday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, the men are Billy Waugh, 22, of 507 K st. ne.; Billy Hughes, 20, of the same address, and Jack T. Lyons, 20, of 1005 L st. nw.

Police said they solved the "safe-liftings" by means of clues which included a stolen car, two whisky bottles with pouring spouts attached, six steaks, half a loin of pork and a liverwurst.

One safe was stolen September 11 from the Capitol Hill Restaurant, 101 B st. se. Nearly $1000 was inside it.

The other containing $277, was taken Monday night from David's Grill, 1123 17th st. nw., with the whisky and foodstuffs.

Tuesday morning, according to police, a stolen car with the ignition wires crossed and the steering lock broken was found in the rear of 735 North Capitol st.

Inside the automobile were two bottles of whisky of the same brand as those stolen from David's Grill.

Det. Sergts. M. O. Myers, Thomas C. Sullivan and S. R. Russell were sent to investigate.

They said that inside the icebox in one of the rooms of 735 North Capitol st. were found the various meats. A walk down to the basement, said the policemen, and there was the safe stolen Monday. The safe was not broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Curtis of the North Capitol st. address were questioned and held as Government witnesses. Within 12 hours, the three defendants were arrested.

The safe from the Capitol Hill Restaurant was recovered earlier from the grounds of the National Training School. The $1000 is still missing.

Veteran's Body Found in Ruins After Md. Fire

The body of Harwell H. Mitchell, 26, of 1831 Monroe st. nw., veteran of Bataan and Japanese prisoner of war for 3½ years, was found early yesterday morning in the smoking ruins of a cottage at Sherwood Forest, near Annapolis.

Three fire companies fought the blaze, unaware that the summer cottage was occupied. Two firemen found Mr. Mitchell's body lying on a half consumed bed in the ruins.

Mrs. Claire Mitchell of the Monroe st. address, mother of the Army veteran, said he had been living at the cottage for the past 10 days while painting it. He was to have begun on-the-job training here shortly in jewelry making, she said.

She said that neighbors told her they had heard an explosion about 5:30 a. m. yesterday morning, followed by a mass of flames leaping from the cottage. Origin of the fire is undetermined.

The cottage was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur M. Sherwood of 322 Jefferson st. nw. Police said the owners had contracted with Mr. Mitchell to paint the interior.

Mr. Mitchell enlisted in the Army in January of 1941, and was taken prisoner on Corregidor after it fell to the Japanese. He was discharged this year as a corporal, and had been living at the Monroe st. address since then. He was a native of Texas.

Besides his mother, Mr. Mitchell is survived by a brother, Malcolm, now en route here from Corpus Christi, Tex., where he is a seaman first class in the Navy.

Some District Foster Homes Unsuitable

Some foster homes here are "completely inadequate," according to the annual report of Ray L. Huff, welfare director, to the District Commissioners yesterday.

Huff urged a study of these homes "to decide whether it is to the best interest of the children to remain there, or if their disadvantages are not overweighed by the ties the children may have established to the family."

"There are indications," the report said, "that it may be impossible to find adequate foster homes for all of the agency's children. It is not possible to predict certainly how substantially increased board rates, changes in the licensing regulations, economic and social changes that may come in the community, and increased recruitment and educational efforts may influence the number of usable applicants. However, it is questionable if enough adequate homes for older children can be found."

Va. Ferry Employes Accept 9-Cent Raise

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—Employes of the Norfolk-Portsmouth ferries agreed late today to accept a 9-cent-per-hour wage increase offered as a compromise between the workers' demands for 15 cents and the operators' offer of 6 cents. The increase, which a ferry spokesman said would be recommended to the ferry board by its negotiating committee would be retroactive to July 1.

Shortage of Pickers Causes Apple Losses

Frederick, Md., Sept. 24 (Spl.).—Thousands of bushels of apples will be lost to local orchardists because of a shortage of pickers, it was revealed here today.

Growers are resorting to special sprays to hold the apples on the trees longer. This gives more time for picking when help is short and provides more chance for better color on red varieties, orchardists said.

Because of lack of help, the Hillcrest Orchards, three miles west of Frederick, had a heavy drop of 1600 bushels of Jonathans this week. At the same orchard it was stated that from 10,000 to 15,000 bushels of Grimes Golden apples are ready for picking.

At the Guynn Orchards, east of here, a new compound of 2-4-d, the weed killer, is being used as a "stop-drop" chemical on Stayman Winesaps and Virginia Winesaps.

Orchardists here agree that the labor shortage is worse even than during the war, with no solution in prospect.

Drive Planned Against Oyster Poaching

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 24 (AP).—John E. Clark, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, said today, "We are determined to break up oyster poaching in the Potomac River.

"With the pledged cooperation of Virginia, the commission is sure it can be done."

Clark made the statement after a commission meeting at which plans were completed to throw every available boat and officer into Potomac River service.

He said, "lots of complaints of violations on the Potomac River have been received. A patrol has been maintained and the violations so far as we can ascertain are greatly exaggerated.

False Reports Received

"We have received a number of false reports through the State police phone service at Waldorf, which is connected with our boats."

The campaign against poachers will include the use of five boats, two of them fast new-engined jobs, and one airplane. In all, it will cost $30,000 annually.

Clark said, "we will expand our patroling hours as much as possible. Some of our officers are now working 18 hours a day."

The commission has been plagued with boat troubles since before the oyster season started this year. One boat, the Potomac, blew up shortly before the season began. Another, the Venus, developed motor trouble which necessitated long repairs.

Trouble has been experienced also in procuring engines for the two most recently purchased boats.

Campaign Outlined

Mason Sheehan, pilot of the amphiban enforcement plane, and in charge of field personnel, outlined the planned campaign against poachers.

"Nearly 100 miles of waterways in the Potomac and the tributaries will be patroled. The boats to go into service will be the Wicomoco, the Pocomoke, the Tiny Lou, the Venus and the Patsy or the Louis D. as well as the plane," Sheehan said.

"Two more young and vigorous officers will be added so that we shall have an enforcement group of 12 men on the river."

Sheehan said there have been no arrests on the river so far this season. The only violations the force was certain of was a raid from Virginia the day before the season opened.

Monroe Studies Request For More Patrol Boats

Maryland State Senator James B. Monroe said yesterday that he and Charles County representatives to the Maryland House of Delegates are considering the question of requesting additional patrol boats in the oyster dispute.

Monroe denied "promising" a meeting of Maryland oystermen that he would "request" Governor Lane to send two more patrol boats for use on the Potomac River, and one to patrol the Wicomico River, as the oystermen reported.

"We are considering this matter," said Monroe, "and will take whatever action necessary."

Church Opens Novel Child Teaching Plan

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The way of life preached in the Sermon on the Mount will be brought to the children of Christ Episcopal Church, Georgetown, in a two year character building program that will be inaugurated at the church next Sunday.

Anschutz

The church is one of 14 throughout the country, and the only one in the Middle Atlantic States, chosen by Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., to conduct the program.

The Rev. John R. Anschutz, rector of Christ Church, described the program as a "revolution" in the teaching of the Christian faith to children. Modern methods of education and psychology will be applied.

Professor to Speak

The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Ligon, professor of psychology at Union Theological Seminary, who developed the program after 14 years of research in character education, will speak at the a. m. service Sunday when the program is instituted.

One phase of the program is participation by parents. They will attend classes each Sunday with their children. Throughout the week they will apply the teachings, and report on the effect of the program.

Mr. Anschutz said the first unit of the study will last three months and will be based on the Beatitude: "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God."

Although teaching by the use of Bible stories will not be completely abandoned, greater emphasis will be placed on "the drama type, educational process," according to Mrs. Edward H. Jones, director of Christian education for Christ Church.

Georgetown Zoning Waived For New Boys Club Quarters

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday gave the green light for construction of a new clubhouse in Georgetown for the Boys Club of Washington.

It agreed to waive zoning requirements and permit the Boys Club to purchase more than two acres of land adjoining the Dumbarton Oaks estate at the rear of 3263 S st. nw.

Attorney James C. Wilkes, who presented the Boys Club case at the hearing, said the club had $25,000 in the bank with which to buy property. He said club members hoped to obtain the $150,000 for the clubhouse through the Community Chest and private donors.

Wilkes said the plan had the backing of the Georgetown Citizens Association, officials at Gordon Junior High School, and a number of Georgetown residents and businessmen.

The Counsel of Social Agencies, following a recent survey, recommended that a clubhouse be built in the area, he added.

Opposition to the plan came from four residents of areas near the property in question. They were led by S. Percy Thompson, 3247 R st. nw., who expressed the fear that the boys would make too much noise.

Wilkes said the boys club had outgrown present Georgetown headquarters donated by the Rotary Club in the Peck Memorial Chapel Building at Pennsylvania ave., M and 30th sts. nw.

In another major case yesterday, the Board of Zoning Adjustment decided it lacked authority to grant Woodward & Lothrop, Inc., permission to build a higher addition to a water-cooling tower than present zoning regulations permit.

The board said, however, that it would ask the Zoning Commission to either grant authority for the addition or change zoning regulations so it could be built.

James W. Harkrader . . .

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—James W. Harkrader, who would have been 104 years old October 24, died last night at his home at Highland in northern Pulaski County.

A native of Franklin County, he moved to Pulaski County about 50 years ago and was believed to have been the oldest resident of this area. He was active until three weeks ago and had been in bed only the past week. He had, for a number of years, been a farmer on the J. A. Jennings estate.

Rabbi Silverman, 66, Dies; Hebraic Student, Inventor

Funeral services for Rabbi Abba Silverman, Hebraic student and writer, inventor, farmer and businessman, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Goldberg's Funeral Home, 4217 9th st. nw.

Rabbi Silverman, 66, died Tuesday at George Washington University Hospital after an illness of several months. Burial will be in Adas Israel Cemetery.

Born in Russia, he came to Washington when 26 and settled here. Shortly after that he invented the first clothesline pulley, a device he patented. Later he turned to farming in Prince Georges County, but eventually returned to the District where he became engaged in the wholesale drygoods business.

For the past 20 years, Rabbi Silverman had given his time to the Jewish religion. A devout man, he felt according to his daughter, Mrs. Rose Millstein of Chevy Chase, that the greatest thing in life was to do good for others.

Rabbi Silverman studied both here and in New York, but never occupied a pulpit. His scholarly interest in religion led him to become a student of Hebrew. He had done much research and writing in that language.

Some years ago he bought a home in Tel Aviv, Palestine. Recently he turned it over to the mayor of that city for use by Jewish refugees. Philanthropically minded, he had also financed the college educations of several students.

He is survived by a son, Julius, of Detroit, and three daughters, Mrs. Sara Seigel of 725 Rittenhouse st. nw., with whom he made his home, Mrs. J. M. Rollins of the Concord apartments, and Mrs. Millstein.

Private, Given Life For Desertion, Ordered Freed

Boston, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Michael de Bartolo, 23-year-old Dorchester Army private sentenced to life imprisonment for desertion in Italy after being court-martialed, was ordered freed today by the Army Board of Review in Washington, according to word received here.

Former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly, De Bartolo's attorney, said he learned today that the court-martial board in Rome, Italy, had been ordered to set aside its decision and free the youth on the grounds that he had not received a fair trial.

At a court-martial, he was sentenced to life imprisonment, but this sentence was reduced to 10 years on the plea of his attorneys.

Chilean Artist Paints Drucie And President

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THERE'S a new portrait of pretty Drucie Snyder hanging in her father's office in the Treasury building. It's a beautiful job, very 18th Century in feeling and painted by Chilean-born Greta Kempton who, in private life, rejoices in the name of Mrs. A. M. McNamara.

Miss Kempton has also turned out a portrait of President Truman which is so well liked by the Truman family that it'll probably be the official likeness used during the 1948 campaign. All for women making more than good, we're simply delighted!

Surveying American Scene

CULTURAL anthropologist Geoffrey Gorer will nip from London to Washington for the October 17 week-end. He's enroute to Columbia University where he'll give a three-months course. Gorer's the author of a controversial article which recently appeared in Life.

In the excerpt from his soon-to-be published book, "The Americans, A Study in Character," Mr. G. summed up the American scene with deadly skill. "Father Never Knows Best," "Madame Chairman Reigns Supreme" and "Youth Is the One Reason for Living" are a few of his pithy subtitles.

Before delving into American ways, Gorer studied primitive dancing in Africa, lived eight months and learned the language of a remote Himalayan village. His resulting books, "Africa Dances" and "Life in a Himalayan Village," despite their arid titles, are naughtily amusing as well as scholarly correct. He lived in Washington on and off for seven years working for various government agencies, the Rockefeller Foundation and Yale University's department of Human Relations. But his most fascinating job was making an analysis of moving picture audience reactions in 46 of the 48 States.

Popular British Lecturer

THE FALL lecture season's in full flower, and among the early birds of special interest to the ladies is Henry C. Usborne, M.P. Next week, in lightning succession, he's to talk at the Women's Press Club, the Co-Operative Forum and, on Tuesday, go on the air on station WINX.

Thirty-eight-year-old Mr. Usborne, who's a Labor Member of Parliament, heads England's political group for World Government. His most recent distinction was being appointed by Ernest Bevin to answer King George's speech made at the opening of Parliament. This is a ticklish job, since the main thesis of the royal pronouncement must be dovetailed unerringly into government policy.

Mr. Usborne is tall, blond, a leading cricket man, an engineer and a director of a firm optimistically called the New Way Heating Plants. Barnstorming cross country to San Francisco, he plans to stop off at one of the firm's factories now operating in our Middle West.

'Fashion Is Like Music'

FASHION is as whimsical as the breeze that whips and swirls the skirt of this Christian Dior dress which was photographed in Paris a few days ago. We have special reference to the tiny, black beret perching with a jaunty air on the side of the model's head. Only a short time ago latest word on hats from the French capital was that they were to be big, broad and bulky. Now the stylists have completely reversed themselves, maintain that small chapeaux, rather than large ones, are best with the new longer styles.

THE dress, made of sheer black wool, is called "Margrave." Its most noteworthy feature is the daring divided bodice held together with three large knots. The decolletage is very low, fabric being reserved for the skirt which flares out to the tune of about 10 yards. M. Dior who is accused of being the man behind fashion's new look, is currently touring America and showed some of his latest designs in Chicago this week. He told his audience that "American women are serious about fashion—they will wear longer skirts." He said he knew French women will wear the longer modes, measuring about 12¼ inches from the floor. He explained:

"When fashion comes to Paris, women wear it. Fashion is like music—French women enjoy it and take it lightly."

Woman's Party Members Give Reports on Chaotic World

Poland was literally sold down the river at the Yalta Conference . . . although the fuel situation in Norway is even more critical than last year, perhaps the winter won't be as severe and children may be able to spend part of the day out of bed . . . despite topsy-turvy conditions in India, the people are trying desperately to raise their standard of living . . . the recent trouble in Indonesia was unfortunate but unavoidable . . . Holland has great hope in the Marshall plan . . .

These international viewpoints from a chaotic world came together yesterday at a press conference sponsored by the National Woman's Party at the Alva Belmont House, 144 B st. ne. Interviewed were Mme. Wanda Grabinska, Polish woman judge; Mrs. Ahalya Shrinagesh of India, Miss Helene Hansen of Norway, and Miss Louise C. A. van Eeghen of The Netherlands.

All were delegates at the recent gathering of the International Council of Women in Philadelphia and are in Washington for the first postwar board meeting of the World Woman's Party for Equal Rights to be held here today.

"Personal contact between people of different nations is the only way to promote peace," declared Miss Hansen, who is a former national officer of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Norway and conducted a girls' camp throughout the war.

"I don't believe Americans are war-mongers . . . we are grateful to you for your help while we were at the bottom of our resources, but I think we can manage now. Those boxes of food and clothing should be sent now to countries that need them more."

Denying charges that Holland is attempting to impose its imperialism on Indonesia, Miss van Eeghen hailed the sending of a United Nations commission to that chaotic country.

Of the Marshall Plan, she quoted Hollanders as saying, "The United States will help us if we help ourselves."

The formal business session of the World Woman's Party is scheduled for 10 a. m. today. At 3 p. m. foreign members of the National Woman's Party board will place wreaths at the base of the suffrage monument in the crypt of the Capitol

Senate Wives Europe Bound

Mrs. Brooks, Packing to Sail, Saves Space for French Bonnet

By Marie McNair

MRS. WAYLAND BROOKS, wife of the Senator from Indiana, is taking half a dozen hats to Europe but she vows to bring at least one new one back. And that one will come from Paris!

When she and the Senator sail on the S. S. America October 8, Mrs. Brooks will not be burdened by the usual cumbersome hatboxes, deemed a necessary accessory to the average feminine traveler.

Instead her hats will all be packed in the bags. Moreover, they're guaranteed to come out as fresh as the proverbial daisy, according to Philip Robertson, young Washington designer. For they're the crushable beret type hats which can easily be tucked away in spare corners.

A delegation of senatorial wives will be sailing on the America October 8. Their husbands are members of the Senate Appropriations Committee who'll spend five weeks or more studying economic conditions abroad. The ladies are looking forward to Paris and Rome and are even more excited at the prospect of getting into Germany.

Meanwhile Senator and Mrs. Brooks will be at French Lick Springs this weekend as the Senator is scheduled to speak to the Indiana Republican Editors Association. Next weekend they'll be in New York ready to set sail.

TOWN TOPICS: The late Haywood Newbold's little daughter, Betsy, has grown up since she left Washington for New York and she'll make her debut in that city the night after Christmas. Mrs. Newbold will give a supper dance for her daughter on the St. Regis roof on Friday, December 26. A graduate of the Brearley School last June, Miss Newbold is now studying at the Fashion Academy of Design in New York.

HMS Snipe, which has been in New York with the flagship Sheffield of the America and West Indies squadron, is at Newport for a week. The skipper, Comdr. J. M. Villiers, RN, and other officers of the ship were entertained at a buffet supper Tuesday evening by Mrs. George Mesta at Midcliffe. The Sheffield, first of the British naval vessels to visit New York since the war, is due in Annapolis September 30 and a full-scale program of entertainment awaits the officers when they come to Washington.

Miss Abby Willard whose marriage to Johnstone Filmer Northrop will take place on Saturday, was the guest in whose honor Miss Ann Guthrie entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club.

Other guests were Mrs. Wilkins Cooley, Miss Jewel Davis, Mrs. Hugh Smith, Mrs. James Edgar Murdock, Mrs. Charles E. McDonald, Mrs. Fred J. Leary of Garden City, Long Island, and Miss Margaret Mechlin.

Protocol Gives Boost To Forrestal

The State Department's office of protocol tipped off Washington matrons yesterday that former Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal won himself a new place at the dinner table when he became Secretary of Defense.

Forrestal, who sat almost out of sight in sixth place as the Navy Secretary, now moves up to third. He'll be just behind Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

The change is the result of the law setting up the new defense post, and which moved Forrestal into the third place Cabinet position formerly held by the Secretary of War.

Also it knocked out of Cabinet rank the present secretaries of the Army and Navy. When they come to dinner, they'll sit somewhere below members of the House of Representatives—who not so long ago had no rank.

Forrestal is the first person to step into a new Cabinet post and outrank older, established posts. The Cabinet posts of Commerce and Labor were among the last to be set up. When these secretaries go to dinner they sit at the end of the Cabinet table.

Forrestal's new job also means that he moves three notches up the Presidential succession ladder, but he is still behind the Vice President, the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate—and the two secretaries who precede him at dinner.

MRS. DOMINIC FARRELL
. . . Married in Cathedral

WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUMS, palms and ferns decorated the Cathedral of St. Matthew the Apostle for the wedding yesterday morning of Miss Grace Mary Colliflower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Colliflower, and Dominic Martin Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Thomas Farrell of Cincinnati.

Preceding the ceremony at 10:30, Conrad Bernier gave an organ recital and Miss Hazel Arth sang during the nuptial mass. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright gave the special nuptial blessing bestowed by His Holiness Pope Pius XII, following the mass.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of candlelight satin made on simple lines with a long full train. Her long veil of ivory illusion and shorter face veil fell from a crown of heirloom Chantilly lace. She carried a prayer book with a shower of gardenias.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roy C. Ahern, Miss Marita Houlihan, Mrs. Edward B. Kuhne, and Mrs. Alfred J. Weisbrod. Thomas Farrell served his brother as best man and ushers included Roy C. Ahern, James Cassidy, Arthur L. Fisher, William J. Wise, Charles J. Connolly, Henry Murray O'Hanlon, Edward J. Lynch and Francis X. McQuillan.

De Franceaux—Byerly

Before an improvised altar banked with palms and flowers, Mrs. Virginia Crammond Byerly and Howard de Franceaux were married yesterday at the Chevy Chase home of the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George de Franceaux. The Rev. Orris G. Robinson officiated.

Mrs. de Franceaux is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Crammond of Pittsburgh, Pa., and her husband is the son of Mrs. Elmer Young and the late George W. de Franceaux.

The bride wore a gray wool dress with ostrich feather hat and carried green orchids. Mrs. Grover Childress, her only attendant, was costumed in navy crepe with navy tulle hat, and she carried purple orchids. George de Franceaux served as best man.

Dalrymple Kitchen

In Epworth Methodist Church, Miss Ardis Mae Kitchen and Maj. Robert Curtis Dalrymple, USA, were married yesterday at 7 p. m., the Rev. Peter Marshall officiating, assisted by the Rev. James Dudley. Mrs. Dalrymple is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Wesley Kitchen, and Major Dalrymple is the son of Mrs. Charles H. Dalrymple and the late Mr. Dalrymple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown fashioned with peplum and full sweeping train. Her veil of illusion was held by a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Lois Mae Binks, maid of honor, wore blue faille with floral headdress which matched her colonial bouquet. The bridesmaids were Miss Marion Curtis, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Lois Adkins, Miss Dorothy Johnson and Miss Margaret Moran. They were costumed like the maid of honor in cerise color, and carried colonial bouquets. Bonnie Lee Hanrahan, flower girl, wore yellow taffeta.

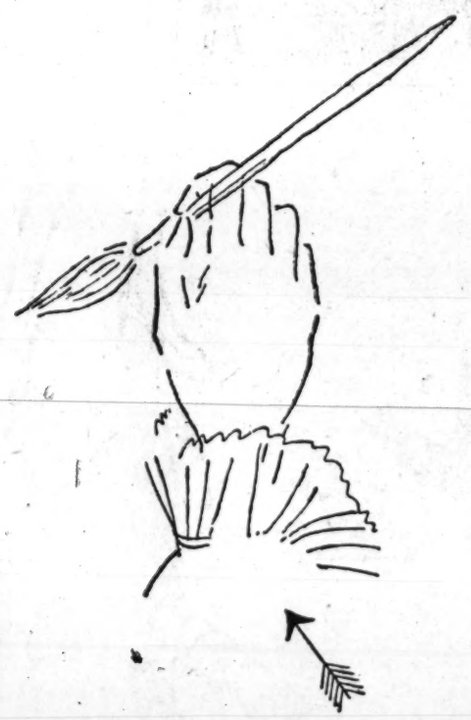
Dressing has always been an art. This year it's art with extra excitement. You'll discover new things about yourself. You'll find you never knew you had such a slender waistline . . . you'll realize a new sense of confidence in clothes . . . you'll discover colors you never dreamed of—and the magic they make of your skin and hair.

Brownie makes magic with Vermeer red, Brueghel blue, Reubens brown, Carthusian taupe, Dutch Tile grey, Vermeer black. The reds and blues are not garish. They have deep rich undertones and are right to wear.



Brownie's clothes are all line, form, color and texture — no tricks. She has taken the new theme of plain bodice, full skirt and made it into a composition. Fullness at the back of coats, in jacket peplums, in skirts is released in beautiful fluted folds — those rich-tetxured folds of Dutch and Flemish paintings.

Her dresses have the serenity, dignity and beauty of the famous Vermeer ladies of the Dutch interiors. They are made for women who lead active, happy lives and who are confident of their own charm.

We illustrate the Flemish-plaque dress, a two-piece wool in black or Flemish colors. Watch for other Foxbrownie fashions, including the beautiful Saskia neckline, Reubenesque suits in rounded and seductive wools, and the Carthusian cowl, coming in.

Slim Your Way Into New Fashions

. . . With Ida Jean Kain's 10-Day Health Program

WHETHER OR not you can slip smoothly into your regular size this fall depends on the things you did last summer, not on the new fashions. When you walk into the store in a size 16, you may feel outraged if the new styles in size 16 all crowd your waist and midriff. You admit having gained a few pounds here and there . . . Oh, not many, 6 maybe . . . well, 7½.

Or—and this is even harder to face—you may not have gained more than a pound or 3, really not enough to notice, but you still can't slither into the new clothes. Blame flabby muscles for that. Your middle muscles have spread. Well, maybe not spread exactly, but flabby muscles are bulky and inclined to fat infiltration, and the more space between the muscle strands, the bigger the bulge. Certainly your figure takes up more space in the clothes. Only well-toned muscles hug the figure and keep your measurements down to size.

If your regular size does not fit by any stretch of the goods or the imagination, don't blame the designers and bristle, "These styles don't do a thing for me, not a thing!" And don't settle for a larger size. You may rationalize that the change is only temporary. Right! The next will be size 20.

Put some live tone in the middle muscles; it's healthier. And take off the few pounds that stand between you and your normal size. The new styles force everyone to have a finer figure. Later you'll be grateful.

Tomorrow we'll tone the muscles where the figure first starts to spread. In the meantime, if you need to normalize your weight go on the new WAIST-WHITTLING DIET and lose 5 pounds in 10 days.

Designer Plans 18 Karat Chapeau

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man, 54, Paying Generous Alimony to Wife Who Divorced Him, Finds True Love at Last With Woman, 38, Whose Family Disapproves

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was married for 27 years. We raised four children, all now married. The first few years were happy ones for me and I think for my wife. Then during the depression we lost our home, our savings and our business.

I had to get work as an accountant. We managed, but the financial stress was often acute. My wife did her share and more to make ends meet, but she became increasingly dissatisfied with our life together and finally divorced me for "cruel treatment."

Due to a desire to maintain the good will of our children, I agreed to a larger alimony than perhaps the courts would have granted.

About the time my wife started divorce proceedings, I met a lovely girl 16 years my junior—I am 54—and had some pleasant dates with her. She has never been married, has always been very popular with men and has earned her own living for years. Later we fell in love, and I know on my part it's the first real love I've felt for a woman.

Man's Concerned For His Beloved

RECENTLY she took a vacation and went back to her home town. There her parents and sisters persuaded her that we shouldn't marry, due to the age difference and my reduced income, which amounts to $4000, less taxes, after alimony payments. We were both heartsick and she is convinced that we should wait until the first of the year before she finally decides.

I love her deeply and will marry her any time; yet the question troubling me is whether for her own good, I ought to marry her, in the event she might decide to accept me. Is the age difference too great to permit a life of happiness together? Is it unfair to commit her to the risk of a life alone after I pass out of the picture?

Not long ago, at my latest checkup, my physician said my present health indicates I should live to be 90. I am very vigorous physically; I golf, dance, play bridge and have an active interest in life. I am neither bald nor gray, although certainly no Adonis, I am earnestly concerned to do what is right; and am sure my friend will be strongly influenced by your viewpoint. W. P.

He Hasn't Got Foot in Grave

DEAR W. P.: In favorable circumstances, the average life-span is approximately 70 years, which means that "norm" middle age begins around 40. By this yardstick, your friend—let's call her Edith—is a mature-age woman, not a girl.

And according to your doctor's prognosis, you are a splendid exception to the general rule. His remark that you should live to be 90, judging by your present constitution, may be construed as meaning that at 54 you are biologically younger than the average so-called physically fit 40-year-old,—so far as life expectancy goes.

The individual's biological verve isn't necessarily commensurate with his calendar years, gerontologists find. Some persons deteriorate prematurely; others flourish vigorously to advanced years, due either to an hereditary strain of longevity or perhaps primarily to buoyant spirit.

Love, Happiness Lengthen Life

ENJOYMENT of life, the desire to live—always intensely heightened by love and happiness at the core of one's daily personal experience,—plus what you call "an active interest in life," are indubitably vital factors in prolonging life.

Thus, thinking along these lines, it occurs to me that you and Edith might be foolishly forfeiting your best last chance at maximum lease on zestful living, if you were to renounce marriage only because of the 16 years' age difference,—when you are truly in love, as neither has been before.

Concerning income: If the children are married, no longer minors, legally you're absolved from disbursing funds through their mother for their support; and socially you're craven to be paying her excessive alimony still, simply to buy their good will—if such is your reasoning. Hence if an equitable revision of the settlement would improve your welfare, petition the court for such relief. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

On the Washington Club Front...

Miss Louise van Eeghen, vice chairman of the World Woman's Party, shared honor-guest interest with Dr. Mayhew Derryberry, chief of the office of health education, U. S. Public Health Service, at the Soroptimist Club luncheon at the Willard yesterday.

Dr. Derryberry turned the meeting into a spirited question period, culling ideas from Soroptimists on how to get people to value good health and take the necessary steps to preserve it. Miss van Eeghen brought greetings from the Soroptimist Clubs of Utrecht and Geneva and described the important role women of the Netherlands played in helping their country during the war, especially in underground activity.

How to iron a blouse easier and faster

from the "Betty Crocker GUIDE TO EASY IRONING"

1. Use right heat. Set your dial at suitable temperature or fabric setting. That's easy with a new General Mills Tru-Heat Iron. Dial is right on top in plain sight. Cotton blouses should be slightly damp. Most rayons should be almost dry, and ironed on wrong side.

2. Sleeves come first. Begin with cuffs and gathers, then iron rest of the sleeve. Avoid sharp creases at the outside. A sleeve board is helpful. Notice how the smoothly tapered heel of the General Mills Iron lets you back into tricky places without turning the iron.

3. Do collar next. To avoid tiny wrinkles, always iron from the points to the center of the collar. Between steps, note how safely this iron hugs the board on its Safety Side Rest. And how much easier to roll it to rest on its side than to pull iron back on heel or lift to stand!

4. Almost finished. Now iron the fronts and back. See how fast it's done because the larger ironing surface of the General Mills Iron covers more ironing at every stroke. Final step . . . touch up right side of double thicknesses. And be thankful for the Button-Saver Edge!

Betty Crocker says, "Modern equipment makes ironing easier."

You'll see what she means once you get your own sleek Tru-Heat Iron . . . the iron with so many truly modern improvements to lighten and hasten your ironing day. Look:

TAPERED, ROUNDED HEEL backs easily into fullness.
LARGER, LONGER SURFACE covers more ironing at every stroke.
SAFETY SIDE REST makes ironing safer, easier, faster.
TRU-HEAT CONTROL—most accurate known type of iron heat regulator.
CONTROL DIAL on top shows both fabric and temperature settings.
BUTTON-SAVER EDGE slips under buttons without prying them loose.
RIGHT WEIGHT for easy, efficient ironing—3¾ lbs.
EXTRA LONG 8-FOOT CORD, center mounted for greater convenience.
TARNISH-PROOF, mirror finish chrome for lasting beauty.

Mothers Get a Break in New Playland

By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

GETTING ready for the opening of Playland, her service for 'round-the-clock mothers, Mrs. Fannie S. Mittell consults with her five-year-old son, Timmy, on play equipment to keep her future charges entertained

By Bessie Hackett

A SERVICE Washington mothers have been clamoring for—a safe, pleasant place to leave their small children for several hours a day—will soon be inaugurated.

Playland, as it will be called, is located in the heart of midtown Washington, in the home of Mrs. Fannie Mittell, widow of Sherman F. Mittell, editor and publisher of the National Home Library Foundation. Designed for children between 3 and 5 years, it will operate five days a week, two periods a day—9 a. m. to 12 and 1 to 5 p. m. —and will accommodate 20 tots during each period.

And it all came about because Mrs. Mittell, a mother who hated to see other women forced to drag their wailing youngsters through crowded downtown stores, had a "brainstorm" while reading an article in The Washington Post.

Post Gives Idea

Browsing through the women's section of the paper one Sunday last March, Mrs. Mittell came upon these lines . . .

"For several hours, in fact, for the most part of each day, for months which in turn add up to nearly six years, a young mother is obliged to remain shut in alone with her small child."

How true, mused Mrs. Mittell, who had been widowed in 1942 when her own little Timmy was but 6 months old. She read on:

"The more intelligent the mother, the more likely she is to be loving and conscientious . . . and the more frustrated by a condition which gives her absolutely no alternative. Because she will not leave her child carelessly with anyone strange to him, she must and does take him everywhere she goes, so that for her complete relaxation is never possible."

"Why can't I do something about it?" she asked herself suddenly.

Home Becomes Play Center

Mrs. Mittell and Timmy lived at 1213 St. Matthew's ct., a rambling studio apartment behind St. Matthew's Cathedral, on the second floor of what had once been an old carriage house.

Despite protests of relatives and friends who insisted the project would be too much trouble, Mrs. Mittell consulted the Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare. Just what did the District of Columbia demand, she wanted to know, of the kind of establishment she proposed.

She came home with a stack of literature and forms. She learned about health regulations, square footage per child, etc. She called the Bureau again. "I can do it," she announced, "send along the inspectors."

There followed months of furious activity. Construction men, painters and plumbers swarmed over the place. Mrs. Mittell supervised and happily swung her own can of paint and brush.

The garage, 1671 square feet, has been converted into an indoor playroom which is a child's dream come true. On one side is a huge sandbox with bright little pails waiting to be taken off the shelf. Toys stacked in open shelves decorate another wall and tall cupboards accommodate more playthings. A phonograph is ready to play music dear to the hearts of children.

The 1000-square-foot sun deck has been transformed into an outdoor play area, complete with miniature Jungle Jim, sliding board and huge plastic balls.

To those who wonder if she has any qualms about dealing with "temperamental" youngsters, Mrs. Mittell replies with assurance:

"Children are easy to take care of. They're nice and sweet if they have enough things around to amuse themselves with . . . and I've tried to think of everything—with help from Timmy, of course."

Child's Fears Sure Sign He's Growing

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When the child of three years or over shows sudden evidences of fear, the parents' first remark is, "I don't see why he should be afraid, we have never even mentioned the word to him."

But, at this age the child begins to identify himself with the persons around him and use his imagination to put himself in their position.

Children may show an unaccountable fear of the dark though they have slept in it since infancy. Now, they see the objects in the room as menacing figures. They want a light and the door open so they may feel the comforting nearness of the family.

Even Germs Frighten

Children may be afraid of animals and imagine they have fearsome designs upon them. They take it seriously if the mother says, "You might hurt yourself," and imagine the kind of hurts they might sustain. They become self-conscious about germs and refuse to drink from a glass unless they have been assured it is perfectly clean.

Thoughts of injury and death confound them and they ask questions which the parent finds hard to answer. This is the first age at which a child is old enough to see himself as dead, or imagine his parents or other loved ones being taken from him. The sensitive child is enormously influenced by such fears.

Blood and thunder movies or radio stories may affect a child of this age adversely as his older brother or sister may not be. He takes the happenings personally and tries to put himself in the same position as those hurt or injured in the story.

Sometimes, these "inner" fears which he cannot express, such as fear of personal injury or death, may lead him to show fear of ridiculous or harmless things. He will cower when he hears the vacuum sweeper, or run from any dog he sees or imagine there are large, ferocious imaginary animals lurking under his bed or inside the closet door.

Calm Is Needed

These are not really the things he fears. He cannot tell why he feels insecure and unhappy, but he can shake and cry and huddle close to his parents and thus in a sense weaken the hold of his unexpressed fears.

Fear is indicative of growth, development of imagination, identification of the child with those around him. It needs calm, truthful explanations of what the child fears and constant evidences of the parent's protectiveness, her understanding of this phase of growth and her willingness to soothe and comfort the child. The fears will then take care of themselves.

Fish Salads

Fish salads are an excellent luncheon suggestion. Boiled cod and haddock, packed into a tomato or green pepper cup, make an appetizing and economical salad. A salad of crabmeat, salmon, tuna or halibut, makes a tempting dish.

MARKET MEMO

BEAUTIFUL fall apples hold the spotlight on the market this week. You can find almost any kind to suit your fancy . . . red, yellow, or green, tart or nutty . . . mellow or hard. The crop's shorter than last year, but prices about the same. Plenty of big Delicious and Grimes Golden for eating out of hand . . . crisp, acid Greenings and Smokehouses for cooking . . . lots of early McIntosh . . . a few Stamens, Pippins, and King Davids . . . and good-looking red Jonathans, favored by some for pie-making because they hold their shape in cooking.

The late tomato and cucumber crop ran into hard luck in New York State . . . frost ruined a lot of them . . . which means higher prices at your store. California tomatoes will be coming in soon . . . but they're higher than eastern ones because of transportation.

Your Questions on Homemaking

I started a set of Towle's Old Brocade silver and I wonder if any of your readers may have pieces of the set that they would like to sell? It is not being made now and I cannot complete my set. Also, how does one clean mahogany furniture? A. W. F.

Any owners of Towle's "Old Brocade" silver pattern, who may wish to dispose of some of the pieces, may write this column.

Mahogany furniture, like other fine wood, may be cleaned with soap and water using a mild soap and lukewarm water. Ring a soft cloth out of the lather and go over a small area. Rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry with a soft cloth. Repeat, starting within the clean area, then polish.

It is not necessary to polish more than two or three times a year if in-between care is given. Apply polish sparingly with a clean cloth or clean cotton waste. Let the polish stand 15 to 20 minutes, then rub with a clean cloth with the grain of the wood until no polish is visible on the surface. Rub to a satiny finish with a soft flannel polishing cloth, following the grain of the wood. Be careful in dusting that you dust with a clean cloth, that you pick the dust up rather than scatter it. Never use an oiled cloth (it will leave a film to catch dust), and never use a damp cloth.

We are refinishing an old piece of furniture which appears to be solid walnut. We have removed varnish, but there seems to be a dark stain on the wood that we would like to bleach out. Can you tell us what solution would remove this stain without harming the wood? After we get rid of the stain, will rubbing with boiled linseed oil be sufficient to finish the wood? P. P.

Use either a ready-mixed commercial bleach or one made of mixing 1 ounce of oxalic acid crystals to 1 pint hot water. The latter isn't quite as powerful as the ready-mixed bleaches, but is usually quite satisfactory. Apply with a brush or rubber sponge and leave on overnight. Then wash off with borax dissolved in 1 quart of warm water. A second coat of bleach may be applied before washing if a lighter color is wanted. After bleaching and drying, the wood should be sanded smooth as the bleaching process raises the grain somewhat.

An oil finish is excellent for wood of natural beauty, color, and grain. Some experts recommend using 2 parts boiled linseed oil to 1 part turpentine. Heat in double boiler and keep hot while working. (Use cold only on carved or grooved surfaces.) Apply with soft, lintless cloth, rubbing into wood all it can absorb. This may take 5 to 20 minutes. Wipe off all excess oil with fresh cloth, being sure to get it all out of crevices. Polish 10 to 20 minutes with polishing cloth (heavy coarse linen or woolen.) Let stand two or three days, then repeat oiling and polishing. Let stand at least a week, and repeat again. Five to 12 coats are needed to bring out a fine luster. At least a week should elapse between all coats but the first and second, for each coat must be thoroughly soaked in before another is applied.

Could you suggest prices to charge for making the following: plain or smocked dresses for children; child's suit; ladies' cotton and wool dresses? B. D. H.

Prices charged by dressmakers vary so—depending on location and other factors—that it's hard to give you advice on this subject. Some Washington dressmakers charge as much as $150 for making a woman's dress; others as little as $7.50. Prices charged for making dresses for children seem to range from $4 to $15. The best way to determine a fair price to charge in your locality would be to ask other women who do dressmaking, or have dresses made, in the area.

TIRED of tubbing the table linens? Then take a look at the gay new fall designs in plastic table cloths now being introduced in Washington. They'll brighten your breakfast room, as well as lighten your work. The one shown above comes in red, blue, or green, with border and center of white, and can be cleaned with a few swishes of a damp cloth. It's immune to food and liquid stains, the makers say, and dishes heated to serving temperature won't stick to its vinyl plastic coating

PETUNIA!

How do you isolate
Yolks from the whites?

One fine way, Petunia, is to crack off the small end of the egg about half an inch, so the white will run out and the yolk will stay behind. Then—for yolk storage—just tuck a twist of waxed paper into the hole.

Has Anyone Told You . . .

There'll be no blistered hands in your kitchen if you have a utility pot handle to use in lifting handleless glass ovenware and metal pans. This handle can be slipped over the edge of any sized pan, and grips it firmly while you lift and move it about.

More fun than a barrel of monkeys is a tube of plastic balloon material. The kids love it, and it's a nice change for mothers who have been contending with bubble gum. The plastic is squeezed from a tube onto the end of a hollow blower. The youngster can then blow balloons to suit himself, in any size and shape he likes.

Enamel cooking utensils in many brilliant colors are now available at a reasonable price to lend an exotic touch to your kitchen—canary yellow percolators, Kelly green double boilers, blue tea kettles and firewagon red refrigerator dishes.

Smart cocktail napkins are pink pig and elephant ones imported from Madeira. They are cut in the shape of the dancing animals and made of fine, hand-embroidered linen.

The tie you give your "best man" can be decorated with an anniversary date, a favorite song title, the name of his horse, club or dog, or any phrase you wish if you buy one of the tricky made-to-order kind featured by a local shop.

Tell Prisoner Rights, Judge Warns Police

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 24 (AP).—Judge William J. McWilliams told Anne Arundel County police today, "You can't take citizens and hold them incommunicado" and not warn them of their rights.

He made the comment in a case in which Claude T. Truelove, 17, was charged with robbing Burt Fair of $20 and assaulting him on Cowhide Branch rd. last April. Truelove was found innocent.

During the trial, in which Truelove acted as his own counsel, Sergt. Walter Musterman of Annapolis police, said he had taken a statement from the defendant without warning him of his rights to counsel or that the statement could be used against him.

"I don't think it is good policy," McWilliams declared. "There has been entirely too much of this business, telling defendants they may not have counsel or not letting them procure counsel.

"I don't say it was done in this case or in Annapolis, but it has been done in other places."

Sergeant Musterman told the court Truelove had been arrested July 13 and held in jail ever since. He said Truelove had not sought counsel and had not waived indictment.

Va. to Submit New Plan for York Bridge

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—Indications today were that a high-level cantilever bridge might be approved for construction over York River from Yorktown to Gloucester Point.

Following announcement that the Army district engineer in Norfolk had rejected a low-level bridge, a state highway official said a high-level cantilever span was being recommended.

The Army action did not shut the door to a low structure of a different design but, a highway official said, in view of new specifications suggested by the Navy, and other factors, Highway had practically no other alternative but to try for the high-level cantilever type bridge.

He added the State is asking the War Department to approve such a bridge and engineers are preparing detailed plans for the new design.

Norfolk Firm Is Low On New River Span Bid

Richmond, Va., Sept. 23 (AP).—A low bid of $156,725 for construction of a 630-foot bridge across the New River on Route 636 at Austinville, Wythe County, was submitted today to the State Highway Department by the Tidewater Construction Corp. of Norfolk.

It was the second time the bridge project had been advertised. On the original call for bids last summer, there were no bidders. The bridge would replace the Thorn Ferry.

Bids on five other secondary highway projects were opened yesterday. The projects and low bidders were:

Route 606, Bland County, 3 miles of surface treatment and bridge over No Business Creek, Pendleton Construction Corp., Wytheville, $87,335.

Route 603, Middlesex and King and Queen, .59 mile of surface treatment and bridge over Dragon Run, Perkins & Barnes Construction Co., Inc., Blackstone, $38,710.

Route 719, Loudoun County, 2.48 miles surface treatment, Sam Finley, Inc., Roanoke, $15,260.

Route 734, Loudoun, 2.51 miles surface treatment, Sam Finley, Inc., $11,574.

Route 633, Culpeper County, 3.66 miles surface treatment, Highway Paving Co., Inc., Richmond, $37,131.

Bombed Nagasaki Crops Show Yield Far Above Normal

Tokyo, Sept. 24 (AP).—Summer crops in atom-bombed Nagasaki have shown increases of from 50 to 300 per cent over the normal yield, Takeo Furuno, Nagasaki prefectural agricultural expert, tlod Kyodo News Agency today.

He said increased output, with some freak developments, was noted in all food plants except dry rice and lentils, which had not matured.

The wheat crop, Furuno said, was about twice normal, and the cotton crop three times the average. Sweet potatoes planted at the end of May were ready for harvesting at the end of July, he explained.

Pumpkins, sugar beets, tomatoes, eggplants and similar produce showed a 50 per cent increase. Some pumpkins showed this strange development: The skin developed into a leaf, then a bud, and finally became a second pumpkin.

Furuno remarked that "some radioactive elements still remain in the earth."

5 Congress Members Reach Southampton

Southampton, England, Sept. 24 (AP).—Another group of members of the United States Congress bent on studying economic and political conditions in Europe arrived here tonight on the Queen Elizabeth.

All members of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, the party consisted of Chester E. Merrow (R., N. H.), Mrs. Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio), Donald L. Jackson (R., Calif.), Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) and John D. Lodge (R., Conn.).

"Barring a special session of Congress, we will be over here until December," said Jackson.

Elgin Says He'll Answer Lane Charges

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—W. Lee Elgin, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, returned to his office here today with a promise of comment at a later date on Governor Lane's order for sweeping reforms in Elgin's department.

The commissioner found waiting a letter from the Chief Executive, which cited a management consultant's survey report that the Department of Motor Vehicles displayed "inefficient procedure" and a lack of "organization and morale."

Attached to the letter was the bulky report of the consultant firm, Griffenhagen & Associates of Chicago. It was submitted to the Board of Public Works yesterday.

Before leaving Hagerstown for Baltimore, Elgin said he had been away from his office for two days and had no opportunity to study the survey and Lane's letter.

For this reason, the commissioner said, he could not comment immediately.

But, he added, "I can and will answer every paragraph of the Governor's letter. I propose to go into every item in detail.

"I have many letters written to Walter Kirkman (State Budget Director) over a long period, making requests for improvements which were never granted."

Commissioner Elgin is a "holdover" in office from Former Governor O'Conor's administration. At the last session of the General Assembly, a bill was passed cutting his term by two years.

Before the "Ripper Act" could become effective on June 30, 1947, a referendum petition was filed putting the issue up to the voters. This prevented Elgin's removal from office until the general election next November.

Boys' School Modernizing Plan Offered

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—An eight-point program for modernizing the Cheltenham School for Boys was recommended today by Judge Charles E. Moylan in a special report requested by Governor Lane.

Judge Moylan announced yesterday he had proposed a series of improvements that could be started immediately "at little or no cost." He said there is no need to spend a proposed $3,400,000 for purchase of a new site and building in Baltimore, as had been suggested.

Moylan suggested that the name "Cheltenham" should be changed at the next session of the Legislature "as a break for its boys as they return to the community and seek jobs," since the school for Negro boys has received unfavorable publicity in the past.

He also recommended the employment of a music teacher at $2500 a year to train a school band, the use of a maintenance building for carpentry classes, a new sports program, employment of a full-time chaplain and other changes.

"Insistence by the new superintendent that present institution rules providing that corporal punishment shall be inflicted only with his authority and in his presence be observed rigidly will correct such disciplinary abuses and scandals as have plagued the school in recent years," Judge Moylan said.

A list of 54 successful applicants for admission to the bar, announced yesterday included:

VIRGINIA

AN HONEST BARGAIN

In these days of high prices it is difficult to impress a prospective buyer with the fact that now and then there is an overlooked bargain. Because of special circumstances I am in a position to offer a $30,000 farm at the greatly reduced price of $15,500. For a 550-acre cattle and grain farm in northern Va., only 21 miles from Warrenton, on a good State highway. The main dwelling house has 9 rooms and bath; has been in the same family for more than a century; 15 miles north of Culpeper; this is the best value that I have ever seen in northern Virginia.

CH. 3250. RALPH CRAIN. OX. 2191.

Equipped Dairy Farm

This 238-acre farm is a going concern. The silo is full, there is hay in the mow, and the August milk check was over $1100. The main house has 11 rooms, center hall, 2 baths and natural gas heat and sits in a grove of trees. There are 2 tenant houses, 36-cow barn and dairy. Included with the property are 20 cows, new Farmall tractor and all other equipment. Ideally situated 35 miles from Washington, over fast roads. Price, $43,500; $15,000 down.

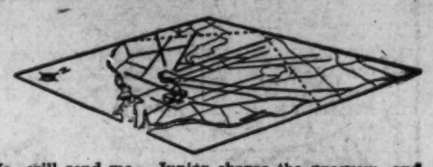
THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold



Do Kids Like Our Paper? They Eat It Up!

District Liner Drach asked for help, because he couldn't find any colored linen picture books "anyplace." As usual, our other readers are right on the ball.

Betty Brodie of 915 N. Wayne st., Arlington, Va., confides that at her house there's a 9-month-old who prefers The Washington Post to any other printed matter.

The youngest of the Brodies can't read, but she likes the taste of our paper. (This is an unsolicited, unpaid testimonial. No other newspaper can make that statement.)

Betty Sugarman of 518 9th st. ne., says that the Toy Shop, at 808 17th st. nw., also has a stock of them.

S. E. Deskin found the books on sale at Meta's Children's Shop, 5922 Georgia ave. nw.

Mrs. J. L. Stern of Alexandria, Va., recommends the Brentano shop at the Pentagon.

Mrs. Ruth Byington of 242 Whitmoor ter., Silver Spring, Md., bought some of the books at Garfinckel's.

And Mrs. Ernest Beavin of 1000 18th st. ne. made her purchase at Hecht's.

REMINDER

Send your suggestions to: Weatherbird, The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington 4, D. C.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Wonder why they call it "dry cleaning?" Aren't the garments immersed in a cleaning solution?

ANONYMOUS GAG

At least one District Liner seems intent on putting a stop to all these items about intelligent cats. She writes:

"Have you heard about the two cats that were watching a tennis match? One turns to the other and says, 'My father is in that racket.'"

Originally, our contributor signed her name. But then she scratched it out and added a postscript saying:

"Gee. For a joke like that I'd best remain anonymous."

If the residents of 2811 S. 8th st., Arlington, Va., will send me samples of the handwriting of everybody at that address, I'll get out my junior G-man set and go to work.

"MY PAL BILL"

They are Mike Hunnicutt, jr., who is 6 years old, and Mike Hunnicutt, sr., who gives his age as "over 6."

Senior is a platter pilot at WOL. On Saturday mornings Junior shares the program, and also becomes a disk jockey.

"Ah, my old pal Bill," said Mike. "Always glad to talk to the press. What can I do for you?"

"You can tell me," I replied, "whether the kid gets to keep his own salary check—or do you con him out of it?"

"Lissen," growled Hunnicutt, "why don't you reporters learn to keep your noses out of other people's business?"

ADD NAMES

Still another name that intrigues me is supplied by Mrs. Charles Herman of 117 W. Woodbine ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

She advises us that at 27 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, Md., you'll find the J. C. Flood Co., a firm of plumbers.

Grin and Bear It

"You dare to ask my daughter's hand in marriage when all you have is a fixed income?"

Little Stories of the Little Flower

NEW YORK.—In 1934 a Manhattan cafe owner called a district leader at the local clubhouse and asked for help. "An inspector came to my club today and placed a violation on the premises," he said. "You know the new Mayor. I'd like to get this fixed" . . . LaGuardia? Fiorello LaGuardia? Sure I know him," replied the politician. "And if I were to take a wagon-load of money down to him at City Hall, you know what he'd do? I'll tell you: The sucker would lock me up."

When he first was mentioned as a Presidential possibility LaGuardia confided that his name would be too much of a handicap. "Fiorello," he said. "LaGuardia," he added. "Can you imagine anyone with a name like that running for President? It costs me 200,000 votes every election" . . . One of his oldest friends said of him: "Anything that you can possibly say of LaGuardia is partially true" . . .

Senator Bob Wagner was one of the few politicians for whom he expressed admiration. "I've always voted for Senator Wagner," he said. "And Wagner never has voted for me. Who knows—maybe we both were right."

At a meeting with the officials of the Police Athletic League, LaGuardia discussed juvenile delinquency and reminded the policemen: "We must distinguish between viciousness and boyish pranks." Then he told of his childhood, when he and his friends would walk along the streets until they spied a horse hitched to a post. "We'd unhitch him, and ride him around the town," he said, "and then we'd return the horse" . . . "Is the Mayor of New York trying to tell us that he once was a horse thief?" asked one of the listeners . . . "No," said the Mayor. "I'm just telling you that I once was a boy."

One afternoon three representatives of the Soviet's commercial delegation had an appointment with him at City Hall. LaGuardia waited for them in his office, wearing his old frayed suit with the baggy knees. The Soviet representatives arrived wearing striped trousers and formal jackets . . . Fiorello stared at their immaculate attire, then at his own drab business suit. "Gentlemen," LaGuardia began, "I represent the proletariat."

When President Batista of Cuba visited City Hall, the then Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles, telephoned LaGuardia somewhat apprehensively and asked about the reception. "Oh, it came off fine," LaGuardia assured him. "The first thing I told the President of Cuba was, 'Here you are, Mr. Batista—have a good 5-cent American cigar.'"

At the height of his bitterest fight Fiorello dictated a letter of resignation, showed the signed copy to his startled friends, and said, "That's the way I feel." Then he proceeded to tear up the letter and said, "But now I feel better."

Red-tape always bored him. When he was head of UNRRA he sighed: "If only I were a Burbank and could find a way of transforming official written reports into food; on that alone I could feed Europe for a month.

At a dinner attended by Tom Dewey, Wendell Willkie and Senator Taft, LaGuardia directed a speech at them. "I see all of you here, hoping to get the Republican nomination for the Presidency," he told them. "Frankly, there's only one man in this room who has a chance of winning, and I'm just too modest to mention his name."

He often attended the ballet, but never could get to like it. "When I watch a ballet," he explained, "I just can't tell who's ahead. I'm a guy who likes to keep score."
